AN OLD-TIME INDIAN TERROR.

An Aged Indian Warrior Who for Ten Years Terrorized the Settlers of Arizona. They were talking about the present Indian outbreak when one of the party, who had been for many years a resident of Arizona Territory, remarked:

"I tell you, gentleman, that this Indian business is liable to become pretty serious before long. Why on earth the government don't enlist 5,000 men and have those red skins rounded up once and for all is something I cannot understand."

"Why, down in Arizona, we lived for fifteen years in a state of terror on account of the marauding band of Apaches that had things pretty much their own way all this time, in spite of all that the government troops could do to keep them in check."

"I call to mind particularly Old Victorio. There was a warrior for you. He commanded a band of some two hundred bucks. They were the Mescalero Apaches, and the murders, robberies and depredations committed by that band during those ten years in which they were on the warpath are almost incredible."

"Old Victorio was nearly ninety years of age when the trouble began. He ruled those red skins with a rod of iron in spite of his years. And he was paralyzed, too, completely paralyzed. He was only able to use his left arm a little, just enough to lift a cigarette to his mouth."

"He was constantly in the saddle, and had to be strapped on like a bale of goods. His band had the finest ponies to be found anywhere. They would sometimes appear at one place and in less than twenty-four hours you would hear of them at some place 100 miles distant. All throughout southern Arizona and northern Mexico Old Victorio continued his raids until the settlers finally gave up in despair. The government troops appeared to be utterly powerless in the matter."

"Why, that band of red skins would sometimes plunder a wagon train right under the noses of the troopers, and by the time the latter were mounted and ready to start in pursuit, they would be out of sight. The next day, perhaps, the wretches would tell of some fresh depredation committed by the same band in a section of the country over 100 miles away."

"This old war dog, however, was finally rounded up and shot. He died in the saddle, fighting to the last, and his band, what was left of it, dispersed. Of course the settlers heard of it and were delighted. Dismay followed, however, when Cochise took the field. This Indian ran things pretty much the same way for five years, and then came old Geronimo."

"The Indians of the Northwest are much more numerous and better armed. You may take my word for it, gentlemen, we haven't seen the last of the Indian troubles. We've hardly seen the beginning of them. The government will wake up to the fact before long, too."—New York Herald.

Both Wept. When Lawrence Barrett's daughter was married Stuart Robson sent a check for $5,000 to the bridegroom, Miss Felicia Robson, who attended the wedding, conveyed the gift.

"Felicia," said her father, upon her return, "did you give him the check?" "Yes, father," answered the dutiful daughter.

"What did he say?" asked Robson. "He didn't say anything," replied Miss Felicia, "but he shed tears. How long did he cry?" "Why, father I didn't time him: I should say, however, that he wept fully a minute!" "Fully a minute!" roared Robson, "why, I cried an hour after I'd signed it!"—Chicago Record.

Brisk Menagerie Market.

There has of late been a sudden and unprecedented increase in the demand for wild animals, not only for the continent, but for the United States. The stocks in most of the European zoological gardens have decreased of late, a shrinkage partly caused by the closure of the Sudan by the Dervishes. In America the popularity of the great menagerie at the World's Fair started the boom in wild animals of all kinds. Circuses and private menageries are competing with the zoological gardens and scientific societies for rare and interesting animals and the demand for America is far greater than for the continent of Europe. After five or six years of neglect there is such a boom in the wild-beast trade as is hardly remembered. Until the expeditions which Hagenbeck and others have dispatched into Central Africa, via Herbera, and into Borneo and the West coast of Africa, return, there is little to fall back upon but the average supply which arrives without system and in chance ships. A single purchase by an agent from the Philadelphia zoological gardens included a leopard, a hyena, a pair of cheetahs, a Bornean bear, antelopes, emus and other birds.

His Order.

A speaker who has planned an address for a multitude, and finds himself confronted with but a single auditor, sometimes fails to readjust his remarks, and the result is apt to be ludicrous. A little story illustrative of this point is told in connection with a former president of the University of North Carolina.

One day, as this dignified and stately personage was walking about the campus, he observed an unlawful assemblage of students at some little distance. He did not hasten his steps, but proceeded slowly toward them with his head down and his eyes apparently bent in contemplation of his own boots.

When this leisurely proceeding had brought him to the spot where the students had been gathered, only one young man remained, the others having precipitately departed.

The president raised his head and surveyed the solitary culprit with apparent severity, although the young man always contended that he detected a twinkle in his keen eyes.

"Sir," said the president in a commanding tone, "instantly disperse to your several places of abode!"

Difficult though the feat required certainly was, the young man executed to the best of his ability by "dispersing" without further delay.
