Of What Use Was His Strength?

Colonel Fred Burnany, whose ride o Khiya made him famous, was ambitious whea a boy to become the strongest man in the world. Appointed a cornet in the Royal Horse Guards at 17, he threw himself into the pursuit of muscle. When a preelse examination demonstrated that his arm measured round the blceps seventeen inches, his cup of joy was full. It ran over when, at Aldershot. he lifted straight out with one hand a dumb-bell weighing one hundred and seventy pounds, and no other man in the camp could perform the same feat. He once undertook to hop a quarter of a mile, run a quarter of a mile, ride a quarter of a mile, and walk a quarter of a mile in a quarter of an hour. He covered the distance in ten minutes and twenty seconds. A horse dealer arriving at Windsor with a pair of beautiful ponies that he had been commanded to show the Queen, took them first to the quarters of the officers of the Horse Guards. Some of these, by the way of a surprise, led the ponies upstairs into Burnaby's rooms. When the time came for them to go, the ponies would not walk down-stairs. The horse-dealer was in a quandary, but young Burnaby came to his help by taking a pony under each arm and walking down the stairway. He was barely out of his teens when he was acknowledged to be the strongest man in Great Britain, but he paid the penalty of success in wasted tissues and failing health. His stomach refused all nourishment save that afforded by ice-cream, and the doctor advised him to travel. Absence from daty for a long time the abandonment of dumb-bells, and the laying aside of his ambition to become the greatest of athletes restored bim to comparative health.

Fish Recognize Their Food.

It is a well-known fact that seaanemones have a sense by which they recognize food. This has been studied recently by Herr Nagel, at the Zoological Station, in Naples, and he has endeavored to localize it. Among other experiments a small piece of ; sardine was brought carefully to the tentacles of one of the animals; the tentacle first touched, then others seized the food and surrounded it. and the morsel was swallowed. A similar ball of blotting paper, saturated with sea water, brought near in the same way, was not seized. If, however, the ball was soaked in the juice of fish it was seized with the same energy as the piece of fish, but often liberated again after a time without being swallowed. Blotting paper saturated with sugar acted like the other, but more weakly. If saturated with quinine, it was refused. the tentacles drawing back.

New Idea.

A Kansas man, B. D. Hanna of Cowley, has a plan for preserving wheat in the bin free from must of weevil. In 1891 he had 1,000 bushels of wheat and placed it in his granary. He first placed a stalk of green hemp in the bottom of the granary, and for every load of forty bushels he placed another stalk or a part of a stalk of green hemp, covering the top, when the granary was full, with ten or a dozen stalks. When he removed the wheat one year later it was bright, plump, and without a sign of must, mold, or weevil .- Live Stock Indicator.

T costs more to make Royal Baking Powder than any other, because its ingredients are more highly refined and expensive. But the Royal is correspondingly purer and higher in leavening strength, and of greater money value to the consumer. The difference in cost of Royal over the best of the others does not equal the difference in leavening strength, nor make good the inferior work of the cheaper powders, nor remove the impurities which such powders leave in the food.

Where the finest food is required, the Royal Baking Powder only can be used.

Where the question of health is considered, no baking powder but Royal can be used with safety. All others are shown by official analyses to contain lime, ammonia or alum,
