THE FOOLISH OLD WOMAN.

I saw an old woman go up a steep hill,
And she chuckled and laughed as she went with a will;
And yet as she went
Her body was bent
With a load as heavy as sins in Lent.

Why do you chuckle, old woman?" says I,
As you climb up the hillside so steep and so high?"
"Because, don't you see,
I'll presently be
To the top of the hill, he, he!" says she.

I saw the old woman go downward again,
And she easily traveled, with never a pain,
Yet she loudly cried
And gustily sighed
And groaned, though the road was level and wide.

"Oh, why, my old woman," says I, "do you weep,
When you laughed as you climbed up the hillside so steep?"
"Heigh ho, I am vexed,
Because I expect,"
Says she, "I shall ache in climbing the next."

Maxim: Hope in adversity,
Fear in prosperity.

People Who Deserve Abuse.

The unblushing fish liar.

Families who throw filth on the street.

The man who sells 1,700 pounds for a ton of coal.

The man who refuses to take his home papers.

The man who unmercifully whips or punishes his horse.

People who are lazy and meddle with things out of their line of business.

The man who tries to pay the keyhole these times a visit at two a. m.

Those who attend mostly to other people's business and neglect their own.

People who are always finding fault with their town and those who live in it.

People who take four or five hours of a persons time when they have no business with him.

The servant who says, "I am not hired for that," when asked to sweep off the front stoops.

Folks who imagine their children smarter than Daniel Webster, and that the teacher is always a fool.

The girl who cleans up your room so well that you can't find anything you want when the girl is through.

The man who thinks so much of his politics that he could carry his political feelings to heaven with him, could he but get there.

For Marriageable Girls.

Do not "choose an opposite." You will be opposite enough in time.

Take your mother's advice on the question of a husband, provided she took her mother's.

Either put your foot down on his cigar before marriage, or make up your mind to keep quiet about it afterward.

Learn to cook and sew if you can, but above all things learn to keep still and look sweet when mad enough to take the roof off.

See and hear all the plays, operas and concerts you can during the engagement. Bad weather is very apt to interefere after marriage.

When furnishing a house make sure of an easy-chair, a foot-rest, an open grate and a corn-popper if you would enjoy the bliss of matrimony to the full.

"Don't ask your brother about the personal habits of a suitor. He can't tell enough to matter without giving himself away, and he won't do that.

Do not be offended when his sister involuntarily wonders what any woman of taste can see in him to admire. Remember how you hate your own brother.

If he asks if you can sew on buttons answer "No." A man who has not at some time or other been obliged to sew on his own buttons lacks a very necessary part of life's discipline.

TRIADS.

Three things to love—Courage, gentleness, affection.

Three things to admire—Intellectual power, dignity, gracefulness.

Three things to hate—Cruelty, arrogance, ingratitude.

Three things to reverence—Religion, justice, self denial.

Three things to wish for—Health a cheerful spirit, friends.

Three things to like—Cordiality, good humor, mirthfulness.

Three things to suspect—Flattery overscrupulousnes, sudden affection.

Three things to avoid—Idleness, flippant jesting, loquacity.

Three things to govern—Temper, impulse, the tongue.

Three things to be prepared for—Decay, change, death.

A MAINE CONUNDRUM.

The way people can mix up themselves and their relatives in the matter of marriage was perhaps never better illustrated than in the case of a backwoods Maine family, of which a correspondent writes:

A father, son and grandson married three sisters.

That looks simple enough, doesn't it? It hasn't dawned on you yet? Well, see here:

1. Amos, the father, married Abagail.

2 Benjamin, son of Amos, married Betsey.

3. Charles, son of Benjamin, married Caroline,

What then?

Amos is brother to his son.

Amos is brother to his grandson.

Amos is grandfather to his daughter.

Amos is grandfather to his sister.

Amos is father to his wife.

Amos is father to his grandson.

Amos is his own grandfather, his own son and brother-in-law to himself.

Benjamin is brother to his father.

Benjamin is brother to his son.

Benjamin is brother to his mother.

Benjamin is brother to his daughter.

Benjamin is the son of his sister.

Benjamin is the husband of his sister.

Charles is brother to his father.

Charles is brother to his grand father.

Charles is brother to his mother.

Charles is brother to his grand mother.

Charles is grandnephew to his mother.

Charles is grandnephew to his wife.

Charles is the grandchild of his aunt.

Charles is married to another aunt.

Charles is the son of his aunt.

Charles is the husband of his sister.

Maine is responsible for a good many things, but the foregoing will show that she is still engaged in the good work.—Rochester Post-Express.

Miraculous Escape.

W. W. Reed, druggist, of Winchester, Ind., writes: "One of my customers, Mrs. Louisa Pike, Bartonia, Randolph Co., Ind., was a long sufferer with Consumption, and was given up to die by her physicians. She heard of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and began buying it of me. In six months' time she walked to this city, a distance of six miles, and is now so much improved she has quit using it. She feels she owes her life to it." Free Trial Bottles at G. M. NEW GOODS FOR ALL!

Can you guess how it is that the popular firm of

are selling the best quality of goods at lower prices than ever before? Why is it that new customers always come back to trade and old ones never go away? The answer is simple.

They Keep what the People want and sell it at so small a profit that they realize only a little above wholesale prices. Small in their profits and quick in their sales allows them to
