Fair Questions Honestly Answered.

Ed. Post.—Will you kindly answer me a few questions regarding Hon. A. S. Helfrich's record, and oblige an old friend and subscriber?

First. Did he vote for High License?
Second. Did he vote to submit the constitutional amendment to a vote of the people?
Third. Did he vote for the six month's school term?
Fourth. Did he vote to repeal the scalp act?

Very truly yours,

REPUBLICAN.
First. In answer to the first query would say "yes." He voted for high license because it was a republican measure—almost a party vote—and he was a republican member from a strong republican county. It was not only his pleasure but his imperative duty to do so, for had he not done so he would have disappointed his constituents and betrayed a most sacred promise of the party to the people. By doing so, however, he incurred the ill will of the liquor element who will oppose his election. On the other hand the justness of the measure appeals to every honest voter and touches the most tender spot of every tax-payer—the pocket book—as it brings thousands of dollars into city, borough and township treasuries and helps to bear the burden of taxation.

Second. Yes; he voted to submit the Constitutional Amendment to the people of Pennsylvania. In voting for the Amendment Mr. Helfrich did what every honest legislator would have done under similar circumstances. The better class of people are opposed to the liquor traffic as carried on at the present day. They demand the right to vote on this question, and when the people demand a right their representatives are bound to give it to them. The moment representatives cease to carry out the wishes and instructions of their constituents they become unworthy servants. A Republican member of the Pennsylvania Legislature would betray his constituents and the principles laid down by his party if he should refuse to vote for the Amendment.

Third. No; he did not vote for the six month's school term as will be found in the House Journal, pages 400 and 401, House bill No. 30. Here will be found a record of the final passage of the bill—104 voting for and 72 against the bill. Mr. Helfrich appears among the nays. Much as he may be in favor of six months of school, he was more in favor of allowing the directors of the respective districts the privilege of deciding the length of their school terms.

In this and the above instances he manifested implicit confidence in the wisdom and judgment of his constituents to govern themselves, and as such his actions in the matter are entirely in accord with the wishes of the people.

Fourth. No; he did not vote to repeal the scalp act. See House Journal, page 786 House Bill No. 64. Its final passage was accomplished by 115 voting for and 38 against. Mr. Helfrich will be found recorded among the 38. He not only voted against it but did all in his power to defeat it.

The editor of the Post will at all times take pleasure in answering questions of this kind when it is in our power to do so. "Honest politics" seems growing in demand and the progressive man must prepare to meet the truth face to face and stand or fall by it. In this county both parties have made their nominations—all honorable men—and as honorable men we believe them ready to stand by their records for weal or woe and crush the campaign liar be he friend or foe.

Harrison's Unique Part

General Harrison has played a unique part in this campaign. Never before was a presidential candidate of any party visited, day after day, by so many men representing so many trades and avocations as has General Harrison since the day of his nomination, and scarcely ever in the history of any campaign has any candidate been able to touch upon so many live topics of the day without "putting his foot in it." His speeches have been characterized from the first by the greatest good sense, the highest order of ability in public speaking, and of winning politeness in public speaking. This has been no surprise to General Harrison's friends, for they knew the man, and knew that he had never been found unequal to any occasion. This was true of him in the school-room and on the stump, in his law office and in the court room, on the battle-field and in the Senate. Accounting for this happy condition of things the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette says: "General Harrison is strong and ready because he has been a hard-working man all his life, and his faculties have been disciplined and made alert and executive. He has earned all he has, and his habits of application abide with him. He is not elated or oppressed by his position, but he takes it coolly, and is in full possession of himself. The living rock is under his feet, and overhead the sky is clear. He has absolute sincerity and unequalled courage—and he has had such a breadth of experience as few men have profited by, while each day of his life has been in some way good to him. He has lost no time in idleness and wasted no power in dissipation."
