Every growing and ambitious town is composed of three elements. Those who work patriotically, vigorously and intelligently for its advancement; those who are in a state of apathy or indifference, and those who take a curious delight in discouraging the efforts of others by ridicule, by a persistent denial that any progress can or has been accomplished and by boasting of every other town besides their own. The last class are called croakers, but they are really something worse, for their opposition does not arise simply from despondency, but from the uneviable spirit which will neither act itself nor suffer oth ers to act.
