FAREWELL

With this issue of the Post we sever our connection with the paper—having occupied the position as editor and proprietor since December 1, 1882—almost twelve years.

We lay down the editorial pen with many regrets, for we have had a pleasant and happy life of it. We came among you an entire stranger, and took the paper when it had less than eight hundred bona fide subscribers, and before we had it three months our list had dropped below the six hundred notch. It was a hard task to build it up, but we met despair with determination and finally the tide turned in our favor, and now we lay down the editorial pen with the comforting assurance that our efforts have been appreciated.

From a twenty-seven column paper we raised it to forty-eight columns, from six columns home advertising we raised it to fifteen, and from six hundred paying names we have raised it to sixteen hundred, with an advertising and jobbing patronage second to none in central Pennsylvania.

We have sold the paper to John M. Steininger, long a faithful, efficient and trusty employe of the Post, and he in turn has sold it to Geo. W. Wagenseller and Arthur E. Cooper. Both gentlemen are residents of Selinsgrove, are active, energetic, honest and industrious young gentlemen. The former is a graduate of Bucknell University, Lewisburg, and has written for daily newspapers for many years, and the latter of Missionary Institute, Selinsgrove. Hence our editorial mantle falls upon the shoulders of gentlemen who will wear it with better grace than did the writer, and under whose management the success of the paper is assured.

We have purchased the Keystone Daily and Weekly Gazette of Bellefonte, Pa., of which we have already taken charge and where we will reside in the future.

These parting words are not spoken without regret. We feel that we leave many warm friends in this county, whom we wish we could take with us—but not being able to do this, we fondly hope that they will remember us kindly—assuring them as much in return. We have done the best we could—and there is not a line that we have written in these twelve years that we would recall and not a public act of ours that we would revoke. We made some enemies because we did not fear to tell the truth, and, although we bear no ill will toward any one, we make no apologies and ask no favors.

There is a matter pending now between the county commissioners and the county treasurer to which we called attention, which has not been explained and which cannot be explained—because it is crooked. We leave it as a legacy to the taxpayers of this county to see that a lesson will be taught that will stamp out bull-dozing and official favoritism for some time to come.

With these parting words we bid you all farewell; hoping that Snyder county, whose interests we always championed and whose virtues we always defended, is the better for our having been in it.

T. H. HARTER.

SALUTATORY.

In making our editorial bow to the intelligent readers of the Post, we do it with a great deal of humility, yet with plenty of ambition to maintain, and if possible to increase the utility, of this already popular sheet. The readers of the Post cannot lose so able an editor as Mr. Harter has proven himself to be without missing him. He has been called to a wider field to exercise his talent and the present management fully realizes that to please all the readers of this widely circulated paper is no easy task; but the new firm modestly assumes the mantle of control but firmly asserts its position as an advocate of the right and a denouncer of the wrong way of doing things. Both members of the firm have been born, bred and raised upon Snyder county soil and their sole interests are one and the same with those of the citizens of the county. The politics of the paper is no secret. It is Republican. Yet it reserves the privilege of asserting its honest convictions upon all questions affecting the interests of the people and the welfare of the public. It shall be our constant aim, and a vigilant eye shall be continually exercised, that no untruth be uttered in these columns and that nothing be withheld which properly belongs to the public gaze.

On the other hand, the paper does not propose to be meddlesome, but intends to pursue a straight-forward course which will merit the approbation and applause of an eager multitude.

To the people of Middleburgh who so generously extended the hand of welcome, and the many warm wishes for our future success and prosperity in their midst, we reply that we shall endeavor to show our high appreciation of their gratitude by serving them faithfully and well in the capacity which we have chosen.

To the newspaper brethren of this and adjoining counties we send greeting with the fondest hope that our mutual relations may prove both pleasant and agreeable.

In conclusion, may our readers permit us to add that the columns of the Post will be open for discussion upon all questions tending toward the public welfare. It shall ever stand as the exponent of what is right and honorable.

McCLURE.

We are sorry to state that I. J. Batdorf and family bid adieu to their many friends of this place last Tuesday and will again move to Shamokin where Mr. Batdorf will engage in business. They will always find a warm welcome here if their business permits them to visit us....Grandma Middleswarth and Grand-pa Ulsh are mending slowly...Opher Bowersox left for Virginia on Monday.....R. E. Stimely's sale of personal property took place on Friday....D. J. Dreese of Adamsburg, spent Sunday at C. H. Klose's....Rev. P. C. Weidenmyer will preach on this circuit another year. We welcome him back....Mrs. Jere Drukenmiller of Middlecreek, was in town on Monday visiting her nephew, E. M. Lambert....The flitting wave will soon strike this place and will blow things helter-skelter. Isaac Middleswarth's saw-mill and Isaac Dreese's two stave-mills are in full blast....How about the school bell? Has the money been collected that was subscribed, or will it be dropped again as before. The writer would like to see something done in that direction.

KRATZERVILLE.

Some of our farmers are nearly ready to sow oats and plant potatoes....Mrs. John Dauberman is visiting friends in the far West....An infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff. Dauberman was buried on Monday of this week....On Monday the Herald Bros. will start their new rollers in their flouring mill. Our citizens will now be enabled to secure good flour at home. Peter Klingler is studying pharmacy in Dr. Rothrock's drug store, New Berlin. Success to you, Peter, in your new venture...Frank Glass, Esq., of New York City, is visiting his sister, Mrs. H. S. Beaver....J. C. Klingler, who was sick for some time, is out again....Ben. Kline swallowed his false teeth one night last week. The plate lodged in his stomach two nights and a day, but after a severe strain he vomited it up. Ben. says his stomach isn't suitable for digesting such articles....Daniel Trutt moved his family from the farm back to town again. Dan. says he has a patent straight bass hook all complete for the bass season and we can look out for the six-inch bass and sun-fish....The sale of Levi Beaver was well attended. The best horse brought one hundred and sixteen dollars. CÆSAR.
