Gypsies in Winter Quarters

YORK, Pa., Nov. 29, 1888. FRIEND TOM.—Thinking a short sketch descriptive of the winter quarters of the so-called Gypsies who infest the rural districts during the summer might be of some interest to your many readers, I hereby submit the following personal observations:

A few days ago I visited what is here known as "Bull-frog Alley," a street at the extreme eastern end of this city, and was then impressed with the truthfulness of the answer these nomades of the road usually make when asked by our Snyder county friends as to where they are from, "Fun Yorick."

"Bull-frog Alley" is not a misnomer as it is low and marshy, just such a place as frogs would select to hold their evening matinees. Everything along this street has a neglected appearance; tumble-down fences and neglected yards is evidence that the occupants of this street have just returned from their summer meanderings through the country.

Their residences are all good two-story buildings and I am told that in nearly all cases are owned by their occupants; their stables are filled with fine horses, their coffers with money and their larders with everything necessary to make life enjoyable—the fruits of their summer's wanderings among the farmers and towns-people of the interior. No doubt many a Snyder county farmer regrets the day he met the Gypsy band to whom he traded a good, honest horse for a runaway or a kicker, and the fair maiden is wondering why, at least, some of the predictions made by the Gypsy fortune-teller do not come to pass, while the Gypsies sit behind warm stoves and rejoice over the fruitfulness of their summer campaign.

These people are mostly Germans, and among them I saw a number of faces I have often seen on the banks of Middlecreek. Here, as on the road, the men make baskets and brushes, while the women do a thriving business in fortune-telling. Thus they spend their winter, and when the robins nest again, like the Arabs they will "Take up their tents and silently steal away."

CHESTNUTT'S UNDERWEAR.

The daring assertion that I would sell Dress Goods, ladies' and children's Coats, Wraps, Carpets, &c., less than any man in three counties I now repeat; and include Underwear for men, children and ladies. Mary G. Banks' is the best place to buy ladies' and children's, but to those who still buy them at general stores I want to say you can save money on every garment by buying them of me. Prices of Red Medicated Ladies 85c for 65c; 90c for 80c; $1.50 red for $1.25; white, 75c for 65c; 50c for 45c; 55c for 38c; children's, all wool red, 25c; white 15c; gent's red, worth $1.50 for $1.25; $1.10 goods for 90c; red, all wool, 50c; colored 50c for 45c, and 25c. Don't freeze after reading these prices.

Home made rag carpet, 22c per yard; best all wool 75c; flowered carpet, extra super, 60c; Brussels 50c; 20c carpet for 12c; 75c kid gloves for 50c; $4.75 Jersey cloth coat for $4.10. Best Appleton 9c muslin 6c. $1.25 factory skirts $1.

Carpets traded on rags, eggs or cash. Remember there is only one cash store—Chestnutt—where you can buy these goods at these prices. Ask any one where I am and take no other.

Orders taken for turkeys. JOHN G. CHESTNUTT, Lewistown Pa.
