

MAN WHO WANTS IT

Give me a quarter of a pound of black pepper and a customer to sell it upon...

The grocer took down a little package done up in its fat and adorned with a yellow label bearing the legend: "Pure Black Pepper."

"This is what sells for black pepper, but seeing I know you pretty well I don't mind telling you that not a grain of black pepper in it worked for two years in the mill...

"It's the same way with mustard," the grocer continued. "Fifteen to twenty pounds of real mustard, the balance of cheap wheat flour colored yellow, makes 100 pounds of genuine mustard. The highest grades which aren't often retained, contain as much as one-half of real mustard, but cream of tartar is the biggest swindle..."

"You probably think you've entered some swindle in your time," the grocer went on. "Well, you haven't. I don't suppose there's ten pounds of cinnamon bark in the United States. What passes for cinnamon is the bark of the cassia tree. This is adulterated with a real counter-bark, known as cassia vera. This article is also mixed with peas and sweet fern. I need not tell you about some most odious, everybody knows about that. It's just the same way through the whole list of spices. If you could smuggle your self into the basement of some spice mill you would find bins of brains, brains, brains..."

The old woman never moved but trying the devil by jury in Williams port, and it will be a relief to many people to learn that his Satanic majesty was found guilty. The chronicler of the event relates that a large number of witnesses were sworn and testified to having seen the devil for different periods, all stating that he had promised them much pleasure but the returns were small. One lady witness had been serving the devil on and off for a period of about forty years. She would get converted away in a while for a change. Then when she wanted pleasure she would go back to his Satanic majesty, and attend picnics, balls, and other worldly amusements. The attorney for the devil was a good one and worked up his case for all a was worth. He cross-examined the witnesses in a manner that fairly made their heads stand on end, and got several from so mixed up that they forgot other they were serving the devil or the Lord. But out of the true case conviction which was a legal moral ending, if nothing else. The Satanists should now take practical question and examine whether any of their soldiers are not wearing the diary of heaven, the letter to serve the Devil—our sister Intelligence.
