FOR STATE TREASURER HON. HENRY KLINE BOYER, OF PHILADELPHIA. FOR COUNTY SURVEYOR JAMES MIDDLESWARTH, OF ADAMS TOWNSHIP.

Ingersol and the Soldiers.

It is well to occasionally recall the stirring days of the war of the rebellion. To the old soldiers, Ingersol's great speech will be read with no more interest than will be given it by the Sons of Veterans, and the thousands of young men that have become voters since the war.

The past, as it were, rises before me like a dream. Again we are in the struggle for National life. We hear the sound of preparation, the music of the boisterous drums, the silver voices of heroic bugles. We see thousands of assemblages and hear the appeals of orators: see the pale cheeks of women and the flushed faces of men; and in those assemblages we see all the dead whose just we have covered with flowers. We lose sight of them no more. We are with them when they enlist in the great army of freedom. We see them part with those they love. Some are walking for the last time in quiet, woody places with the maidens they adore. We hear the whisperings and sweet vows of eternal love as they lingeringly part forever.

We see them as they march proudly away under the flaunting flags, keeping time to the wild, grand music of war—marching down the streets of the great cities—through the towns and across the prairies—down to the fields of glory, to do and to die for the eternal right.

We go with them one and all. We are by their side on all the glory fields, in all the hospitals of pain, on all the weary marches. We stand guard with them in the wild storm and under the quiet stars. We are with them in ravines running with blood—in the furrows of old fields. We are with them between contending hosts, unable to move, wild with thirst, the life ebbing slowly away among the withered leaves. We see them pierced by balls and torn with shells in the trenches of forts, and in the whirlwind of the charge, where men became iron with nerves of steel.

We are with them in the prisons of hatred and famine, but human speech can never tell what they endured.

We are at home when the news comes that they are dead. We see the maiden in the shadow of her sorrow. We see the silvered head of the old man bowed with the last grief.

The past rises before us, and we see 4,000,000 human beings governed by the lash—we see them bound hand and foot—we hear the strokes of the cruel whip—we see the hounds tracking women through tangled swamps. We see babes sold from the breast of mothers. Cruelty unspeakable! Outrage infinite! Four million bodies in chains—4,000,000 souls in fetters! All the sacred relations of wife, mother, father and children trampled beneath the brutal feet of night. And all this was done under our own beautiful banner of the free.

The past rises before us. We hear the roar and shriek of the bursting shell. The broken fetters fall. These heroes died. We look, instead of slaves we see men and women, and children. The wand of progress touches the auction block, the slave pen and the whipping-post, and we see homes and firesides and school houses and books, and where all was want, and crime, and cruelty, and fear, we see the faces of the free. These heroes are dead. They died for liberty—they died for us. They are at rest. They sleep in the land they made free, under the flag they rendered stainless, under the solemn pines, the sad hemlock, the tearful willows, the embracing vines. They sleep beneath the shadows of the clouds, careless alike of sunshine or storm, each in the widowless palace of rest. Earth may turn red with other wars—they are at peace. In the midst of battle, in the roar of conflict, they found the serenity of death. I have one sentiment for the soldiers, living and dead—cheers for the living and tears for the dead.

It is hereby ordered that wherever cobbling is necessary and hereafter ordered by Council from time to time, the owners of lots are required to furnish enough proper cobbling stones and deliver them in front of their lots at their own expense, and the Council will cause the same to be put down at a regular and uniform grade as already given and to be given, from time to time, by the surveyor. Said cobbling stones are to be furnished within 30 days from the publication of this ordinance, and if not so furnished, the Council from time to time, each lot owner is requested to scrape and curb the middle of the street immediately in front of his or her lot, and take or haul the same away or cause the same to be taken or hauled, at his own expense. THE SUN. FOR 1889. AND FOR THE DEMOCRACY.

THE SUN believes that the campaign for the election of a Democratic Congress in 1890 and a Democratic President in 1892 should begin on or about the first of September. The SUN will be on hand at the beginning and until the end of the most interesting and important political contest since the war, during the progress of which we will secure the triumph of the Democratic party and the permanent supremacy of the principles held by Jefferson, Jackson, and Fillmore. The great fact of the year is the return of absolute power of the common enemy of all good Democrats—the political organization for whose overthrow the struggle has been going on for years, the memorable years of Grant and the Fraud Hayes, and Garfield and Arthur. It is the same old enemy that Democrats now confront, and he will be entrenched in the same strong position. It has been carried over by brave and hopeful fighting. Do you not believe with THE SUN that the thing can be done again? Wait and see!

The hope of the Democracy is in the loyal efforts of a united press, cherishing no memories of past differences in non-essentials, forgetting everything but the lessons of experience, and that victory is a duty. Probably you know THE SUN already as a newspaper which gets all the news and prints it in incomparably interesting shape, which chronicles facts as they occur and tells the truth about men and events with absolute fearlessness, making the complete and most entertaining journal published anywhere on earth, and which sells its opinions only to its subscribers and purchasers at two cents a copy—on Sundays four cents. If you do not know THE SUN, you will learn what a wonderful thing it is to be in the sunshine. Daily, per month, $1.00. Daily, per year, $10.00. Sunday, per year, $2.00. Daily and Sunday, per year, $12.00. Daily and Sunday, per month, $1.00. Weekly SUN, one year, $1.00. Address THE SUN, New York.
