When Girls Should Be Silent.

Would a well-bred girl, possessed of any feeling whatever, possessed of the slightest sensibility or sense, divulge the fact that she had been proposed to by a man, and that she had refused him? I have asked the question of several girls, and also of several married women, and while their answers are varying I am confident, from what I know of their characters, that the well-bred girl of honor and sensibility would never, upon the weightiest pre-text, disclose what had passed between herself and a man upon so delicate a subject.
