Shakespeare vs. Bacon.

Literary circles have been considerably agitated for the past few months over the claims of Dr. Orville W. Owen of Detroit, Michigan. The [illegible] Shakespearian drama. [illegible] Dr. Owen puts forth the [illegible] author has kindly [illegible] with [illegible] Cipher Story." [illegible] the privilege of the writer, during the last teacher's institute in Perry county, to present a paper defending the authorship of Shakespeare. In the absence of positive proof, we are reluctant to beleive that Shakespeare did not write the [illegible]

From the cipher, Dr. Owen interprets that Sir Francis Bacon is the author of the following: "William Shakespeare, Robert Green, George Peele and Christopher Marlowe's stage plays, The Faire Queen, Shephard's Calendar, and all the works of Edmund Spenser. The Anatomy of Melancholy of Robert Burton, The History of Henry the Seventh, The Natural History, The Interpretation of Nature, The Great Instauration, Advancement of Learning, The De Augmentis Scientarum, Our Essays, and all the other works of our own."

It is no wonder that literary people are moved. It is a sweeping and startling discovery. The cipher that Dr. Owen used is from the folio of 1623. It was photographed some years ago from a copy in the British Museum, and can now be bought in the original size for about $60.

The subject of the authorship merits a more extended discussion than our space permits. All shades of opinion have been expressed, but in the face of a cipher, it becomes a most difficult matter to sustain Shakespeare as the author of the dramas.

We would like to ask Dr. Owen, 1st, Why Lord Bacon did not give us better poetry in the writings we truly know to be his. 2nd, Why Bacon did not make the discovery of the circulation of blood known as a matter of scientific interest instead of concealing it in a cypher.

The book is published by the Howard Publishing Company, Detroit, Mich., and the cipher story is worthy of a careful consideration.

"What a Boy Saw in the Army"

[illegible] comprehensive title is [illegible] for [illegible] by Dr. W. Bowman Young, well known for Penna., his native state, as a brave and gallant soldier of the war for the Union, as also a preacher, lecturer, and writer of the highest rank.

The story is one of fascinating interest. Among the books touching upon the events of the great civil war, few that we have read are so graphic in description, so comprehensive and accurate in detail, so varied in incident, and so elegantly written as is this book from the pen of Dr. Young. To read it is to live over again the scenes and incidents of that tremendous struggle.

Dr. Young is master of a style as vigorous as it is picturesque, and his description of the battles, the seiges, the march, and indeed the whole paraphernalia of war gives him high rank as a writer of war literature.

His descriptions of the battles of Pittsburg Landing, Fort Donelson, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, and, above all, Gettysburg, are worthy of a place alongside the "sea fight" and "chariot race" in Ben-Hur.

Every old soldier should have a copy of this remarkable book, and every family should secure it and above all, every boy who loves his country and his country's flag, and wants to learn of the sacrifices that were endured in order to preserve the integrity of the Union, should not fail to read this book.

We invite the attention of readers to advertisement in another column.

A Soldier's Four Widows.

Illinois is just now furnishing the Pension Bureau with a peculiarly complicated problem. A soldier named Hall married a Miss Dailey, of Ashley, while home on furlough. He did not live with her after the war, but without procuring a divorce married a Miss Luckey.

By her he had two children and when discharged he lived with another woman. He did not marry her, but two children were born to them before he wearied of her and he then married Miss Ingram, of Mount Vernon. One child was born and then Hall deserted her and married again in the northern part of the State. One child resulted from this union when Hall died.

Meantime wife No. 1 married again without procuring a divorce and settled in Iowa. Now she, the children of wife No. 2 and wives Nos. 3 and 4 and their children have all filed applications for pensions and all of them, it seems, in entire ignorance of the existence of the other claimants. The question which bothers the bureau is who should get the pension.

Johnny Snyder of the News Item wastes nearly two columns trying to disprove our assertion that there is not more wheat raised in the United States than the people can use, but more than they can pay for. Every person knew he would fail and he should have known it before he attempted it. Probably he can explain the 1892 placards. "Vote for Cleveland and Dollar Wheat." The farmers of Snyder county would like to sell their wheat, but they are waiting for the Dollar. The manufactures would like to run full time and the idle laborer would like to resume work. They have been waiting patiently for Democratic promises to be fulfilled. When shall it be?

Right Arm Paralyzed!
Saved from St. Vitus Dance.

"Our daughter, Blanche, now fifteen years of age, had been terribly afflicted with nervousness, and had lost the entire use of her right arm. We feared St. Vitus dance, and tried the best physicians, with no benefit. She has taken three bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine and has gained 31 pounds. Her nervousness and symptoms of St. Vitus dance are entirely gone, she attends school regularly, and has recovered complete use of her arm, her appetite is splendid."
