The mummy of the ancient monarch, Rameses II., the Pharaoh of the Bible under whose reign the flight of the Jews under Moses occurred, was unrolled at Boulak, in Egypt, June 3, 1886, 3200 years after the monarch's death.

One of the saddest results of the earthquake shocks in the South is the number of persons whose reason has been dethroned. From Augusta, Ga., five cases are reported where persons were driven crazy by terror, two of whom finally ended their distress by suicide.

The largest pension ever paid in the United States was paid at the Pension Office at Louisville on Thursday last week, to Marcus P. Richardson, an aged soldier, living in Milton, Ky. The cause for granting the pension is total blindness, brought on by an injury to the eyes received in the war in 1863. The pension dated back to that year and amounted to $11,500.

In Pennsylvania a married woman cannot by personal estate upon credit unless she is the owner of a separate estate, in which case she contracts upon the credit of such estate, and if she purchases property with borrowed money or on credit, her husband's creditors may seize and sell it as his. In order to retain the property as against such creditors it is not enough that she had means to pay for it; she must prove affirmatively that her means paid for it, or that she came by it otherwise independently of her husband. Hess vs. Brown, decided by the Supreme Court of this State.

We take the following from the Harrisburg Call, and would remark that a few lessons of this kind all over the State would result in fewer petty and unwarranted cases taking up the time of the courts and entailing expense on the people: "Isaac B. Vance, justice of the peace of Conewago township, at the November sessions, 1885, had nine bills ignored, in which he was ordered to pay costs. Yesterday Judge Simonon called Mr. Vance up and required him to pay the costs in the nine cases, or furnish security for same within 10 days, and to be in custody of the sheriff until the sentence be complied with. The costs amount to about $130."

The debt of the United States is said to be $24 per head of its population. That of Germany, $39; Belgium, $78; of France, $124. Yet foreigners come from these very countries and do their very utmost to overthrow the government, where they have the organization at a minimum. Foreign organizations, composed of men who come here because their burdens were too heavy at home, or to escape starvation wages, or exacting military service and grinding taxation, plot and scheme to destroy the only system that affords them any relief. Here they can earn money enough to live comfortably on. Here they are paid more per hour or per day than in any other place in the world. And with all these they are not content. Some men will probably not be satisfied in heaven.

DOANE ON WOLFE

A PROMINENT INDEPENDENT'S OPINION OF THE CANDIDATE FOR REVENUE ONLY.

Dr. W. C. Doane, of Williamsport, one of the leaders of the Independent movement of 1882, writes a letter to the Philadelphia Press, in which, after alluding to his course as an Independent and the motives which prompted him, he makes the following pithy and timely reference to Charles S. Wolfe, the Prohibition candidate for Governor:

Let no one be deceived by the course of Wolfe at this time, for all his boasted philanthropy is a matter of personal malevolence that is well understood by those who are familiar with his history. He knows that he can not look for any favor from the element of the Republican party to antagonize, and less still from the portion he has cheated. The long Senatorial fight, in which he assumed to be the leader of Mr. Grew's forces, when in fact he was at work for himself, is well known by those with whom he pleads for their support, having sold himself to the Democracy that promised to make him United States Senator.

The late Jeremiah Black was his political executor, and Mr. Wolfe, the honest, ardent radical Republican for the sake of office and promotion, was willing to follow in the footsteps of Julius, and for a paltry consideration sacrifice his honor and sell his friends, and now, in the character of a political tramp, he is trying to pay Chauncey Black a debt of gratitude that he owes his father. When we come to understand the true position into which Mr. Wolfe has placed himself, we can see at a glance that his interest in the Prohibition cause that he is now championing is about the same that it is in the welfare of the natives of Fiji Islands.

Mr. Wolfe addressed a meeting here on the evening of the 16th. A few radical Prohibitionists gathered around the stand and the court house was well filled with faithful, zealous Democrats, many of whom adopt the doctrine of Mr. Wiggins, that all things done in the interest of the Democratic party are right. I was sorry for my old friend Charlie, for his theme was new to him and to many able and eloquent speakers had preceded him that what he had to say seemed extremely threadbare and feeble. The meeting was opened by prayer, and it was interesting to look over the audience that hardly knew whether it was proper to stand up, sit still, laugh or cheer, and why should they? It was a political meeting in the court house and they were Democrats. The speaker advocated temperance and prohibition, and Democrats instead of going out to "see a man" sat there for an hour spitting cotton. We are truly living in an age of wonders, and now that Democrats can be induced to attend a temperance meeting no one need be surprised to see Satan sitting in a snow bank some day singing psalms. I could not understand the meaning of what I saw until one of our most prominent citizens and earnest Democrats said in my hearing, "We will run that Wolfe for all there is in him."

When the people come to know that Democrats are running Charlie for all there is in him, it is time to stop and think.

Betting on Elections

In his charge to the grand jury on Monday last, Judge Yorkes, of Bucks county, referred to the crime of betting on the result of elections as follows: "While the offence may not have been committed in this county within your knowledge since the last term, yet we are approaching the season of the year when there is danger that the law against betting may be violated innocently by people who do not know of the existence of the law. The offence of betting, or offering to bet on the result of any election within this Commonwealth is punishable by a fine of $500. This law applies to betting on a primary election as well as upon a general election. It is made a duty of the grand jury to return this offence without any information being laid before them. We call attention to it now in order that no person may fall into error by committing this offence innocently."

WHAT ARE WE COMING TO?

Is not our boasted civilization a failure? Are we not fast becoming a nation of thieves? Is honesty to become a lost virtue in this country? The recent defalcation of trusted officials in various financial institutions of the country make the above questions timely. We send missionaries and millions of dollars every year to foreign countries for the purpose of converting the heathen to our Christianity and civilization, while nearly every day in the year some of the exalted disciples of that Christianity and civilization are proven to be common thieves—that is not what people call them, but that is what they are. The man that appropriates one dollar or a million dollars of other people's money to his own use is a common thief, and no other word should ever be used to describe him. Would not our money be spent to a better purpose in endeavoring to inculcate a higher sense of honor in our own business men, than in sending missionaries to foreign lands to convert the heathen to a system of civilization that highminded men and women are becoming more and more ashamed of every day? We can never expect things to be any better until a man who robs his fellow men is properly punished for his crimes, and becomes what he deserves to be, an outcast. Too often do we find ministers of the gospel interceding with the pardoning powers of the country in behalf of some man who has been proven in a court of law to be a thief, and what do they offer in extenuation of the crime? The prisoner's previous good character, his family and like arguments. These very things should really make his sentence the heavier. But do they? Oh, no, they very often result in his getting a pardon and going out to prey upon his credulous fellow men again. We have had just such a case in Washington. A trusted bank official stole a large sum of money, was caught, tried, convicted and sentenced to prison for his theft. Then his family and friends, assisted by more than one minister of the gospel, began the work of getting up sympathy for him. They succeeded so well that he was not only pardoned by the President, but was procured a position with a New York corporation at an annual salary of $2,000. What a committal to our Christianity and civilization! What an example to place before men who handle other people's money! The position that this thief had given him doubtless crowded out some honest man. We send men to prison for stealing a few cents, in many cases to supply themselves or families with the bare necessities of life, while we pardon thieves who steal thousands of dollars to purchase luxuries and style for themselves and families. This is all wrong and as long as it is kept up we cannot expect stealing to stop among those who handle other people's money. If either class of thieves should be punished and pardoned it should be the small ones, many of whose surroundings have been such that they scarcely know right from wrong, and not the large ones, nearly all of whom have moved in what the world calls the upper and more cultivated classes of society. There is a pressing need of reform in these matters. No system of civilization that has not for its corner-stone honesty, can ever become permanent. Let the press and the pulpit take hold of this matter and do their whole duty in teaching our people honesty. Let us drop such terms as "Skillful financiering" and "able manipulator," and speak of the man who steals as a thief.

SPECIAL DELIVERY SYSTEM

On and after October 1, 1886, the special delivery system, heretofore in effect in cities and towns having a population of 4,000 and upwards, will be extended to all postoffices in the United States. The privileges of this system will also be extended to all classes of mail matter instead of being confined to letters or first-class matter as at present. Accordingly, every article of mailable matter to which is affixed a ten-cent special-delivery stamp, in addition to the postage required by law, will, upon its arrival by mail, have immediate delivery by a special messenger within the carrier limits of any free-delivery postoffice, or within one mile of any other postoffice to which it may be addressed.

Drop letters and other mailable matter deposited for local delivery and bearing special-delivery stamps in addition to the postage, will be entitled to immediate delivery in the same manner as matter received at the postoffice by mail.

Registered letters or parcels will also be entitled to immediate delivery, the same as ordinary letters or parcels, when bearing special-delivery stamps in addition to the full postage and the registry fee required by the law and the regulations. Special delivery stamps will be sold at all postoffices in the United States; they can be used only to secure immediate delivery, and are not good for any other purpose, and the article must have the postage thereon also prepaid by postage stamps. Under no circumstances will special-delivery stamps be recognized in payment of postage or of the registry fee, nor can any other stamp be employed to secure special delivery except the special delivery stamp. Mailable matter intended for special delivery may be mailed at any postoffice in the United States.

A PREVENTIVE OF HOG CHOLERA

The Huntingdon Journal says: One of our Juniata township farmer friends, who is a close reader of agricultural papers and all works treating on that science, hands us a remedy for hog cholera, a disease which is just now carrying off large numbers of swine throughout the county. The remedy has been successfully used for a number of years by Messrs. Kimberly & Son, extensive breeders of Chester Whites, at Green River, Henry county, Ill. and this is what they say concerning it:

"Common 'Smart-weed' tea has prevented, and we believe will prevent—if used judiciously and in season—not only cholera, but the many diseases known by that name. In its green state, we pound the Smart-weed in an iron kettle, press out the juice and mix it, in small quantities, with good swill. When we discover want of appetite in a hog (that is the first symptom in nearly all diseases of swine) we feed them enough of this to make them cough and sneeze greatly, and it has never failed, with us, to bring them around all right. We most fully believe that this remedy will not only prevent all cholera, but promote health and thrift. For use through the year the herb should be gathered when in bloom, tied in small bundles and hung in a sheltered, dry place, and when wanted for use, make a tea of it, by boiling. There are two kinds of Smart-weed, and the smallest, with the narrowest leaves, is the one we use. We would not put this remedy for any that has yet been discovered, or is likely to be, for the next twenty years, especially as a preventive and general corrective. Disease, however, will continue to carry off a portion of hogs in the country so long as they are permitted to pile together in large numbers, in manure heaps, under some old barn or shed, until in a more than fever heat out of which they rush into a zero atmosphere at feeding time."

The newspaper is not responsible for the decline in the art of good public speaking. While it is true that the increase in number of intelligent and able newspapers makes the average reader a more competent and exacting critic of the stump orator's logic and accuracy, the time will never come when newspapers will usurp the place of the spoken argument of a really able, eloquent and earnest man. Phillips had an audience even when above his 70th year, no matter whether whether he uttered orthodox or heretical political thought and philosophy. Ingersoll always has an audience. Conkling always make friend and foe crowd to hear him, so can Blaine. Newspapers make it more difficult for cheap men to get a respectable hearing, but they do not usurp the place of a fine speaker. The people no longer turn out to hear a man because he is an ardent Republican, or because he is a bright, consummate flower of a long line of unwashed and untrifled Democrats from the day of Jefferson to the death of Tilden, and they turn out as freely as ever to hear men who, as Phillips said, "like Choate, can cajole a jury, like Clay can charm a Senate, like Everett can capture a college, or like Corwin make a country laugh from ocean to ocean."

GOLD... PAY WHEN CURED

Col. Ingersoll says: "The lawyer is merely a sort of intellectual strumpet. He is prepared to receive big fees, and make the best of either side of any case. He is a sort of burglar in the realm of mentality. It is a fortunate thing for the lawyers that, whenever a man is created who has the peculiar faculty for legal requirements and controversy, at the same time enough fools spring into existence to give him a good living."

Strike in prices!

As strikes are the order of the day I have inaugurated the movement in Snyder county—not for higher wages or less hours, but a STRIKE AT HIGH PRICES. Cash business has become the order of the day and the prices must correspond with the progress of the times. I have therefore prepared myself for the cash trade of the county by purchasing a large stock of GOOD GOODS which I have MARKED DOWN to the lowest possible margin in exchange for ready money. I keep no books, lose nothing on accounts and discount my bills, thus saving an average of at least fifteen per cent, which benefit I give to my purchasers. Come and see me and I will convince you of the advantages of this new departure. A. S. HELFRICH Beaver Springs, Pennsylvania.
