Jod's Pills

Ice Cream in Oklahoma.

When the recent storm was over in Tulsa, Okla., the late householders, viewing the remains, were greatly surprised at finding upon the supposed site of the grocery a large and solid mass of excellent ice cream in bulk, melting rapidly away under the sun, but still good at heart.

Father Must Be Careful There.

Among the ill-fated of British Guiana, a page bids the father to be careful when a child is born and allows the mother to turn at once to her household duties.

Our Great Grandfather's Time.

Big bulky pills were in general use. Like the "bladderbus" of that decade they were big and clumsy, but ineffective.

Negro Murderer Lynched by a Mob in Ohio

A cowardly murder and lynching of the murderer occurred near New Richmond, O. Franklin Friedman, aged 80, the wealthiest man in Clermont county, and president of the First National bank of New Richmond, was killed Tuesday afternoon by a negro Noah Anderson.

BLOWN TO ATOMS.

A terrible explosion of nitro-glycerine occurred just outside the city limits of Franklin, Thursday. A man named Hag, a resident of Ohio City, was in a wagon loaded with nitro-glycerine to the magazines on the top of Bally Hill and was within 150 feet of the building when for some unknown cause the stuff exploded.

Twenty-Ten Fly Wheel Bursts.

The twenty-ton flywheel in the 10-inch mill of the Oliver Iron and Steel company, at South Tenth and Market streets, Pittsburgh, burst with terrific force, and, although the mill was in full operation at the time, no one was killed.

Band is Captured.

Two men were captured about five miles east of Mason City, Neb., who are supposed to have been impostors in the robbery of the Union Pacific express near Colfax, Nebraska, Wednesday morning.

Burned the Village.

A dispatch from Santa Clara, gives an account of a battle which was fought in the streets of Barajagua. A large band of rebels, under chief Rego made an attack upon the village which was stoutly resisted by the detachment of troops stationed there.

A Big Oil Deal.

One of the largest deals in oil production was consummated Friday, and the new owners have taken possession of the purchase. The property consists of W. L. Mellon's entire producing interest in Allegheny, Washington, Butler and Armstrong counties, and comprises leases on 14,000 acres of territory on which are 133 producing wells with a production of 500 barrels per day.

Salvation Army to Invade Japan.

George S. Montgomery, a millionaire member of the Salvation Army, is organizing an expedition to invade Japan and Christianize the inhabitants. His plan has received the approval of Gen. Booth, who will send a few recruits from London, and the party will sail in about a month.

CURIOS FACTS.

The picture writing of the Mexicans was a very complete system of recording facts.

The average sum brought by the foreign immigrant to our shores is less than $100.

The grammar of the French language can be acquired, by diligence, in twelve months.

Charlton County, Missouri, has a breed of chickens, the eggs of which sell for $4 a dozen.

One of Schweinfurth's disciples at Lexington, Ky., bit off the head of a live blacksnake to win a wager of $50.

Rats may be got rid of by studding their runways with dry bay which has been well seasoned with cayenne pepper.

Divorce came to a Kansas City (Mo.) couple as the result of a quarrel over the size of angleworms their canary bird should eat.

The song of the English male skylark is best when the female is on the eggs. At such times he sings to great heights and sings rapturously.

Raisin producers in California are trying to obtain seedless grapes for raisins. The famous seedless grapes of Corinth are called carrants.

The ink used in printing the Bank of England notes was formerly made from grape stone charcoal, but now it is manufactured from naphtha smoke.

The expressions "Hallelujah" and "Amen" are said to have been introduced into Christian worship by St. Jerome some time about the year A. D. 390.

The people of the United States use on an average 12,000,000 postage stamps of all kinds each and every day of the year, or a total of about 4,330,000,000 per annum.

In Holland it is customary when there is infectious disease in a house to notify intending visitors and the public generally by tying a piece of white rag around the bell handle.

At one time there were nearly 100 baths in Rome, some of them most sumptuously furnished and splendidly appointed.

The charge for an admission was but small. Gibson estimates it at but half a farthing English money.

Regular police were employed in Babylon 2,000 years B. C. Among the tablets discovered are found certain records believed to be reports of the arrests made by the "peders" of that far-removed antiquity.

Rev. S. H. Phillips, of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, was slow about coming to dinner when called the other day, and a young woman undertook to hurry him by sticking a pin in his leg. Blood poisoning set in. The leg has been amputated.

A large cave was discovered and partially explored recently by James Dillman, James Pelton and others, five miles beyond the lava on the road leading to Big Meadow, Oregon, on the Deschutes. The party explored the cave for a distance of four miles.

The Element of Luck.

There is scarce an intelligent human being who does not recognize the element called "luck" in shaping our destinies.

There is a family in Philadelphia that has been rich since 1839, and the third generation is now making in luxuries won for them by a "chance" as pronounced as winning in the lottery.

There was a firm here of three partners, doing a large Western business; two of them were excellent business men, the other a mere dead weight, and his partners resolved to get rid of him.

So they dissolved the firm, and taking the cash and bills receivable made him take his share in 300 acres of land in the northern part of the town site of Cincinnati. He kicked, but was ballied into compliance.

So they made a new partnership, went on getting richer and richer, while the other partner was making a poor living tracking on his city land. Then times changed. Lots in Cincinnati began to sell; the rich partners failed and died poor, while their victim grew to be a millionaire.

No forethought or sagacity could have under the circumstances brought about such a result.

Mathematicians have for a century striven to make a law governing chance, but such illustrations as the following best them:

The writer was once present at the following trial. A gentleman picked up a Louisiana lottery list containing the winning numbers, some 3,000 out of 100,000. He invited two others to put up $10 each, write a number, and if it came on the list it would take the $30. One man wrote these three successive combinations, 227, 7261 and 18,418. Each of these groups was found on the list, so he won $90. He put it all into $1 tickets and drew all blanks. Certainly no human prescience nor sagacity could order these things or change them.—Philadelphia Times.

Value of Elephants.

An ordinary elephant is worth $1000 or $4000, but those that have received special training are much more valuable. John L., the boxing elephant, for instance, would bring $3500, and Dick or Fritz at least $5000. A high price would be demanded for Columbo, the one elephant born in this country that is now living. Columbo was born fifteen years ago in Philadelphia. There was another elephant born in this country at Bridgeton, Conn., and named after that city, but it died several years ago of water on the brain. The body is in the Bridgeton Museum.—New York Sun.

Professor Dana left all his medals, diplomas, etc., to Yale University, to be added to its collection of medals.

A Popular Philadelphia Craze.

The people of Philadelphia are now in the throes of a "trolley" excitement which is peculiar to that city. It takes the form of long evening rides to the suburbs, where, in various resorts, they recede themselves according to need and inclination.

Usually parties of friends (or it may be a regular social club or lodge) make necessary arrangements with the trolley companies, and at the appointed rendezvous board the handsomely appointed and extravagantly illuminated private cars and proceed to the destination selected.

Some of the outings take on the character of impromptu affairs, which, with the banle of music, afford considerable entertainment and amusement to the residents and sightseers who throng the thoroughfares over which the excursionists pass.

In many places Chinese lanterns and bunting assist in lending a carnival aspect to the occasion. On one trolley as many as seventy or eighty parties are out every evening.

The cost of these trips is inconsiderable. While the charge varies according to route, ten dollars per car per night is about the average.

This makes the expense per capita very light. The craze commenced last summer, but bids fair to reach greater proportions this year than ever before.—Frank Leslie's Weekly.

A Brave Veteran.

A well-known inmate of the Hotel des Invalides in Paris has just passed away. The name of the old pensioner was Joseph Schmidt, and he was eighty-two years of age.

According to all accounts he greatly distinguished himself in the Crimean campaign. At Balaklava he was corporal-trumper in the Fifty-fourth Line Regiment.

Being stationed in the advanced posts, he had strict orders not to sound his bugle, but seeing the Russians silently approaching the French ranks, he disobeyed his instructions and gave warning of the approach of the enemy.

After the engagement, his commanding officer threatened to have him shot for disobedience, but the culprit gloried in the offense. "Shoot me if you like," he said, "but I am sure of having done my duty." At the taking of the Malakoff he was wounded in the face by a piece of shell, in the arm by a bayonet and in the leg by a bullet.

A few years ago he received the universal distinction, for a poor retired soldier, of the Cross of the Legion of Honor. The distinction was received without any modesty. "I have earned it," said Schmidt (literally, "I have not stolen it").

The funeral of the veteran was made the occasion of an impressive military ceremonial.—London Daily News.

Some Peculiarities of Icebergs.

Derelicts and icebergs are among the dangers to which vessels are constantly exposed, the latter being, perhaps, the more formidable of the two, because there are more of them at certain seasons, and there is no telling when one of these monsters may be seen in sight.

An ordinary iceberg shows one-ninth of its bulk above water. During the present season a number of these masses of ice, at least a hundred feet high, have been encountered by steamships.

It is scarcely possible to imagine an iceberg with nine hundred feet of its bulk below water. One captain reports having seen an enormous field of ice at least three hundred feet high and two thousand feet long. It had evidently but just tamed over, as the upper portion was full of sharp angles and points, and the water was trickling down its side.

One of the greatest dangers from icebergs is being in their vicinity when they turn over. The sea currents wash and melt them into all sorts of fantastic figures and points. They melt below so much more rapidly than above that the center of gravity becomes disturbed, and they turn with tremendous force. Sometimes the disturbance is almost equal to a field wave, and is sufficient to upset any small craft that may be in its way.—New York Ledger.

Copper Medals for Inventors.

As an incentive to inventive genius, John Scott, a philanthropic Statesman, who apparently had no other interest in Philadelphia than that aroused by a profound admiration of the character of Benjamin Franklin, created a fund, many years ago, the income of which was to be used in premiums to be distributed among ingenious men and women who made useful inventions, and about which which shall be given a copper medal.

Scott provided that the fund should be intrusted to the Managers of the Franklin Fund. Out of the invested capital of the trust, which now amounts to $51,200, there were distributed last year $350 in premiums, and nineteen medals were awarded.

Scott also emulated Franklin in creating a fund to be applied to the same purposes as the legacy of Dr. Franklin—loans to young married ladies. The invested capital of this latter fund now aggregates $24,250.—Philadelphia Press.

A Striking Tandem Pair.

There is a striking tandem pair seen in this region occasionally. In this case the tandem is a blessing, for the chances are that neither would be able to ride a bicycle, at least it would be impossible for one of the pair dangerous for the other.

The young man is handsome in form and features, but he is blind, while the young woman, a really pretty maid, is deaf and dumb. They make good time upon a tandem, she riding in front and guiding the wheel, while his keen ear detects the rattle of a wagon or other conveyance. Their happy faces show what a blessing and comfort cycling is to them.—New York Tribune.

How weak

the soap and water seems when you begin your washing! You don't get any strength out of it till the work is about done.

Plenty of hard work and rubbing and wear and tear, even then—but more of it at the beginning; when the water is weakest.

Now with Pearline, the water is just as strong at the beginning as at the end.

This is one of the reasons (only one) why Pearline acts so much better than soap, in all washing and cleaning. Use no soap with it.
