LOSS AND GAIN.

Do not count, when day is o'er, Daily loss from life's rich store; But the gains, however small, Count them daily, one-and all. Every sweet and gracious word, Every pleasant truth you've heard; Every tender glance and tone, Every kindly deed you've known; Every duty nobely done. Every rightful victory won-Treasure all and count them o'er As a meiser counts his store.

But if bitter word or thought Have a bitter harvest brought If some foeman has assailed you, Or the friend most trusted failed you If unkindness and untruth Have to you brought saddest ruth, Blot the score without delay-Keep no record of the day.

Keep no record of the care, Loss and cross we all must bear ; On the page of memory write Only what is fair and bright. Let all evil things go by ; Still, with brave endeavor, try Simply joys to multiply.

Thus you'l learn how large a sum Will with faithful reconing come. Long as after cloud and rain Blessed sunshine comes again, Long as after winter's gloom Summer roses bud and bloom, Long as we have with us here One sad heart that we can cheer, Long as love gilds sorrow's cross, Life's rich gain o'rpays the loss. Butering the room toward the north, one of the first things which attracts the attention of the visitor is a large fire-place and mantle. It was manufactured in Italy and presented to Washington by a wealthy English gentleman.

It is said that on its way across the ocean pirates captured the vessel and were appropriating everything on it for their own use, but when they heard that this mantle piece was for General Washington, they immediately restored it to the who last week removed to Snyder ship.
