NEW BRUNSWICK

Once more it became necessary to change the date of the Anniversary of Incorporation of the college. It is now changed to Thursday evening, Sept. 26.

On Saturday evening, Sept. 28, the Y. M. C. A. of the college will conduct a special meeting of worship in the Reformed church in town at which time the delegates to the International convention will render a report.

J. T. Smith has made a great improvement to his drug store by putting in a glass front. Oscar Smith, a student of Pharmacy in Philadelphia, spent a few days in our borough with his better-half.

The Neocosmian Literary Society will have a public meeting in the college chapel on the evening of Sept. 27. The exercises will all be literary to which all are invited.

Our merchant, John Hoch, has just returned from the city and brought some new goods. Among the most noticeable articles brought is the college cap which the boys of college wear.

Old Pappy Cornelius of the Lewisburg Chronicle stands alone, head and shoulders above all country editors for irony and sarcasm. He woke up the other morning and found that the Democrats had held a State Convention and this is what he said about it:

The Democratic State Convention met at Harrisburg on Wednesday to consider what had best be done in order to maintain a fitful existence, nominate a man to head the ticket, grind out their resolutions, admire themselves, praise their party, scold at everything done and undone by the Republicans, &c. The nominee for State Treasurer is Mr. Edmund A. Bilger, of Clearfield county, personally an honorable, able and upright man, but his views are anti-Republican; furthermore, Boyer being his equal personally, and his superior politically, will be out of eyeshot ahead of him in the race for the key to our good old State's weasel skin. The platform consists of ten slabs, bark side down, and the raw surface full of splinters intended to distract any Republican who attempts any sliding upon it. But these splinters are fragile and harmless. The convention, with open mouth and closed eyes, swallowed them wholesale, and then fell reasonably well. Taken all in all, it was a most respectable convocation.

Having no hope for the future, they, like the Jews at Jerusalem, set up a wailing for the past, blubbering for the good old days of Grover, surnamed Cleveland, who, it will be remembered, was once President, and most likely will be the last one that the Democrats will be able to boast of.

"Occupation is the great relief for trouble. If man would work more he would weep less. Faith and energy fly out of the window when you let fear and doubt in the door. The trouble with another class of people is that they always want to be at the top. We can't all be up high. If we were the earth would be a desert. There would be no farmers. The good blacksmith sometimes makes the mistake of jumping into the pulpit. The good school teacher shuts up his books and goes around carrying an empty lawyer's bag. I don't blame a man for being ambitious. I wouldn't think much of a man who wasn't. But whatever be your station do your work well. The good farmer will get a crown just as certain as the good lawyer. God likes a thorough man. He likes a cabinetmaker who does not use putty, a milkman who does not serve half water, and a shopkeeper who uses a full yardstick, thirty-six inches, every time."
