A SOUTHERN VIEW.

The Greenville, S.C., News, in a recent issue, says: The two sections began life together and formed a government The South had the advantage of soil, climate and wealth. At the end of eighty-four years the two grapple and fought. The Yankee section came to the fight richer and stronger than our Southern section, and beat us into the earth while we did our best. To day these Yankees are rich in everything and we are poor in every thing but manhood and womanhood, and have less than we began with a hundred years back. Those same Yankees furnish the bulk of the capital we use, the food we eat, the clothes we wear, the books we read and study, the high grade teaching in the normal schools of the Southern States. Almost every convenience of life and invention, of art or science, we know comes from these same people, who have in ten years done more with Florida than the Florida natives have done in fifty. Almost any one of their large communities could buy the whole South for a park if they liked it for that purpose. In a fight they could crush us like eggshells In politics they are our master, and we have to hold our breath in every big campaign to avoid offending them. Their percentage of ignorance is one-tenth of ours. When trouble comes on us we depend on them for most of the help, and get it. The world knows them as America and us as outlying and unconsidered provinces. They are producing the representative poets, painters and authors of the country, while we trail along behind with our eyes fixed on them, hardly daring to hope that we may become as strong and rich and enlightened as they are by years of hard work.

The Man Who Killed Wilkes Booth Insane.

Topeka, Kan., Febuary 16—Boston Corbett, the slayer of John Wilkes Booth, created a sensation in the Kansas House of Representatives yesterday. At the commencement of the session of the Legislature Corbett was appointed assistant doorkeeper. Yesterday he strapped on two revolvers and took with him a box of cartridges. Then, with a drawn weapon, he drove a negro attendant from the Representatives' hall.

Sergeant-at-Arms Norton attempted to expostulate with him; when Corbett cocked one of his revolvers and pointing it directly at the officer told him to travel. Corbet then searched for Speaker Smith and on meeting a member who somewhat resembled him was about to fire, when the member threw up his hands and said he was not the Speaker. The member was then permitted to move on. Corbett then took possession of the Speaker's gallery and walking in front of the doors held it during the entire morning session, refusing to allow any one to come near him. Three city policemen were called, but they would not venture into the dark corridor. At 12 o'clock Corbett sent word down to the House to adjourn, or he would adjourn it himself. The House adjourned. Corbett was afterwards captured in the lower corridor, disarmed and taken to the police station, where he is now confined. He will probably be adjudged insane and confined in an asylum.

ALIVE IN HIS COFFIN.

Kiszna, Pa., February 17.—Eddie Cooke, aged 16 years, was found lying apparently dead on the top of an oil tank near this village on Sunday. A number of physicians agreed that life was extinct and that death had resulted from inhalation of the poisonous gases rising from fresh crude oil. The boy was coffined and prepared for burial at the home of his parents, near Corydon, Pa., and services were in progress yesterday afternoon, when signs of life were shown in the supposed corpse.

He was removed from the coffin and medical aid again summoned, and this morning the lad gives every hope for his complete recovery.

"Should women hang?" asks the Wilkesbarre Leader. Not unless they murder somebody in cold blood. A woman who behaves herself is just as good as anybody else, and sometimes better.

The redemption of the Trade Dollar has finally been accomplished and only words Grover's name.

Addresses of A. W. Potter, Esq., and Prof C. W. Herman, before the Adamsburg Musical Convention.

A W. Potter, Esq., was called upon and in substances replied as follows:

Mr. President, Ladies and Gentlemen, you have kindly intimated that you thought you would be glad to hear from me and I assure you it gives me great pleasure to have the privilege of saying a few words on this occasion It gives me great pleasure to see so many of the good citizens of Adamsburg and vicinity present here to night It shows that you are awakening to the necessity of engaging in the great art and science of music. We thought we had a monopoly of the music business in the lower end of the county, but when I look behind me at the large number of musical ladies and gentlemen on this stage, it appears as though the woods were full of them: Over 250 years ago one of the greatest writers the world ever produced—one who used plain apt language to express a simple fact, said: He that hath no love of music in his soul and is not charmed with concord of sweet sound is fit for treason, stratagems and spoils. There is more fact than fancy in this utterence, the love of music has an elevating and ennobling influence on the human mind, it lifts man above the level of those whom the same author calls groundlings. Show me a lady or gentleman having this love of music in his or her soul who is charmed with concord of sweet sounds and I will show you an individual fit for the society of the best of the earth, but conversly show me a person who has not this love in his soul and is not so charmed and I will show you one who is fit for treason, stratagems, spoils, felonies and crimes. Again I congratulate you upon this evidence of your advancement in the right direction, It will be impossible to make musicians out of all of you in one short week, but we approach the duties of the occasion determined to do the very best we can and with the kind attention of all the members of the chorus, I know we will spend the week together with profit to you and pleasure to myself.

Prof C. W. Herman, was introduced to the audience and responded in the following language:

Ladies and Gentlemen, Friends and Lovers of the Heavenly Art:—The committee of this convention has delegated to me the pleasant and honorable duty of bidding you all welcome—a welcome that means more than mere sentiment and one that is prompted by kindlier feelings than those that are embodied in mere formal utterances.

To you, musicians from abroad, we bid welcome to our beautiful village and extend the hospitality of its citizens.

We welcome you, one and all to this feast of song and may we together endeavor to elevate ourselves and humanity; for, truly, the influence of voice and instrument is world-wide.

When God the Father called into existence the stars and the planets, they sang together. All nature is music, The untrodden forest echoes and re-echoes the notes of birds and beast; the mountain and the valley resound with the rushing, splashing, silvery, music of brooks; and the meadow rings with the cheerful notes of the lark as he rises with the dew on his wing. In the sighing and moaning wind we may learn the plaintive notes of sorrow and dispair, and the cataract's deep and sonorous tones resound the power and majesty of God, on earth and in heaven—everywhere is music. But above the voice of animate and inanimate nature is the flexible, persuasive, and inspiring voice of man. On him alone has the Creator bestowed the wonderful power and variation of the vocal organs. The voice—oh what a gift! How grateful are its "whispers of affection," how exalted its religious devotion, how comforting in trouble, how unspeakable its participation in joy!

Music antedates authentic history. Before man was linked in a common brotherhood the rude yet eloquent strains of the pristine people ascended to heaven. "I will praise thee, O Lord, I will sing praises unto thy name forever," is the language of the psalmist, and all through the ages man has poured out the fullness of his soul to his Maker in song.

When Moses had led the Israelites safe through the Red Sea and had delivered them from Egyptian bondage, that great multitude as with one voice poured out praise and thanksgiving to the Almighty for his goodness and mercy.

In Egypt, Persia, Chaldee, Arabia, Greece, and other ancient nations music early manifested itself in poetry and worship. Vocal music is innate—the heritage of all classes: Instruments of [illegible] workmanship and superior tone [illegible] grace the parlors of palaces, but the humble cottage may vie with the mansion in the production [illegible] sweet [illegible] of voice The peasant girl's [illegible] lay may win praises sooner [illegible] the polished "operati" of the [illegible] fessional; for music is the language of the soul The grand old tunes that have been transmitted to us by our fathers will live because they seize upon our emotions—our inner life

Jno Howard Payne's Home Sweet Home will last as long as homes last and as long as men wonder away from the scenes of childhood and a mother's embrace. The exile and the wonderer will continue to feel the noble sentiment of these words;

"I gaze on the moon as I tread the drear wild,
And feel that my mother now thinks of her child,
As she looks on the moon from our own cottage door
Thro' the woodbine whose fragrance shall cheer me no more,
Home, home, sweet, sweet home, there is no place like home"

What orator can portray the influence that music has had and ever will have upon all animate creation. The wild beasts of forest and field forgot their fierceness as they gathered around the charming entrancing lyre of the fabled Orpheus. Yea, the very rocks and trees moved at the magic of his strains of melody and song.

Snyder county this year will have had four successfull conventions when this week is ended. Mr Potter has already distinguished himself as a successfull conductor, In common schools, the subject of music claims a good share of attention, and opening exercise of many of our Public Schools consist of music in which pupils and teachers mingle their voices in the divine art. We find on this platform ministers of the Gospel aiding in carrying forward this good work and calling upon the people by voice and example, let us sing praise to our God. The variety rendered at our (your) opening exercises this evening proves beyond all doubt that you have not neglected the devine art. The choruses, duetts &c,. were rendered in a commendable manner. Solo "The little Trundle bed" was rendered in a manner so as to stir up the noblest emotion of the soul, and carry us back to the days of our childhood when in the innocense of our nature, we engaged the comforts of our parent's homes Those parents who secure musical instruments for their children and encourage the study of music, will realize the important truth that they have provided one of the most effective means to train up their children in the way they should go. Music is the means of securing orderly and obedient children, and many a wayward child has been reclaimed through the influence extented by music. The musician his way into polite society and his company is sought after in all walks of life.

During the Rebellion at a certain time a false economy curtailed the number of Bands in the army. The result proved that it was necessary to restore all the bands and more were added to the number at first employed. The strains of martial music nerved the arms of the soldier in the hour of conflict, and the stars and stripes were borne triumphantly from fields of carnage to the sound of music, Music is of great antiquity, for the morning stars sang together at Creation's dawn and the sons of God shouted for joy The noble gifts of the voice deserves due recognition and should be cultivated. This cultivation will afford common Schools an opportunity to advance in music, and those schools that have music are the most orderly and progressive.

What heart will not break when music takes us from the brink of the grave of a dear one and leads us back over the path along which joy and happiness was a mutual heritage?

During the dark days of strife and bloodshed, when homes and freedom are assailed by the ruthless tyrant, the stirring tones of bugle and drum quicken the heart of the patriotic defender and imparts elasticity to his step.

Ours is a musical county. I take just pride in welcoming so distinguished musical talent—all from this county.

The drills in articulation given by Mr. Potter this week will be excellent elocutionary exercise. Good musicians become good readers. We may differ in our church relations, entertain different views on matters of business, but on the subject of music we can join hands and blend our voices and forget all differences of opinion in the harmony of sweet music We learn in the Bible that the song of Moses and the Lamb will be among the employments of the just in the eternal world, let us then whilst here below tune our voices to join in the song of the innumerable company around the great white throne,

"Let us sing a song of the beautiful land,
Where the saints of ages in harmony meet
Their Savior and brethren transported to greet."

And now in the name of that art which is so ennobling and refining—which leads man from this world to the portals of the eternal city, and directs us to the Opnipotent, I bid you all a welcome!

JEREMIAH CROUSE

Candidates' Cards.

EDITOR OF THE POST:—Many republicans of this staid Republican strong-hold have expressed their opinion in respect to the nomination of a popular and available candidate for one of the most important offices of the county: One which most materially affects all classes of our people, namely, that of the sheriffalty. With due respect to public sentiment, we submit that D. Bodender, of Middleburgh, would make a strong candidate before the people, because, of his official integrity and easy conduct in regard to all matters placed in his hands for collection. He has experience which is essential to a proper discharge of the duties of the office. He is well and favorably known throughout the county. That he is a Republican no one doubts, and therefore, we ask for him a hearty support at the coming Primary Election.
