COMMITTEE MEETING.

The members of the Republican Standing Committee will meet at Middleburgh, Wednesday, Feb. 29, '88, for the purpose of transacting important business—meeting called for 1 o'clock, P. M.

Jno D. BOGAR, Chairman, A. S. PAULINE, Sec.

The smallest baby in the world was born Wednesday 8th to Mrs. Fred Miller, of Rice Lake, Fairbault county. It is a speck of humanity that barely tipped the beam at one and a half pounds. Its foot is not over an inch in length, and an ordinary finger-ring will go over the foot and upon the ankle. A small child's teacup will cover its head. The father is a large, heavy man, and the mother very little under the ordinary size. The child is perfectly formed and healthful.

A statement has been put into circulation in different sections of the country to the effect that letters mailed in postal cars and put off the train at the next station in order that the stamps may be cancelled by the postmaster there, thus delaying such letters at least one train. The post-office department officials denounce this statement as absolutely false and declare that the purpose of postmasters in giving currency to this report is to compel the abandonment of the practice of mailing letters on the cars, by which local postmasters are deprived of the revenue derived from cancelling these stamps.

(STRANGE COINCIDENT.)

TOLEDO, O., February 15.—A resident of the village of Lyons, Fulton County, which is about twenty-five miles from here, tells a most remarkable story of a brother and sister's union after twenty-two years of separation. In 1887, a young man, giving his name as Henry Lendon, went to that town and secured position in a general store. He was bright, and won his employer's respect as well as the affections of the old man's pretty step daughter, to whom he became engaged last summer.

The marriage was set for to-day, and preparations were made for a grand reception Sunday. The old gentleman and his prospective son-in-law were talking, when Lendon informed him that his real name was Soleaux and that he was a son of a Frenchman in Detroit, but that he had not seen his parents since he was a child, they having given him to a family named Lendon. He also stated that he had a sister younger than himself whom he had not heard of for twenty-two years.

The storekeeper listened intently to the story, then taking a photograph album asked Lendon if he knew whose picture a certain one was. 'That's my mother's,' was the young man's excited reply. 'Then you and your affianced are brother and sister, for I adopted her when she was a little girl,' exclaimed the old man.

A Trip to Washington via Pennsylvania Railroad.

In order that those who could not make it convenient to go in the previous excursion may have an opportunity of visiting Washington, the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will run a second special excursion to Washington, on Thursday, March 1st, 1888. The round-trip tickets will be operative for ten days, a period of time ample for a thorough visit to the capital with its hundreds of interesting scenes and places. The public buildings are a source of the greatest interest, while Congress, the courts, the Government institutions, and the prominent places in the vicinity, serve to fill the measure of pleasure.

In addition to these, Richmond and Mount Vernon may be visited on low rate tickets which will be sold to the excursionists. The special train of Pullman Parlor Cars and day coaches will leave at the time specified below, and round-trip tickets, allowing a stop-over in Baltimore on return trip, good for ten days, to be used going only on special train and returning by any regular train except the New York and Chicago Limited, will be sold from the stations mentioned at the rates quoted:—

F. E. BOWER
 Chairman Dem. Standing Com.

THE PENSION AGITATION.

The Liverpool Sun makes the following comment on the above question:

Just now one of the principal topics of conversation in this town is the pension question. The several pension bills that are introduced in Congress, are subjects of discussion. The one that commands the most attention is Senator Cameron's one-cent-per-day service bill. It meets with a general approval by the men who were in the service several years, but those who were in service but several months are not so favorable to it. The man who served four years or 1461 days would get $14.61 per month; the man who served three years or 1095 days would get $10.95 per month; the man who served one year would get $3.65 per month; the man who served 100 days would get $1.00 per month. As a purely service pension an arrangement in that proportion seems to be the fairest and best offer that could be devised, and the short-service man should not be selfish and begrudge the few dollars per month more to his comrade who was in the service longer. The long-service men enlisted in the early part of the war, and bore the hardships and did the fighting for three or four long years, and got no bounty; while men who enlisted in 1864 and '65 got liberal bounties and served but a few months, or less than a year. We are all selfish. Self-interest shapes a man's politics, and in many cases his religion. When there is any kind of legislation done, either by the state or national legislative bodies, if it is not to our benefit, even though it benefits most every other person, we do not approve it, and fight against it. So the short-service man is naturally opposed to a pension bill that gives his long service comrades more, and those who had the good fortune to escape the horrors, fatigues, privations and perils of the war are apt to look with disfavor upon all pensions, because they get none, and must help to pay them.

Now the question of cost comes in. How much would it cost the government a year to pension all the surviving soldiers on that basis? How many soldiers are yet living? and what is the average term of service of the members of Jno. Q. Snyder Post is about 18 months, perhaps a little more; and on that basis the average pension according to the 'one-cent' bill would be from $5 to $6 per month. It is estimated that there are about 800,000 soldiers yet living; and let us make the estimate a little more liberal, say the average term of service is two years (and it is scarcely that), which would make $7.30 per month or $87.60 per year; and for the 800,000 it would cost the government about $70,000,000 per year.

There are about fifty soldiers in Liverpool borough, and if each would draw on an average from $4 to $6 per month it would bring about $200 to this town every quarter, or from $30,000 to $36,000 per year. See how that would liven up our little town. Every one knows that the more money there is in circulation, and the faster it is passed around, the more business is done, and the better the times are. Every one would be benefited. The merchant would sell a great deal more, and the mechanic would have more work and at better wages. There would be a greater demand for the products of the farm, and the farmer would find a better market for his produce, and at better prices. As it would be here, so it would be all over the country.

The money to pay the pension is raised from internal and external revenues—not by direct taxation—the revenue on spirits and malt liquors and tobacco and the tariff on foreign importations to protect American industries, of which there is a vast surplus accumulated every year, and locked up in the treasury vault. It is much more than would pay this additional pension, and there would be no necessity for a special source of revenue to pay it. Much as they talk about reducing the revenue, it will hardly be done this session, as the different factions are too stubborn to come to terms. So give it to the soldier.

The Whiskey Monopoly.

The greatest monopoly in the country, is the Whiskey Ring. Whiskey costs about fifteen cents a gallon to make, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, while the tax is ninety cents, thus squeezing out all the small distillers. As now taxed, it requires a tremendous capital to engage in distilling. Not one in a hundred is able to command it, and the result is that the making of whiskey has grown into a giant monopoly. The distillers want to be let alone.

The position which the distilling interest holds to the surplus money in the Treasury is that of alliances with the free trade wing of the Democracy. Any assault on the Internal Revenue system would be in its very nature out of symmetry if the high tax on whiskey was maintained. Those engaged in it have the acuteness to see this, and to save themselves are willing to have maintained the Internal Revenue system entire. Thus it is that the tremendous power of this monopoly is in favor of a low tariff for the merely selfish purpose of keeping up a high tax on whiskey.

Under a diminished expenditure the national Government could now be supported from either the taxes received from excises or from customs. The division between the parties now is, which shall go? The present internal revenue system is a heritage of the war, enacted to maintain a standing army engaged in a great war. The first movement looking to its repeal will be but an entering wedge for its future annihilation. This would mean that the national Government would master itself out as a constabulary to keep surveillance over the whiskey producer, and turn over to the State respectively its regulation, both as to morals and revenue. Thus it is that the whiskey tax has a direct relevancy to the overburdened treasury vaults.
