The Old Doctors

Drew blood, modern doctors cleanse it; hence the increased demand for Alteratives. It is now well known that most diseases are due, not to over-abundance, but to impurity, of the Blood; and it is equally well attested that no blood medicine is so efficacious as Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

"One of my children had a large sore break out on the leg. We applied simple remedies, for a while, thinking the sore would shortly heal. But it grew worse. We sought medical advice, and were told that an alterative medicine was necessary. Ayer's Sarsaparilla above all others, we used it with mar-velous results. The sore healed and health and strength rapidly returned." — J. J. Armstrong, Weimar, Texas.

"I find Ayer's Sarsaparilla to be an admirable remedy for the cure of blood diseases. I prescribe it, and it does the work every time."—E. L. Pater, M. D., Manhattan, Kansas.

"We have sold Ayer's Sarsaparilla here for over thirty years and always recommend it when asked to name the best blood-purifier."—W. T. McLean, Druggist, Augusta, Ohio.

" Ayer's medicines continue to be the standard remedies in spite of all com-petition." - T. W. Richmond, Bear Lake, Mich.

How Horses Act in Battle.

"It is remarkable how quickly horses adapt themselves to the military service." said Captain Cox. "Every artilleryman knows that they learn the bugle calls and the evolutions quicker than the men as a rule. For one thing, they soon acquire a uniform gait, which is about the same as the 'route step' or the usual marching step. If the horses did not acquire the same gait as the infantry there would be varying distances between the different arms of the service-that is, between the infantry and the cavalry, artillery and the commanders and their escorts.

"In the drills in the artillery service the horses will themselves preserve their alignment as well as their infantry. I shall always remember one illustration of this trait which I noticed at an exciting and critical period of a battle. In order to save some of our infantry from being surrounded and captured, I quickly mounted the connoncers on the guns and put the whole battery at a dead gallop across a stretch of meadow about half a mile wide. I was quite accustomed to such sights, but when we were half way across the field I noticed the array and for a moment I was lost in admiration of the magnificent picture. Every driver was plying whip and spur, the great guns were rocking and thundering over the ground, and every horse, reeking with foam, and full of animation and excitement. was straining every muscle as he galloped forward ; yet it seemed to me that a straight line drawn along in front would have touched the heads of the lead horses in front of the six guns. That was an artillery charge, one of the most thrilling sights in the evolutions of war.

learn the bugle calls. After we had been in survice some time my first sergeant asked me what call that was as the bugle blew some command. "That's a pretty question you ask," I said. 'How in thunder do you know how to march?' 'I don't know how,' he said, 'but my horse knows.' Let the first note of the feed or water call be blown and there will be a terrible stamping kicking and neighing. Once, in a terrible storm, our horses and those of several other batteries broke loose and there was a wild rush among the artillerymen to get horses in the morning. All was excitement and the horses were hard to get, but when I ordered the bugler to mount a stump and blow the feed call the horses all made such a mad rush for our battery that the men could hardly get out of the way quickly enough.

"It is surprising how quickly they

"When it comes to battle a horse seems to know everything that is going on; but he does his duty nobly, and seems to be in his ele ment. He enters into the spirit of the battle like a human being. He shows no fear of death, and it is singular that if his mate is shot down he will turn to look at him and seem pleased. A horse in my battery was once struck by a piece of a shell, which split his skull, so that one side was loose. The driver turned him loose, but he walked up by the side of the gun and watched the firing, and when a shot was fired would look away in the direction of the enemy, as if to see the effect of the shot. When a shell would burst near by he would calmly turn and look at if: When he saw his own team going back for ammunition he ran back to his own place and galloped back to the caisson with the rest. When the lieutenant pushed him aside to put in another horse he looked at the other one sorrowfully while he was being harnessed up, and when seemed to realize that there was no further use for him he law dow; and died. The lieutenant strongly asserted that he died of a

"At the time that Adams', Jackson's and Preston's Brigades charged me at Murfreesboro, some officer was killed and the brigade was driven back. But the fallen officer's horse had not been taught to retreat, and he did not. He just came at full speed through the battery, and I tell you he looked simply grand. He was a large, fine animal, his nostrils were extended wide, his eyes fairly blazed and he clutched the bit with his teeth as he came on. He came like the wind, and with his saddle-flaps flying he looked as if he were flying himself instead of running. Everybody gave him wide berth, and I called to the infantry that I would give $1000 to the man
