When Mrs. Dillard was placed on the stand. She stated that for several years she had been intimate with Barrett, and that when her husband proposed to Mercer county they contemplated the murder, so that they might live together often urged me to leave my husband and go West with him," said s'e, but he proposed the murder, saying my husband was out of the way of the farm and we would then be upon it.

CLASS FOR THE MURDER. Barrett before the murder he came to me and borrowed my husband's gun; I engaged with me about the shooting, that on the next night he would engage and make the hen's cackle, and the noise was heard I should have investigated. In the meantime he hid in the big cherry tree and he was on. On the afternoon following he hid the gun and it had been fixed so that it would go off.

On the night I heard the noise in the room and awakened my husband, and taking the gun went out into the yard, followed by myself and our son, the lantern. When we reached the house there was something in it, and the lantern from me he raised it up. Just then there was a flash, and my husband fell dead at my feet, and the alarm, saying Dillard had been shot by chicken thieves.

It is now the cause of it all, and I am me and my life."

Mrs. Dillard broke into hysterical sobs, and she became calm after a few moments, and, quiet being restored, for Bartholomew proceeded with the examination and elicited the information. Mrs. Dillard had been promised a sentence if she turned State's evidence.

Bartholomew then proceeded.
