

CENTREVILLE.

Spring is approaching us very slowly and cautiously. So thinks one of our citizens who has already let about eighty quarts of little mions into their beds. So said a number of others who planted their early potatoes, that they had been tempted by the smiling spring weather of the past few weeks in the full belief that summer days had come again, as the song has it. But last week all was changed. The cold blast of the wild and woolly blizzard had ruthlessly rushed in and the month of March maintained his old reputation and marched out roaring his last few days like a lion. And now April is here, the same old way move, moving, moved. Yes, moving time, the inevitable has again visited us. Moving day brings every body to a common level. Even such an illustrious character as George Washington himself, may have skinned around in his stocking feet over the floors, to see whether Martha had not stuck his embroidered slippers into the rain barrel while packing. Landlord Hartman and C. E. Sampsel were in Middleburg one day last week. F. B. Bolig was to the same place on Saturday. H. M. Enders of York, did business here on Saturday. J. E. Bolig of Selinsgrove was in town over Sunday. E. S. Stroub and wife are visiting relatives at Hoffer. Nettie Marks and Gertrude Dunkelberger, two pretty girls of Swinford, were the welcome guests of Miss Elva Hartman, over Sunday.

McCLURE.

Sam Klinger moved in with his father; Ed. Hughes into the house vacated by Klinger; David Renninger into Hughes' house. Charles Wagner from Adamsburg to Holsuh's farm; Israel Spigglemyer to his farm in Decatur; Aaron Howell to his father; John Krick and Geo. Spreec to home vacated by Spigglemyer; Charles Wagner (Andy's Son) to Mrs. Lambert's house; R. E. Stimely to Bratton's house; C. Stimely to his father's farm and Bratton to Selinsgrove. Last Saturday C. Stimely's horses ran away with the big wagon. Nothing was damaged but a stove he had on the wagon. They ran about a mile. Miss Carrie Reitz closed her term of school last Friday. The schools of TROXELVILLE.

On Thursday, the grammar school of Troxelville, rendered a splendid program which had been prepared for the close of the school term. The school assembled at the band room, and marched two by two to the school house, headed by the Troxelville band. The meeting was called to order by Squire James Middleswarth. First in order was the singing of "America" and the way this national air was sung, went to show that the pupils of the school had brought their patriotism with them. The address of welcome was delivered by Miss Sallie Middleswarth, a mere tot; but her boldness, and clear ringing voice assured each one that they were truly welcome. Then followed select reading, essays, dialogues and speeches by some of the teachers of the district. R. F. Smith made the speech of the evening, and the skillful handling of the subject-matter showed him to be a scholar of high attainments. Frank held the large audience spellbound for a long time; his clarin voice was so appreciated, and his logic so forcible that the large audience could have maintained its strict attention for an hour longer. C. W. Smith's address was brief, but forcible. A. W. Gill, the teacher spoke upon questions of importance, that should be endorsed by all. The Troxelville band rendered excellent music, for which the school gave a vote of thanks. Simon Sipe, a decrepit veteran of the 148th Reg. P. V., Gen'l James A. Beaver's Reg., received a notice that his pension was suspended. This is another evidence that Hoke Smith has no respect for the men who helped to save the union. This week, Yost H. Krebs, Charles W. Bingham, A. G. Kaufman and the writer will receive 20,000 trout fry from Allentown, and will plant them in our mountain streams. The cold weather of the past week keeps our farmers from sowing oats.
