

How He Trapped Her.
 Dr. John Erskine, a well-known Scottish divine, was remarkable for his simplicity of manner and gentle temper.
 He returned so often from the pulpit minus his pocket handkerchief that Mrs. Erskine at last began to suspect that the handkerchiefs were stolen by some of the old women who lined the pulpit stairs. So both to thank and detect the culprit she sewed a corner of the handkerchief to one of the pockets of his coat-tails.
 Half way up the stairs the good doctor felt a tug, whereupon he turned round and caught hold of the hand of the guilty old woman, saying, with great tenderness and simplicity: "No! the day, honest woman, no the day, Mrs. Erskine has sewed it in."—Spare Moments.

 The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in the last 100 years. It is Catarrh, Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to medicine. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and curing the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the system and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in their catarrh cures that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure, and for each bottle of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

Eating in Haste is like serving as constable and sheriff brought on dyspeptic trouble, although it was natural and healthy. Eight months ago I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It has cured my dyspeptic trouble and set me back in my age about fifteen years. I have advised others to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and they now rejoice over the good effect it has had on them. My wife had suffered from several attacks, general prostration and loss of appetite. She has taken two bottles and her head is clear and her appetite is good.
Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures
 all ailments arising from impure blood. It is a powerful purifier and restores the system to its normal state. It is sold by all druggists and is the only medicine that can be taken without any harm to the system.

DEPARTMENT OF MINES.
GOLD NUGGETS AND METEORITES AT THE FAIR.

Fac-Similes of Huge Chunks of the Precious Metal Worth Many Thousands of Dollars—A Collection of Meteorites from Various Quarters of the World.
 For the benefit of the uninitiated Chief Staff, of the Mining Department at the World's Fair, has on exhibition a collection of fac-similes of great nuggets. The case containing them is in the southeast corner of the gallery.

When the people come past and see the shining chunks of what seems to be pure gold they stop to investigate, says the Chicago Record. Most of them overlook the card "Fac-Similes" that shows the nature of the display. When they see the small signs, reading "Value $20,000," they gasp at the thought of such wealth concentrated in one spot. Then they get out note-books and take the full description of every rich piece in the case. And the descriptions tell very interesting stories of valuable discoveries.

Apparently the department was unable to secure data from which to illustrate the history of the American gold fields in this particular line. Most of the specimens shown are from Victoria, Austria, Australia and from the Siberian mines. One of the largest pieces is called the "Welcome" nugget, and is from Ballarat, Victoria, one of the great centers of gold production in Australia. It is a huge, rugged mass, reminding one of the cypress trees in a Southern swamp. Looking at it and picturing the feelings of the man who found it one can imagine the name given the find expressed the whole situation. The miner had been working for months, probably, and making little more than the ordinary wages. Then came the wonderful stroke of luck. He had struck a vein of gold and weighing 2166 ounces. It is not difficult to suppose that it was a "welcome" nugget. Close by is another mass, weighing 1717 ounces, worth $31,577 and called the "Precious." It also came from Victoria, in the Berlin district, where fortunes innumerable able were turned up along in the '70s. Another Berlin treasure came in the famous John's paddock and was found October 2, 1870. It weighed 1121 ounces and brought $17,450. It looks like the roll of gummy that glaziers take when they have a big job on hand.

 Russia's gold mines are the property of the czar, and that monarch sees to it that the big discoveries are preserved either in the original form or in counterparts and fac-similes that make valuable historic mementoes. One of the greatest of the Russian discoveries is shown in duplicate. It was found in the valley of Tashkeek Targanka, Ural mountains, Siberia, and the nugget itself is part of the collection in the Royal School of Mines at St. Petersburg. Its weight is put at an even hundred pounds, with a cash value of $22,000. It is very different in form from the Australian nuggets. They all take the solid outline, while this is rather thin and flat, after the fashion of a large pane, with warty protuberances.
 These are the best of the exhibits. Others there are with values ranging from $500 up, and varying in shape from the likeness to a molar tooth to fantastic copies of tooth-stocks. Just back of the array of gold is another collection of considerable value, though it might be hard to realize much from it in a financial emergency. That is because the value is scientific rather than coin current. It is a collection of meteorites and fac-similes of meteorites from the Ward museum. After a man has seen them he is inclined to think that shooting stars are good things to do. One of these aerial wanderers from Chihuahua, in the State of Chihuahua, Mexico, is as big as one of the Java summer homes on the Pleanisano. At a rough guess it might weigh two or three tons. Its outer surface is seamed and pitted with holes such as one sees in brass when it "rises" very rapidly. The holes doubtless owe their existence to just such an escape of gas from the inside as marks the process of bread-making. If a timid man had been in the neighborhood of that Mexican meteorite when it broke loose and started for the earth he would have thought some heavenly fanner had tipped over a load of hay that had caught fire on the way down.

 San Gregorio, which is also in Chihuahua, sends a contribution that draws astronomers and mineralogists as molasses barrel draws the crickets in the shape of a cone. Just as perfect cone, and could easily be mistaken for a gigantic sugar-loaf painted black. Like the other meteorites it shows where the gas has bubbled out of the molten mass, leaving the irregular holes that look like miniature volcano craters. It weighs about a ton. Its shape is attributed to the crushing effect of contact with the earth when it came hurtling out of the sky. It struck on rocky formation, flattening the base and driving down the apex into the shape of a cone, just as bullets sometimes spread at the base and take a conical outline.
 Mexico has plenty of company in the meteorite business. Cases are ranged all about the giants of the southern republic and represent numerous States of this country, as well as widely separated regions on old continents. Chile sends a small specimen; New Mexico, Kentucky, Arkansas, East Tennessee, Colorado are in company with Greenland, East India and Continental Europe. In some cases are cross-section exhibits, showing the peculiar steel-like stratification of the meteorites. Some of the sections have been polished, bringing out the figuring on the metal which in some instances looks very much like Damascus work and in others is almost exactly identical with the markings shown on laminated steel, such as is used for gun barrels.

The contribution from Bab's Mill, Green County, Tenn., is a grotesque imitation of a muskallonge fish, while the one from Wichita County, in the Rio Brazos region of Texas, bears a resemblance to a crocodile. The card saying it was once regarded and cherished by the Indians as an object of worship. The Indians thought that since it came out of the sky and got into their camp it must have been sent to them direct by their deity to serve as a warning and token of divine guidance.
MODEL SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING.
 The model Sunday School Building erected in connection with the World's Fair is thus described by the Chicago Record:
 High in the air floats a flag with an inscription that reads "The Significance of the Building." Beneath it on the dust-dusted sidewalks drift the restless crowds that ceaselessly move back and forth outside the Fair grounds. From the south come the sharp cries of taking and "markers" who stand before the parasitical sidewalks which have fastened themselves to the great Exposition. It is a common thing for some one in the endless column that is ever marching on Stony Island avenue to stop abruptly and look up at the flag. Usually he reads the inscription aloud, something of astonishment and something of reverence in his voice: "Jesus Christ, the Lord." The words stand out prominently. They catch the eye first, and hold the attention longest, so that a second glance is needed to grasp the significance of the strange flag. Another line of words over the first gives its full meaning. This line reads: "Sunday School Building."
 The parliament of religions has given greater prominence than usual to the building which stands on Stony Island avenue just opposite the north end of the California Building. All last week D. L. Moody's presence filled the building with thousands, drawn from the big hotels which are grouped around it. Every day Sunday-school workers and church people from all over the world pass through the doors, for the building is a working exhibit of a Sunday-school, although it is not inside the Matter of Health.

 Housekeepers faintly realize the danger of an indiscriminate use of the numerous baking powders nowadays found upon every hand, and which are urged upon consumers with such persistency by peddlers and many grocers on account of the big profits made in their sale. Most of these powders are made from sharp and caustic acids and alkalis which burn and inflame the alimentary organs and cause indigestion, heartburn, diarrhoeal diseases, etc. Sulphuric acid, caustic potash, burnt alum, all are used as gas-producing agents in such baking powders. Most housekeepers are aware of the painful effects produced when these chemicals are applied to the external flesh. How much more acute must be their action upon the delicate internal membranes! Yet unscrupulous manufacturers do not hesitate to use them, because they make a very low-cost powder, nor to urge the use of their powders so made, by all kinds of alluring advertisements and false representations. All the low priced or so-called cheap baking powders, and all powders sold with a gift or prize, belong to this class.
 Baking powders made from chemically pure cream of tartar and bicarbonate of soda are among the most useful of modern culinary devices. They not only make the preparation of finer and more delicious cookery possible, but they have added to the digestibility and wholesomeness of our food. But baking powders must be composed of such pure and wholesome ingredients or they must be tabooed entirely.
 Dr. Edson, Commissioner of Health of New York, in an article in the "Doer of Hygiene," indicates that the advantages of a good baking powder and the exemption from the dangers of bad ones in which the harsh and caustic chemicals are used, are to be secured by the use of Royal Baking Powder exclusively, and he recommends this to all consumers. "The Royal," he says, "contains nothing but cream of tartar and soda refined to a chemical purity, which when combined under the influence of heat and moisture produce pure carbonic or leavening gas. The two materials used, cream of tartar and soda, are perfectly harmless even when eaten, but in this preparation they are combined in exact compensating weights, so that when chemical action begins between them in the dough they practically disappear, the substance of both having been taken to form carbonic-acid gas." Hence it is, he says, that the Royal Baking Powder is the most perfect of all conceivable agents for leavening purposes.
 It seems almost incredible that any manufacturer or dealer should urge the sale of baking powders containing injurious chemicals in place of those of a well-known, pure and wholesome character simply for the sake of a few cents a pound greater profit; but since they do, a few words of warning seem to be necessary.

BOSSY ON A WINE JAG.
 A Florida Cow Overcome After Eating a Claret-Soaked Watermelon.
 Not long ago, when the mercury down at Ocala, Fla., was climbing near the top of the tube, two young men decided to agreeably surprise their young lady friends by a treat of iced watermelon for dinner, says the Capitol. After studying over the matter awhile they decided that an ice-cold melon was not good enough—did not begin to show their appreciation of the young ladies—so they went down into their pockets and purchased two bottles of the finest claret in the city, emptied them into the melon, then sent it to the hotel, with instructions to place it in a cooler place. This was done, and all would have been well had not the hotel folks decided to treat the guests to a fine melon the same day. The rich, wine-filled melon lay side by side with the melon flavored only by nature, and yet the sameness on the outside remained undisturbed. At the proper time the colored factotum was ordered to prepare the hotel melon for the table. (No one except the young men knew anything about the wine being put in the melon.) As soon as the knife laid the melon open the peculiar odor satisfied the waiter that it was spoiled. A brief consultation was held and the unanimous verdict was that it was no good. It was taken out and placed in the cow lot, where a mild-eyed Jersey lay dreaming the hours away. The bovine, knowing a good thing when she saw it, was soon on the outside of the melon, wine and all. Now, two quarts of wine is a pretty stiff drink for even a cow, and it soon began to tell on her, and for a time she made things lively, trying to stand on her head, kicking her heels, trying to waltz, tugging at the fence with her horns and acting as if she was half crazy to paint the town red in her own way. Finally the heavy debauch proved too much for her. She took the hiccoughs, staggered around a while, fell down and began snoring just the same as any other bum. Since then she has refused to eat plain melon.
 Then and Now.
 The first printing press, with the utmost diligence, could be made to print from twenty to thirty-five sheets an hour on one side only; the printing presses of to-day print from 15,000 to 30,000 in the same time on both sides.
 Soda for Mortar.
 Ordinary soda of commerce has been successfully used in France as a substitute for salt water in mixing cement or mortar during cold weather. The results have been very satisfactory.

Fac-Similes of Gigantic Gold Nuggets.
 The model Sunday-school building erected in connection with the World's Fair is thus described by the Chicago Record:
 High in the air floats a flag with an inscription that reads "The Significance of the Building." Beneath it on the dust-dusted sidewalks drift the restless crowds that ceaselessly move back and forth outside the Fair grounds. From the south come the sharp cries of taking and "markers" who stand before the parasitical sidewalks which have fastened themselves to the great Exposition. It is a common thing for some one in the endless column that is ever marching on Stony Island avenue to stop abruptly and look up at the flag. Usually he reads the inscription aloud, something of astonishment and something of reverence in his voice: "Jesus Christ, the Lord." The words stand out prominently. They catch the eye first, and hold the attention longest, so that a second glance is needed to grasp the significance of the strange flag. Another line of words over the first gives its full meaning. This line reads: "Sunday School Building."
 The parliament of religions has given greater prominence than usual to the building which stands on Stony Island avenue just opposite the north end of the California Building. All last week D. L. Moody's presence filled the building with thousands, drawn from the big hotels which are grouped around it. Every day Sunday-school workers and church people from all over the world pass through the doors, for the building is a working exhibit of a Sunday-school, although it is not inside the Swamp-Root Cured Me.

 Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 1, 1882.
 Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., Gentlemen—I am happy to state that by the use of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root I have been cured of bladder and kidney trouble. I had used many other remedies without avail. If you are disposed to use this letter so that others may know of your wonderful Swamp-Root you are at liberty to do so. The remedy was recommended to me by Mr. E. B. Morgan, of Lansdowne, Pa., who had been cured by its use. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root Cured Me and it affords me pleasure to recommend it to others. I am not in the habit of giving testimonials, but when a medicine possesses such merits as yours, others should know it.
