AWFUL LOSS OF LIFE

Over Two Thous and Lives Lost In a Southern Storm.

TALE OF DESTRUCTION

From Louisiana That Rivals the Stories of Wholesale Losses of Life by Flood and Earthquake in the Orient

The great storm between New Orleans and Mobile last week has passed and the loss of life. to say nothing of the destruction of property, is tremendous, From Bayou Cook, the great oyster field which leads to the gulf, it is reported that the settlements of the fishermen have been completely demolished and that the loss of life tas reached the appalling figure of Grand Isle, a summer resort, lying in the guif, is said to have been utterly destroyed, and it is known that the loss of life is large. Many people were there spending the seasoil. The hotel and the two long rows of cottages which constituted the resort are no

In the parish of Plaque Mine the villages of Sohemia, on the Mississippi, and Shell Beach, on Lake Borgue, were wiped out and at least four lives lost in each place. On both sides of the river the sugar, rice and orange crops suffered a great deal of damage, and on the west side the loss of life is reported to have been great. It is feared that the grand total will pale into insignificance the number of deaths reported from the storm which recently devastated the Atlantic Coast.

At Grand Bay, Ala., four churches were estroyed and the churches at Seranton affered a like fate. Houses have been scattered, crops raised, and desolation ap-

Train crews arriving at New Orleans on the Grand Island road, report the track covered with debres in which dead bodies are profusely interming ed, and one of the passengers asserts that he counted no less than 87 bodies on his journey to the city from that part of the destroyed district. The country throughout is a scene of wreck and devastation.

Tony henovich, one of the survivors, reports that 87 bodies had been found there up to the time of leaving, and from information volusteered by other arrivals, it estimated that 300 people perished on 1 you Cook and in that section of the coun-

The deaths at other points all the way from Bayou Cook to Grand Is e and Chen-ere, will swell the total to more than 1,200, scending to the best information now ob

At Grand Bayou not less than 26 perished. It is learned that the loss of infe on Bosarie and Linion Islands has been greater. No fetinite information has yet been received from Grand Island. The tracks are com-sletely washed away, and as there is no communication by telegraph, it is impossible to verify the report that there has been great less of life at that point. The rouses on Grand Isle are built on a ridge hat runs through the middle of the island and as many of them are sheltered by the rees, it is difficult to calculate what the resuit of the storm has been. There are only about 200 residents on the island, and no me has arrived from there.

OVER 600 LOST ON ONE ISLAND. over 670 for on one island, it is sighly probable that the greatest destruction to life occurred at Cheniere; a settlement of 1.400 people, mostly fishermen, on the mainland, west of Grand Island. Here he wind and waves dealt out death in an appalling manner. Bodies and wreckage re strewn everywhere and the pictures rom descriptions by one or two refugees are heartrending. The loss of life there is cariously estimated at from 500 to 800.

Matthew Schurb, of Goldsboro, just opposite New Orleans, was one of the surviyors of the Chemiere calamity, and arrived Wednesday morning, bringing with him a narrowing story of his experiences and the oss of life. Mr. Schurb went to the Island about four weeks ago with George Thompson and a negro bricklayer named Louis Roberts for the purpose of constructing a chool house. Schurb on Sunday night had an experimee severe enough to turn a man's hair tray, and when he reached New Orleans on Wednesday morning he showed the result of the peril he had been through. He was almost naked; what clothes he had were orninto shrets, his face was brussed and he had not yet recovered from the excitement he had undergone and the frightful scenes of death he had witnessed. He estinates that the loss or life on Grand Isle and ueniere Camina a and in the Grand Lake, Adams, Cook Chairn and Tristet Bayou ettlements will reach 800. When he left Theniere Island he counted but five houses tanding out of a total of about 300, while he land was covered with corpses.

The wind beg n to blow hard on Sunday vening and at 7 o'clock it had reached the proportions of a burricane. From that time on it continued to increase in velocity and is it increased the waves covered the land and got into the houses of hundreds of resiients of the island. By 9 o'clock there was in average depth of five feet of water, and it midnight a depth of 8 feet of water, while he current was as swift as the Mississippi i.e. when that mighty torrent is bank full.

As the wind increased the houses began off as though they had been shaved from rafters with a great carving knife. One by one the houses were torn down, crushin the occupants as they fell. Schurb, Thom; son and the negro bricklayer were in house in which there were fully 25 people all huidiest together and terror stricken to the mighty agony of the elements. Suddenly there was a fearful cracking of timbers and the roof caved in burving nearly every one of the party, only Schurb and the bricklayer escaping.

Schurb clung to some floating debris until he saw a light twinkling in a house. He broke away from the timber and swam to the house and was admitted. He had hardly entered when the structure went to pieces, and out of the 10 who were in it only Schurb a woman and a child got out. Schurb suc-ceeded in getting them to a tree, and there the party stayed until 4 o'clock in the morn ing, when the wind began to abate.

The negro bricklayer managed to reach a ole to which fishing smacks are usually tied, and clung to it during the whole terrible night, finally being saved. Thompso was lost sight of and was probably drowner Schurb says that while he remained in the tree waves washed over him that were mountain high, but he and the woman and her babe clung tenaciously to the limbs for support, and saved themselves from being washed away into the awful, howling gulf around them. The wind washighest about midnight and continued for a couple of hours. Then it becan to abate in severity until 4 o'clock when it was blowing with only moderate velocity, finally dving out to only moderate velocity, finally dying out to a light breeze. HORRORS REVEALED BY DAYBERAK When daylight broke the picture of deso-lation was awful to behold. Only here and there stood a house. Everywhere there were only brick foundations to mark where the homes stood. Trees lay prostrate upon the ground. Timber was lodged in piles, in indiscriminate confusion, where they had been thrust by the mighty rush of waters. Ruined chimneys ruggested stricken hearths; furniture, bestime, clothes, stoves, attehen utensils and o her household goods were scattered in promiscuous confusion wherever the vision was able to reach, and here, there and everywhere were the ghastly faces of corpses turned upward to the peaceful skies now bright, and bearing no traces of the terrible night.

Many of the men, women and children had lived through the night, but, mortally wounded and without anything to quench wounded and without anything to quench their thirst and no medical assistance at band had given up the struggle. There were broken arms and legs; bruised and hattered bodies, faces slashed out of all human resemblance. Many a pile of debris was the temporary grave of a family. Chentere lies across from Grand Isle and is separated from the island by Cheniere bay. Its head is stuck out in the gulf and when the storm came up the mighty waves of the ocean washed over the face of the sric en land and swept everything before them. Cheniere was even more thickly settled than Grand Isle. It was the home of fishermen and storekeepers, and it comprised a colony of 1,400 souls, with churches and schools and evidences of modern civilization. Nearly all its residents were white people, the Spanish race largely predominating.

Scores of bodies had already begun to show signs of decomposition. Under productions areas, for the safety of the rest the colony, it became necessary to take prompt steps to bury those who had lost their lives. The living were immediately organized for a wors of duty and charity There was no time to build coffins. If there had been there were no tools with which to construct them, no boards that could be construct them, no boards that could be natical together as receptacles for the bodies lying everywhere; so the living merely humed up spades and commenced the work of digring ditches in which to deposit the remains. Mr. Schurb assisted in the work and interred not less than 50 persons in a few hours some of them having not a mark them their persons to show what had caused upon their persons to show what had caused death; others were badly lacerated, PROPLE PERISHING IN THE MARSES.

Bebe Rando proved himself a hero. He was the head of a family that, besides himself consisted of his wite and two children. Their house had been torn to pieces by the hurricane, and they were in immediate peril of losing their lives. Just about this time the Weber had parted from her moorings and was sweeping down past the Cheniere with the ride. Many planks had been blown from her and were drifting ashore. Rando swam about in the water until he gathered sufficient to make an improvise fraft with this raft he succeeded in saving himself and family from a watery grave or worse it will never be known how many were lost in the storm. The mighty wavesswept with such irresistible force over the land and at such a depth that it is possible that and at such a depth that it is possible that many bodies and perhaps many who were still living, were carried into the marshes.

Unless steps are liken immediately to organize relief parties it is not unlikely that many will perish from starvation and thirst. The waves destroyed all the provisions on the Chemiere Island. The result is that fresh water is so scarce that it is not sufficient to relieve the thirst of the hundred that are dreds that are without anything to cat, and scarcely anything to wear.

$1,000,000 LOSS NEAR MOBILE. A dispatch from Mobile says: Reports of lamage by the storm are coming in slowly. Ratiroad, hipping and mills are the heaviest losers the amount aggregating nearly $1,000, 000. The loss of human life cannot be estimated. On Farmers Island only two farm houses are standing out of a total of 23.

These towns and settlements extend along the Mississippi from Pointe a la Hache. 43 miles below New Orleans, to the Guif of Bayou Baratara and the ovster reefs between there and the mouth of the Missis sippi and on the island stretching from the Mississippi to the mainland at Cheniere Caminada, Bay St. Lodis and Pearl River are in Mississippi.

The pecuniary damage, while heavy, is not so large as might be expected, as the sugar plantations and the richer positions of Plaquemine parish were not worsted by the storm, and it was the smaller farms and fishing settlements which suffered most

The damage is estimated as follows:

New Orleans $360,000; Plaquemice, par ish, houses, etc., $600,000; orange crop, $280,000; other crops $250,000; cattle, etc., $230,000; shipping, schooners, luggers, etc. $250,000; fishing settlements $40,000; r.ill. ronds $900,000. miscellaneous $13,000. roads $500,000, miscellaneous $350,000 Total $3,500,000. Between here and Mobile the amount of damage done is placed ... $5,000 and in and around Mobile $300,000 Grand total damage, $4,390,000.

ON MUSISSIPPI'S ERGUR Biloxi, Miss., is scarcely less than a wreck On every side are scattered vessels, pier, and bath houses. Those houses fronting of the beach were blown down or so badd damaged as to be uninhabitable. Up the town great trees were torn up, the streets were filled with debris of wrecker barns, carriages fences, etc. Many of the streets are so blocked with wreckage as be impassable. The canning industry, the leading industry of the place, has been wiped out, all the factories having been rither swept a say or rendered useless.

LATER DETAILS. The latest advices from New Orleans are as follows:—As the news from the outlying and exposed points on the guif comes in the great storm of Saturday night is shown to have been the most destructive of human life that ever occurred in this country Only Johnstown's terrible flood exceeds it in horror. As the figures now stand it is be fieved nearly 2,000 persons have been drowned or crushed by falling houses, and the property loss will the property loss will reach about $5,000,

Haif the population of the region over which the hurricane swept is dead. Ever thing is wrecked. One house in 10 is stand ing and the surviving population is left in the most destitute situation, without food or even ciothing, for the most of them were sleeping in bed when their houses were crushed by the wind or the waves. The deaths so far reported are as for

THE DEATH LIST GROWS.

Over 2,500 People Are Now Reported to Have Perished in the New Orleans District During the Terrible

Storm. The return to New Orleans of relief parties, sent out in all directions, confirms the awful stories of death and destruction previously sent out. A corrected list of those who have lost their lives to what may be called the New Orleans district, swells the total to 2.541. This will be increased some two or three hundred when news from the Louisiana coast is all in.
The only station from which returns have not been receive i as yet is St. Bernard on Ine only station from which returns have not been receive a sayet is St. Bernard on Lake Borgogne marsh. This marsh is a dead level with the ocean, more water than land, covering 1,200 square miles. Its only inhabitants were some 200 fishermen who lived in cabins built on piles. It is probable that all have perished.

Diblient Law.

In the early days of interior Missouri the late Judge E-- cut cordrood, cleared up his homestead farm, and was employed upon one side of gearly every case that came up, being for some years the only lawyer in the

He had no books except an old leather-covered Bible and an old volume or two of history, similarly bound, but had read law a short time in Kentucky in his youth. He was very small and insignificant in appearance, but became before his death a splendid lawyer and an honored Judge.

A young attorney from the East settled in the little country town, with his library of about half a dozen new and handsomely bound law books, and on his first appearance in a case he brought most of his library to the Justice's office in a fine, beautifully flowered carpet bag, popular in that day. E - was engaged against him, and, as usual, had not a book.

When his adversary carefully drew his books from his pretty carpet bag and laid them on the table, Elooked astonished, but quickly recovered his ready resources, and asked the Justice to excuse him for a few moments. He hurried to his homestead, half a mile or so away, and put his old leather-bound Bible and histories into a grain sack and brought them to court, imitating his opponent in laying them before him on the table.

The evidence was introduced, and the Eastern man, being for the plaintiff, made his opening argument and read at length from his text books, E ___ made his characteristic speech in reply, closing by reading law from his old Bible just the reverse of that read by his opponent and took his reat, putting his Bible on the table,

His adversary reached over and picked it up, and seeing what it was eagerly addressed the Justice:

"Your Honor," said he, "this man is a humbug and a pettifogger. Why, sir, this is the Bible from which he has pretended to read law."

The old Justice looked indignant, and interrupting the young attorney,

"Set down! What better law can we get than the Bible?" He then decided the case in favor of the defendant. - Green Bag.

Sheep-Shearing Machines.

So many trials of sheep-shearing machines have resulted in failure that the belief has become fixed that shearing by machinery is entirely impracticable This idea seems to be a mistaken one, as machines operated by horse power are in successful operation in England and in Australia. Heathen Outwitting the Davil.

A Chinese funeral never proceeds straight from the house of morning to the graveyard. The devil is always on the lookout for funerals and follows them to seize the soul of the dead man, so, in order to outwit the evil one, the bearers take up the body and start with it in a brisk trot, while packs of fire-crackers and pyrotechnics emitting a dense smoke and vile smell are set off just as the procession starts. Having thus deceived old Nick as to the direction taken by the bearers they run as fast as they can with the body, then sudlenly turn a corner and stop while more fireworks are burned. The fevil cannot turn a corner easily, and so, if really in pursuit, he shoots on by, and ty means of a good deal of sudden turning and stopping and a lavish expenditure of fireworks, the funeral procession generally gets to the grave in safety, while the old boy, confused by their movements and half suffocated by the ffreworks, is still wandering about in the city. The Ch naman who dies in the country is not in such good luck, for there is less chance to outwit the enemy. but by many detours it can very often
