Last Monday, Uncle Rob, and a chosen few-among which was your humble correspondent, left for the "Kettle" to close the deer season. We put up at the "Taylor" house, which was built more for comfort then for beauty, and has all the modern improvements. The sanitary condition of the house is unexcelled, and can't be improved, except, probably, by scrubbing the floor a little. Refrigeration was not overlooked, as it is one of the best cooling stations on the road, no danger of being over heated. Squire Baker, who is good authority on law, says, that this house is built according to the laws | Frains Leave Lewistown Junction : of nature. Well, we closed the season, but didn't kill any deer. The best we could do was to wound a season, but didn't kill any deer. The best we could do was to wound a season, but didn't kill any deer. The best we could do was to wound a season, the season was a season with the season was a season with the season was a season large bear. It was my good fortune to have the shot, but at too long a range, the distance was fully 250 yards. The bear lost considerable blood, but had no dogs with me that would follow, and so had to on Thursday evening dragging part of our anatomy.
