A tax on money at interest is a tax on the borrowers of money, not on the lenders. The people who have money to lend sell the use of it for what it is worth in the general market. If the State of Pennsylvania impose taxes on loans, money will not be loaned in Pennsylvania unless the borrower will agree to pay the taxes, either by direct stipulation or by increasing the rate of interest. Those writers who assume that a tax on money at interest is a tax on wealth take a very narrow view. No law can be devised that will regulate the market value of money, of labor, of pork, or of potatoes. It is beyond the power of Legislatures and Congress. People regulate these things for themselves. —Philadelphia Record.

NATIONAL ORDERS.

MADISON, Wis., April 15, 1887.
GENERAL ORDERS, No. 11.

Nineteen years ago the then Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, in General Orders, set apart the 30th day of May and suggested that it be consecrated to the memory of the fallen soldiers of the Nation.

This being the first Memorial Day occurring since his death, the Commander-in-Chief asks that the eloquent and appropriate words of General Orders, No. 11, 1868, uttered by that illustrious soldier and beloved comrade John A. Logan be again taken as inspiration and guidance for the 30th day of May, 1887.

GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC,
WASHINGTON, D.C., May 5th, 1886.
GENERAL ORDERS, No. 11.

I. The 30th day of May, 1868, is designated for the purpose of strewing with flowers or otherwise decorating the graves of comrades who died in defence of their country during the late rebellion, and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land. In this observance no from of ceremony is prescribed, but posts and comrades will in their own way arrange such fitting services and testimonials of respect as circumstances may permit.

We are organized, comrades, as our Regulations tell us, for the purpose, among other things, "of preserving and strengthening those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound together the soldiers, sailors and marines who united to suppress the late rebellion." What can aid more to assure this result than cherishing tenderly the memory of our heroic dead, who made their breasts a barricade between our country and its foes? Their soldier lives were the reveille of freedom to a race in chains, and their death the tattoo of rebellious tyranny in arms. We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance. All that the consecrated wealth and taste of the nation can add to their adornment and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders. Let no wanton foot tread rudely on such hallowed grounds. Let pleasant paths invite the coming and going of reverent visitors and fond mourners. Let no vandalism of avarice or neglect, no ravages of time testify to the present or to the coming generations that we have forgotten as a people the cost of a free and undivided republic.

If other eyes grow dull and other hands slack, and other hearts cold in the solemn trust, ours shall keep it well as long as the light and warmth of life remains to us.

Let us, then, at the time appointed gather round their sacred remains and garland the passionless mounds above them with the choicest flowers of Springtime; let us raise above them the dear old flag they saved from dishonor; let us in this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us a sacred charge upon a nation's gratitude—the soldier's and sailor's widow and orphan.

II. It is the purpose of the Commander-in-Chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades.

He earnestly desires the public press to call attention to this Order, and lend its friendly aid in bringing it to the notice of Comrades in all parts of the country in time for simultaneous compliance therewith.

III. Department Commanders will use every effort to make this Order effective.

By command of John A. Logan, Commander-in-Chief.

N. P. CHIPMAN, Adjutant General.

By command of Lucius Fairchild, Commander-in-Chief.

E. B. GRAY, Adjutant General.

CAPT. STOVER'S SNAKE FARM.

From the Centre Hall Reporter.

One of the Centre county stock of Stovers has a novel way of making a living, near Galion, Ill. He has a rattlesnake farm and here is the description of it by a newspaper correspondent,

Your correspondent last Sunday visited the celebrated snake farm "rattlesnake forty"—near this village, owned and managed by Capt. Dan Stover and wife, and assisted by William Dunn, agent at the Illinois Central depot. It might be surmised that the breeding and propagation of rattlesnakes and other reptiles was not only a dangerous but an unpleasant occupation However, these poor but honest people have learned that there is money in snakes, and last year they cleared almost enough from their sales to pay the expenses of the family of four:

"Who buy rattlesnakes, and what on earth do they want with them?" you ask. Why, for use in the manufacture of the new cure for rheumatism. A firm in Philadelphia uses the oil in its remedy and pays a good price for every rattlesnake delivered at the laboratory. Mr. Stover has contracted with the firm to furnish them 250 of that species during the present season at $2.25 each, none to measure less than four feet in length, or to be less than six years of age. The older the snake the better and stronger the oil.

Sunday the sun shone out bright and warm, which brought out the snakes in large numbers to bask in the warm rays, and as Mr. Stover said, would be a good day to take a stroll over "rattlesnake forty." Procuring a good stout stick and donning a heavy pair of boots, your correspondent joined Stover and Dunn in the hunt. To show us how easy it is to kill a snake, he picked up a blue racer by the tail, that was lying coiled up in the sunlight, in a half comatose condition, and giving it a couple of whirls over his head in a lightning manner; he cracked it like whip, causing its head to part from its body and spin through the air. Proceeding a little farther, we came to "the mounds," little raised places on the snake farm, where the snakes burrow in winter and breed in summer. There are thirty seven of these mounds on the farm and on the south side of one of the largest of these, where they could get the full benefit of the sun, lay coiled up sound asleep fourty three large rattlesnakes, seven black snakes and numerous other smaller reptiles, not one of which seemed to recognize our presence. Stover and Dunn do not kill off the whole crop yearly, but leave many for breeding purposes.

"Why" said the former, "that mound there contains probably a dozen nests of eggs and each nest at least ten eggs. I have found nests that contained as high as eighteen young rattlers, the largest not over two inches in length. Their eggs are about the size of those of a partridge, but have a soft shell. The farm is a tract of virgin prairie, and has never seen a plough, and Dan says in summer its native grass is very high, rendering it an excellent place for the reptiles to hide in."

Mrs. Stover also had in a box of sawdust under a cook stove twenty-seven rattlesnake eggs, which, she said, would begin to hatch in a few days, after which event the children would be kept busy catching flies to feed the tiny pets.

Stover and Dunn have several pet rattlers around the house, which are as harmless as kittens, made so by their poison sac having been removed from the roofs of their mouths and their fangs clipped with pincers, all this being done while the snakes were under the influence of chloroform. They have no equal as mice exterminators, and in the summer keep the place free from bugs, flies and bad boys.

LETTER FROM HARRISBURG.

Editor Middleburgh Post.

The High License Bill introduced early in the session by Wm. H. Brooks representative from 22nd, district of Philadelphia passed both Houses and Senate, and has received the signature of the Governor.

It is thus a law and is one of the most important measures which has been enacted by the present Legislature. In section eight the following classifications regulate the rates of license:

Persons selling liquors in cities of the first, second and third class shall pay the sum of $500; in all other cities the sum of $300; in boroughs the sum of $150; in townships the sum of $75.

The influx of moneys by reason of the payment to obtain license will be great and will be disposed of in the following prescribed manner:

In cities of the first class four-fifths shall be paid for the use of the city and county, and one-fifths for the use of the Commonwealth; in cities of the second and third class two-fifths shall be paid for the use of the city, two-fifths for the use of the proper county and one-fifth for the use of the Commonwealth; in all other cities and boroughs three-fifths shall be paid for the use of such city or borough, one-fifth for the use of the proper county and one-fifth for the use of the Commonwealth; in townships one-half shall be paid for the use of the township, one-fourth for the use of the proper county and one-fourth for the use of the Commonwealth.

Counties, cities, boroughs and townships receiving the parts of license shall bear their proportionate share of expenses attending the collection of the same; and the license paid for the use of the townships is to be applied to the maintainance of a good condition of the roads.

Senator Cooper was the avowed champion of the Bill in the Senate and he labored strenously to have the Bill passed without being made the victim of enervating and evasive modifications, such as were proposed by some of the members of both Houses, When the Bill had passed the Senate and was sent back to the House for its concurrence, in which feature the House pressed its grace by the strong vote of two to one upon the measure, Cooper went upon the floor and aided the friends of the Bill to secure for it a trenchant deliverance. Mackin, the boisterous son of Erin, who has let no occasion pass during the past session when the opportunity of demonstrating his hidden pugnacity was visible, rose to a point of order and informed Speaker Boyer that Cooper was not a member of the House and had no right upon the floor in the capacity of an alleged intimidator. The Speaker told the House that he could expel no Senator from the body over which he presided, and the Delaware Chief smiled and bowed his compliments in a way so charming, that even the member from the Sixth could not resist the force of it and he resumed his seat under the wail of his last kick with which he will be accredited, at the Bill he so stubbornly fought.

Senator Reyburn, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations, placed the plans of Architects Hazelhurst and Hackel of Philadelphia, for the new Administration and Library buildings, in the Library this week, where they were viewed by many of the Senators and Members during the last few days.

The senate saw fit to vote the sum of $600,000 at a meeting of the Appropriation Committee last week to apport the provisions of Boyer Bill and with this sum the proposition of constructing the new buildings in a way that will allow indefinite additions and transformations in the future, will be fairly met. As the plans now are the building occupied by the Secretary of Internal Affairs, is to be removed entirely and an altogether new one erected for Library purposes. The old Library is to be converted into Committee Rooms, and the Supreme Court, which formerly hold its sessions on the second floor in the Internal Affairs building, will also sit in the Library.

In addition to the beautiful dress with which the hand of Nature has embellished the Hill within the last few weeks, Supt. Stackpole has dotted it with beds of flowers arranged in an artistic manner and the ornamentation effected under his direction is handsome in the extreme and presents a pleasing contrast with the green leaves of the maple and the bright, rich spikes of the horse-chestnut overhead.

The last week of the session has called forth the whole energy of the active Legislators and dispatch coupled with long continued meetings now characterize the efforts of the Lawmakers in the last hours of their labors. There will be no Legislative biliousness sweated out of the astute framers of our Statutes, by the imposition of an extraordinary session, this summer, and the well earned rest and association with their families which they seek will be granted the Representatives without a murmer.
