

German Coal Fields as Security.

There is no doubt says the Philadelphia Inquirer, that by the treaty of peace Germany will be required to make restitution for the devastation committed in France and Belgium, and also to pay for all the shipping which its submarines have sent to the bottom of the sea. Justice demands no less, and when the damages shall have been appraised the amount of the indemnity to be collected will be stupendous.

From what sources shall it be derived? And as the liquidation of this liability must extend over a term of years, what security shall be taken for the due performance of the obligations which Germany must perforce assume? Those are the questions now engaging the attention of the Allies' statesmen and it may be assumed that in their consideration of them the opportunities offered by the Westphalia coal fields will not be overlooked.

It is not perhaps generally known that Germany's supply of coal is immensely greater than that of any other European country. France and Belgium together have an estimated coal supply of 28 billion tons. Austria-Hungary has about 55 billion tons of this indispensable mineral, while the British mines are computed to contain 189 billion tons. Here is a total for the countries named of 272 billion tons. Far in excess of this figure is the German aggregate. The Silesian coal fields are estimated to contain 160 billion tons. There is a like amount in the Westphalian fields east of the Rhine, and there are other important coal mines on the western side of that river. Altogether, Germany has coal in view to the extent of about 409 billion tons, and it is to the possession of cheap fuel in practically unlimited quantities that its industrial expansion is in large part attributable.

Here is an inequality which calls for correction if the commercial equilibrium of Europe, upon which the preservation of peace is more dependent than is generally understood, is to be established, and its correction could not be more effectively or equitably accomplished than through the appropriation of the Westphalian coal fields on each side of the Rhine as part payment of the indemnity to be demanded. They should be divided in just proportions between France and Belgium, and France should also receive the Saarbrücken basin with its estimated coal reserves of nearly 60 billion tons. With the surrender of Alsace-Lorraine France has regained the Briey iron district in its totality, and the juxtaposition of the Briey iron and the Saarbrücken coal would be a very important industrial advantage.

Germany cannot possibly pay more than a small fraction of the indemnity in cash, but it can pay in coal and that will be an acceptable equivalent.

Good Wheat Outlook.

The growing wheat in the valley of the Big Cove, and in fact all over the County, presents a most promising appearance. The fall weather was most favorable both for seeding and growth. Remembering the early setting in of winter last season, almost all farmers seeded earlier than usual this season. Not for years has the wheat looked better nor begun the winter period under more favorable conditions.

In Jail for Dog Tax.

Sooner than pay a license fee of $1 for his dog, William Shughart, a farmer living near Carlisle, went to jail, declaring as he did that "The Lord will deliver me as he did Peter and Paul."

TRY THE SCALES

The scales seldom fail to reveal the truth, they are a fair gauge of health. If you are losing weight and are not feeling up to the mark, it is high time to replace the loss and build up the powers of resistance.

SCOTT'S EMULSION

a unique combination of tonic and nourishment, having definite reconstructive properties, enriches the blood, restores weight and imparts vigor and tone to the whole system. If you feel yourself losing ground, try Scott's Emulsion's Strength-Building.

Shughart, who is well to do, is a member of a peculiar religious sect and believes that going to jail for his beliefs is commendable. He was convicted in criminal court last week after a short trial, in which he declared that to pay more than 25 cents for a dog license was unrighteous and was sentenced to pay the costs, the fee and $25 fine, but refused to do so and delivered a sermon while waiting to be taken to jail. He claims that the new dog tax law is unfair.

Avoiding the Flu.

The influenza is not disappearing as fast as it was hoped. The situation imposes upon everyone the duty to watch himself closely and keep away from it, and also as far as possible not to carry it to others. If you have a case at home, don't go among people who might catch the malady. We strongly suspect that there is much thoughtlessness in this regard. If you are subject to the flu, don't endanger other people, even if you escape yourself. We are told that the epidemic may last into the winter and that is possible if people do not exercise greater care than they seem to be doing. There is more danger to the community in carrying it than in going where it is and getting it. But if you get it, or think you have, go home and stay there till it is all over.
