Who Were They ?

A. A. Ulsh On Monday morning of last week while shifter crow was lying at the west end of the canal bridge, with train, one of the train hands saw three men approach the cinder bank Wm. Benfer and dig three holes into the same, after this was completed, they put J. F. Felty something into the excavations and then covered them up and left. After they had disappeared the employes went to the bank and found where the holes had been dug. He removed from one of them a 32 cali ber revolver, from the other some J. F. Good dynamite, caps, three drills, fuse and a slow match, and in the other Allen Snook he found a bottle in which he Y. H. Krebs thought was liquor, and which he left.
