The Fence Question.

The above question is old and stale, but there are some points that are not shown in their true light; and I, as a farmer, never desired to throw my fences down, and have never argued from that point. But it seems that the fence men all take that view merely to be sure and have a fence that will enclose them from all blame and loss that the farmer may sustain from cattle that will become benchy after having eaten all within their reach. Now, for the sake of argument, I say I am in favor of no fence. My neighbor D may say, "How will I—being a tenant—move my stock from one farm to another after the fences are removed?" What time do farmers, generally, move; is it during the summer months when the corn, oats, wheat and grass is ready to cut, or is it in March and April when nature is dormant? This part of the question could not stand for a moment. At moving time there is always help to excess, and what farmer would not lend a helping hand at such times.

In the State of Ohio the law is, after six months' notice the farmer may remove his fences. It is optional with him in regard to this law. The writer held a conversation with a man who has a farm and owns a farm in that State. This friend has fences, but he says there is no trouble at all to drive cattle, as they seem to know that they are to keep on his tract. He further said that when they pass an open gate or pass they invariably make a rush for the same, while on the beaten highway where there are no fences they are moved without any trouble. No one is forbidden to pasture his cow, providing he is on her while at pasture.

The slipshod "go as you please" farmer is no exception to this rule. Let any reasonable man take pen and paper and make a calculation what it will cost to make a tight fence of say two hundred rods along the highway and base his calculations on present prices—for farm crops deduct taxes, and he will open his eyes wide. I had a remark by an individual that he had a thousand acres in woods to fence them. The remark in theory was all right, but in practice he did not do it. If the individual had only a few acres he would fence them by the little extra work would pay him. I have reference to soiling, and I do not know of one man in my vicinity who has not the use of two or more acres of land. Tell about commons, somebody is taxed with this land. All the highways are included in the adjoining farms. All farmers pay tax on the roads, and the Supreme Court says you have no right to remove any tree or fruit of any kind if the farmer objects. The supervisor even has his powers limited, and can use only timbers and ground or gravel on that special road. And the Supreme Court of Vermont has decided that the grass on the highway belongs to the land-owner, and has so decided a case only a few years ago, and there is no doubt whatever the Supreme Court of this state would render the same decision. If it would not it would conflict with its former decision, and not this alone, but you will find yourselves liable for damages fence or no fence, should your horses or mules run on the highway and cause damage to teams.

The inevitable will surely come, there is no use to "kick against the pricks." One old custom after another is dropped and as time moves on, timber becomes still more scarce, taxes higher, and farmers must reduce their expenses by more intense farming, having most of the tax burdens to carry, for they have no property to hide it under. From a point of health, this question should be considered. The writer has seen cows on dung piles in the alleys eating all manner of filth, and this milk is sold and used by adults and fed to poor innocent children, and thereby the dread disease consumption is propagated in the human race. This is not a picture but facts, in the cow we called it tuberculosis, but it is all the same consumption. On most of these piles of dung all manner of filthy articles are thrown, and the cows for want of something better, eat this filthy stuff. Is it right to have poor dumb brutes about your premises, and not have sufficient food for them, and send them out to take it from others? If I have no money what right have I to rob or kill my neighbor for this much coveted article? None at all. I will be punished for doing such a lawlessness. Look around and you will find persons who have no feed visible and keep horses and cows that bother their neighbors the year round. Don't forget they are not any poorer than the farmer. But this is all a pretext. The real cause is carelessness and indifference of those who try to live, it seems, from the hard working farmer, without rendering an equivalent for it. Snyder county is an agricultural community, and no one can say with truth that the farmer is prosperous. He is drifting about, as it were, on a sea of adversity—trying to get hold of something to keep him from sinking.

DR. R. A. SIMPSON'S
Office No. 846 E. Market St. York, Pa.
WILL BE AT Home Office, March 1 to 13, 1893.
Eagle Hotel, Middleburgh, Pa., from Friday, March 17, at 10 o'clock a. m. to Saturday noon.

Dr. Simpson will examine any one who may call upon him free of charge. Knowing that hundreds are living out a miserable existence, with out medical aid, some because they have passed through the "old order" without relief, and some perhaps because they may not know where to apply, he feels justified in making these facts public. Satisfied that a number will also upon these plain truths and be fully rewarded by a cure.
Our system of practice may need some explanation. The remedies are principally vegetable, discharging entirely the use of Calomel, Mercury, Tartar, Eucaly, Arsenic and Antimony because they are disease-creating agents of the worst description. We are opposed to the use of general bloodletting in any case, believing it to be injurious to the constitution and often dangerous to life.
Dr. Simpson treats successfully chronic or long standing diseases of the Head, Throat and Lungs, Kidney and Heart, complaints; inveterate diseases of the stomach that have defied all other methods; those fearful diseases of the nervous system, arising from whatever cause; Scrophula, Dropsy, Fits, Fever, Sore, Rheumatism, Strabismus, Sciatica, Hemiplegia, Paralysis, Cancer, Strabismus, without the use of the knife and curel. Asthma, Hay Fever, Rose Cold, Winter Coughing, Catarrhs of the Bladder, All may be cured by this wonderful system, it not too far advanced. Bone and blood diseases cured when all other methods have failed.
Ladies who are suffering with diseases strictly confined to their sex can consult the Doctor with the assurance of a speedy cure without suffering themselves to the very often unnecessary examination. The doctor particularly invites all cases that have been given up by other physicians.

TESTIMONIALS.
Mr. Reuben Grubb, of Liverpool, Perry county, Pa., had a cancer on lower lip for several months and was completely cured by the treatment of Dr. R. A. Simpson, of York, Pa.
Miss Annie Koch, of Liverpool, Perry county, Pa., had a cancer on her neck, which was removed by the doctor, and although under the treatment of different doctors, the sore grew worse. It was cured by Dr. R. A. Simpson, of York, Pa., in one month. No scraping of the bone or cutting.
For many years Mr. Charles Allison, of Glen Rock, York county, Pa., had a cancer on his face below the eye. Dr. R. A. Simpson, of York, Pa., removed it by his chemical process. He is now well.

Dr. Simpson invites any one who doubts any of these statements to write to the parties and ascertain for themselves. These are only a few of the many testimonials obtained. The Doctor invites correspondence from a distance. If you will enclose a cent in stamps, I will remember the dates and call early.

SHOEMACKER CO.'S

Electro-Gold String Pianos.

AMONG the most important points of superiority of these magnificent Pianos is, that longer than those of other makes they remain in tone, and that, while many instruments, which at first give satisfaction, become flat and wiry, the Shoemaker Piano is still staunch and true. It is impossible to overestimate the advantages derived from the use of the Electro-Gold Strings. The ordinary iron-wrapped or so-called white metal-plated strings, which all other makers are still compelled to use, are immediately affected by atmospheric action, gradually destroying the power of the strings to prolong and sustain the tone, rendering them liable to easily snap and break. The remedy of this has been successfully accomplished by the use of the ELECTRO-GOLD STRINGS, which are proof against rust and emit a superior quality of tone.
We present the Shoemaker instrument in some of the most low priced and absurdly misnamed "cheap" Pianos, and adjoining ones have been flooded with; but to those who appreciate a Piano insusceptible of further improvement—an instrument to do credit to their taste—we confidently offer the SHOEMACKER PIANO as unequalled by any in the world and at the best prices, which will yield me a just profit.
