The Governor complains of the ineffectiveness and partiality of the laws for the taxation of personal property. . Real estate furnishes four-fifths of the revenues, while its assessed values is only one eixteenth greater than that of personal property. The time is ripe for the inauguration of carnest efforts to eradicate the evil and for the reform of the tax laws. He throws out the adequate fine and imprisonment as suggestion of a commission to con- apenalty for its commission. eider the whole subject.

The Legislature should designate the places for the deposit of the public money. It is unwise and dangerous to allow the Treasurer
