The Mormons have made about 4,500 converts in the South within the past year, chiefly in the Alabama and Tennessee. They are not polygamists nor in favor thereof, but accept the Mormon church and its religious teachings as preferable to any other they have yet learned of. The other churches thereaway are red hot against the Mormons, and are neglecting their own religion to make war upon the Mormons, even without knowing what the Mormon religion is or why it is so called. In this country all forms of religion are alike at liberty to root on and to spread as fast as they can, and no one has a right to disturb or deny this right.

The Republican party is to be congratulated that the biography of Gen. Harrison, their candidate for President, will be written by Gen. Low Wallace, the author of Ben Hur. Gen. Wallace will have the assistance of Gen. Harrison, who will give his views on matters of national interest. The book will be a finished literary product and will unquestionably be the best campaign book published, and have an immense sale. Agents who want to make some money and do a good work for the Republican party can apply to the well known publishers, S.S. Seranton and Co. of Hartford, Ct., who have the work to sell by subscription.

One of the best things that could be done by decent people of all parties would be to sit down heavily on the campaign liar at the start, no matter whence he comes or under what flag he assumes to serve. There are two clean, competent and justly respected candidates for President, and there should be an honest, dignified and in every way decent contest between their respective friends.

Let all decent citizens of every faith sit down heavily on the campaign liar at the start. That will force both the campaign liar and his twin fellow, the campaign fool, out of the contest, and the people can then deliberately decide which of two confessedly competent and honest men should be elected President.—Philadelphia Times.

It is not exact justice supposing its allusions applied to Thurman— for personally, Thurman is a rather fine old fellow—but it is the politically near as applied to the Democracy, that little speech of Creed Hayden, of the California delegation. The Democrats were unable to beat us during the civil war when they had two of our colors and some of our stars; how do they expect to do it with only one? It is the flag of anarchy. In taking it up the Democrats have for once been honest. It is a flag that no virtuous woman ever loved and no brave man ever fought under. It was born at the Paris commune when converts were deserted; it is the symbol of sin. The bandana was worn by the slaves of the South, and was a badge of their bondage.

A Measure of prim importance to the country at large is the Public Land bill which passed the House of Representatives last week. The main object of the bill is to guard against further squandering of the public lands upon speculators and corporations. The pre-emption and timber culture laws are repealed and ample provision is made for the disposal of the lands to bona fide settlers. Timber lands are forbidden to be sold, but settlers are allowed to take timber not commercially valuable for domestic use.—The President is authorized to set apart tracts of forest lands as public reserve toin. The sections of the bill relating to agricultural lands permit hands of families to enter quarter section tracts where they do not own that amount of land in any State or Territory, upon payment of five or ten dollars, according to the size of the entry. Any persons who have previously had the benefit of the homestead and pre-emption law, and who has failed to perfect title to a tract entered by him, is to be permitted to make a second entry in lieu thereof. The entryman is required to establish a residence upon his claim within six months after entry in a habitable house, and to reside continuously thereon for five years and cultivate at least ten acres, when he may take out a patent.

Some Political Axioms.

A Protectionist is a revenue reformer who proposes first to take off the internal revenue taxes and to bring the Government back to the sources of revenue which were relied upon previous to the civil war; and after that he would revise the tariff, always with the principle of Protection uppermost.

A Free-trader is a revenue reformer who proposes first of all to reduce the tariff duties on foreign goods and to maintain the internal revenue taxes untouched. The revision of the tariff he would put through with the principle of Free Trade with foreign nations uppermost. By steadily pursuing this policy, all strictly protective duties would be swept away in the course of about twenty years, and the country brought substantially to internal taxation as its permanent mode of revenue. This would be equivalent to Free Trade.

The man who claims to be a Protectionist, and yet proposes to maintain the internal revenue taxes unchanged, and to begin revenue reform by smashing the tariff, is either under a delusion himself regarding his own opinions, or is seeking to delude others.

The man who claims to be a Free-trader, yet proposes before making any change in the tariff to first reduce the internal revenue taxes, is a sort of man we have never seen; and of his existence there is as yet no evidence.

It is just as well that these distinctions should be understood exactly as they are. There is no use in any false pretence or misleading representations about the subject.—N. Y. Sun.

The Business is Over Done

While the North has been ready to recognize the gallantry of the Southern troops who fought for the rebellion there is beginning to be a feeling among some Northerners, especially soldiers, that the business is overdone, and that at Gettysburg the impression should not be allowed to grow permanent that the charge of Pickett's brigade was the only display of heroism, but that there were displays of courage on the Union side that surpassed that of the Southerners. Take the case of Bigelow's battery in command of its captain only then twenty-two years old. He was told to hold the Southerners until the reserve artillery could be gotten into position at any cost and he did it by fighting slowly back for a third of a mile without any infantry support, checking the advance of the rebel column until at last the reserve artillery was ready to do its work of saving the wing of the army. Every horse of Bigelow's battery was lost, and when wounded in two places, he came to fire the last shot he had only two men left, one of whom was wounded. History tells no more splendid courage than this, for those men faced death knowing they were to be sacrificed to save the army and could not feel the enthusiasm of men who dashed off to a charge which may bring them undying fame.

It is just as well that the rising generations in the North should be taught that of the men North were also true to the traditions of their patriotic ancestors and that eulogisms upon the courage of the Southerners only adds to the lustre of the Northerners, who whipped the rebel armies on the field of battle.
