Thursday, Dec. 13, 1888.

Senator Ingalls denies that he circulated malicious stories about President Cleveland, and after this denial from a man who was never known to deviate from the strict line of truth all further controversy is ridiculous.

Says the Philadelphia North American: While the Soldiers' Orphans' schools of this State were originally intended only for the education of children of soldiers killed in battle, they have been extended from time to time to accommodate the orphans of soldiers who have died since, and this might be again done with justice by the Legislature so as to prevent the expiration of the schools in 1890.

Benefits of High License

And again Philadelphia is heard from on the High License question. A well-known lawyer of that city says that it is quite probable the license next year will be further reduced to the number of saloons to one thousand. Last year there were about 3,300 applications before the court, and these will be reduced to 2,000 next month.

Hiscock's Pension Bill

WASHINGTON, December 10.—In the Senate to-day Senator Hiscock, of New York, introduced a bill providing for the pensioning of soldiers and sailors of the late war who suffer disability, as follows:

All those who have lost both feet or both hands or one foot and one hand, or have totally lost the sight of both eyes or the sight of one eye, the sight of the other eye having been totally lost previously, or have been disabled by wounds or disease so as to require the constant aid and attendance of one or more persons, $72 per month; all persons who, in like manner, have been totally disabled for the performance of any manual labor, or have lost an arm at the shoulder joint or a leg at the hip joint or so near the joint in either case as to prevent the use of an artificial limb, or have been permanently disabled in an arm or a leg or hand or foot so as to be disabled in a degree equal to the said loss of an arm at the shoulder or leg at the hip, $50 a month; all those who, in like manner, have lost an arm at or above the elbow joint, or a leg at or above the knee joint, or so near the joint in either case as to prevent the use of an artificial limb, $40; all those who have lost a hand or foot, $35.

It also provides that all those who have been disabled, by wounds or disease, for the performance of manual labor, in a degree next inferior to the class totally incapacitated for the performance of any manual labor, heretofore rated at $24, shall receive a pension of $36 per month.

Sound Advice

We agree with the writer in the North American, of Philadelphia, who, in speaking or writing rather of the correct revision of the tariff, says in these blunt, plain words:

"To all Republicans we say, do not be deceived. The country will not allow any trifling with the question. It is of vital importance to the future growth and prosperity of the nation. You are to revise the tariff. But it must be done on broad principles, treating all sections honestly, protecting all home industries to such an extent that it will not be possible for foreign competition to destroy them or even to retard their growth, but not to the extent of making monopolies or trusts possible. If the party hesitates now, just so sure as the sun rises and sets will it be retired four years from March next into the oblivion it will so justly deserve.

"President Harrison has an opportunity that seldom falls to man. If he will call to his council men who represent the highest order of statesmanship, men whose names are synonymous with brains and honesty the mere mention of whose names inspires confidence, he will have the most glorious administration the country has ever witnessed. We do not want to see the Administration handicapped with men who have been before the country as candidates for office for years, nor those who are known only as political managers. The times demand big men, honest men, with a perfectly clear and unimpeachable record, and the country will not be satisfied with any others.

"The writer of this article is a straight-out Republican; not a Mugwump nor a Republican who votes one year for his party another year for a Democrat, but a Republican who has always voted for his party, who believes in his party and its principles, who rejoices beyond expression at his party's success, and because he loves the principles which govern the party, he wants to do what little he may to guard it from making a mistake. The country trusts us sufficiently to give the management of its affairs into our hands. Let us accept the responsibility in all seriousness and prove faithful to the trust. Doing this, the control of the government will remain in our hands for an indefinite period; failing to do this, the days of the party are numbered."
