Fire Protection

"Because of the inadequate protection given against fire M. P. Moller, owner of the burned organ works, will likely sue the city of Hagerstown for damages."

We clip the above extract from one of our exchanges. This presents a new aspect of the fire protection problem. A borough is required to afford ample protection to the property of citizens. Suppose a fire would break out and destroy $40,000 or $59,000 worth of property and the same would be covered with abort $20,000 insurance. This would leave a legitimate claim of the losers against the borough for $20,000 or $30,000. Does any one claim that this would be cheaper than to pay $4000, to build a good system of water works? No, certainly not and no one will attempt to establish such a claim. The chief trouble lies in the fact that everybody trusts to that he still had a firm grasp upon stam, for Loss Haven, and s 25pm for William, tor Eric and Canadaligua, 540pm, For Renovo and Elmira. 540pm, For Williamsport. Sumary 511am, for Eric and Canadaligua, 5540pm for Williamsport. luck, simply hoping and trusting the reins of the government of the that no fire will occur. This would be well enough if there were probabilities that there woud be no fires, but such is not the case. There is constant danger of fire and a large fire would burden the taxpayers so heavily that there would be little hope of escaping the debt that would fall upon the borough for damage claims.

S an' Quay, the Victor.

The Republican Battle.

The Republican convention last week marked the closing scenes the most bitter factional conte ever waged in political circles. N withstanding this the convent was of the most harmonious natu The caucuses of both factions Tuesday night revealed conclusi ly that the strength lay with Ser ator Quay. All kinds of nasty mors were afloat about two conve tions, others that Gilkeson l packed the Opera House wi administration sympathizers and that the Quay people would not be admitted. These stories tended to increase the feeling that was already too bitter. Early on Wednesday morning the story reached our ears that a compromise had been effect. ed. Such was the case. When the 9 35 a m 102, 1 33, 4 38 and 11 16 p m convention met the test vote of the factions was made for temporary chairman. Congressman J. B. Robinson was the nominee of Mr. Quay and Col. Henry Hall the representative of the administration people. The vote stood, Robinson, 163; Republican party. This was all that Senator Quay had to accomplish so far as his personal desires were concerned and now his next point to accomplish was harmony. He therefore put in nomination for the Superior Court, the judges now serving by the grace of the Governor.

Gilkeson then asked the privilege of the floor, admitted that the vote al-ready taken was a death knell to his own aspirations, and after withdraw-ing as a candidate for State Chair-man, he placed Senator Quay in man, he placed Senator Quay in man, he placed Senator Quay in nomination and asked that the man from Beaver be given 'a unanimous election. A good strong platform man dented endorsing high tariff. was adopted endorsing high tariff, and Baltimore.

enator was assured, that as Hast-ings had gone back on promises the elegation from this county would e in line for the Senator. Philadelphia and Pittsburg, John Wanamaker, and a host of other capitalists. The moneyed men were against him but the sovereign power, the people, was with him. The Senator won against all odds. He has proven beyond a doubt that he still has control of the Republican organization of the State. It is remarkable how anxiously this battle was observed by the people of every State in the Union.

Senator Quay promised purity in politics and the punishment of all who use bribery or money in securing political prestige. He had a clause inserted to that effect in the platform adopted at the convention last week. Besides, he has proven that in modern politics a man must abide by his promises if he would succeed. This Senator Quay has always done. He wanted to be the leader, not of a faction, but of the entire party. So after he secured a majority of the delegates, he healed the sores, cemented the broken ranks and marched away the triumphant leader of an unbroken column.

Rohrbach Betrayed.

Lloyd T. Rohrbach, candidate for the State Treasurership, was betrayed by the Hastings people a few hours before the convention, the Pittsburg delegation being the first to break away, despite the solemn assurance of Governor Hastings at the caucus the night before that providing the Northumberland delegates would be in line for the combine, Rohrbach would receive the support of the administration.

All the leaders of the combine were present and when Knight, of Sunbury, one of Mr. Rohrbach's delegates, arose and asked the caucus to indorse Mr. Rohrbach, Magee, Martin and Hastings said that it was not necessary as the vote in convention would suffice.

Third street entrance sat six large men, (combiners) stationed on both close self-addressed stamped envelsides of the hall way. The compro- ope. mise had already been effected and we were supplied with a Gilkeson Press Ticket that bore the chairman's signature and the impress of a seal made for the occasion. The guards had as yet no official information concerning the compromise but no resistance was offered to holders of Gilkeson's cards. During the entire night over 100 stalwart men from Pittsburg had charge of the Opera House under the direction of Chief of Police O'Mara of Pittsburg. These men were still in charge of the Opera House when your correspondent entered. They were soon asked to retire and they promptly obeyed the request. After the convention adjourned everybody yelled. the delegations marched through the streets. The delegates and shout ers rushed to the depots and left the city. Everybody seemed to be satisfied except the democrats. It was not the harvest time for them that they expected. All sores were healed and the grand old party was again united and now stands as a solid bulwark against Democratic oppression.
