NATIONAL BANK VICE-PRES.

A Most Important and Distinguished Testimonial For Dr. Greene's Nervura.

Hon. J. H. Hastings, Judge of County Court, Senator, and Vice-Pres. National Bank, Tells the People to Use Dr. Greene's Nervura to be Cured.

HON. J. H. HASTINGS, VICE-PRESIDENT NATIONAL BANK OF WATERBURY, VT.

You are sick and out of order and want to get well. To get well you desire to take the remedy which will surely cure you—the one which is strongly recommended by some one in whom you have perfect belief and confidence. Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the medicine which will surely cure you. And here is the strongest possible recommendation to use it by one of the most eminent and distinguished Judges in this country, Hon. J. H. Hastings, of Waterbury, Vt., an Associate Judge, Senator in the Vermont Legislature, Vice-President and Director of the Waterbury National Bank, and Treasurer and Trustee of his town. Such is the exalted standing of the famous Judge and able Financier who is enthusiastic in praise of the wonderful curative powers of Dr. Greene's Nervura, who has used it with most remarkable benefit in his own family and who tells you that he has known so many cases cured by this grand medicine, that he advises you to use it by all means, if you wish to get well. Judge Hastings says: "I have heard Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy most highly recommended by my friends and neighbors who have used it, and know of several decided cures where people have been in a very feeble state of health and had failed to get relief from the usual sources. "A lady who lived in my family has often spoken of the wonderful good

SHE PAINTED LI.

Miss Ethel Mortlock of London Enjoys This Method. While in England Li Hung Chang did quite the delightful thing—he arranged to sit for his portrait, and to a woman artist in the bargain. Miss Ethel Mortlock of London is the painter thus honored, but for that matter she has received high honors before. She has painted the portrait of every ambassador who has come to London; her studio house is the rendezvous of all those distinguished in art and letters.

and, though young, she is famous. When she was 16, she had a portrait hung "on the line" at Burlington House. Miss Mortlock met Li at Lord Salisbury's house, and Salisbury arranged for the sittings. The portrait is almost finished, and the canvas, which is already framed, is of enormous size, as the picture is life size. When Li went to Miss Mortlock's studio, he was attended by his whole suite. He brought her a magnificent bunch of purple and white asters, tied with yellow ribbon, a roll of silk and a curious Chinese artist's palette of jade. Li expressed a wish that Miss Mortlock should go to China and paint his wife and the empress. He told her he liked English women because "they did not put dirt on their faces." Evidently Li does not understand artful occidental cosmetics.

Education's Strides.

Will J. Monroe, in The Journal of Education, has published a series of suggestive articles on the "Higher Education of Women in Europe." He finds that no nation offers women such educational opportunities as they enjoy in the United States. Germany he pronounces two centuries behind us. In Paris there are more foreign women students than elsewhere. England is entitled to second consideration. The Scandinavian countries, Finland and even Russia are in advance of Germany, Austria or Hungary. Holland and Belgium admit women to university degrees, but Spain and Portugal have done little for their higher education. In Roumania women are admitted to the universities. In Switzerland not only the universities, but the polytechnic schools, are open to women. In Italy, while women are excluded as students, they have been college professors for centuries. The darkest spots—the deserts as regards the higher education of women—are Germany, Austria, Hungary and Turkey. In the last named empire, except in the schools of the missionaries, women have no educational opportunities whatever.

Women and Newspapers.

"Women are accused of not reading the newspapers," remarked a man recently, "but I have noticed that at least on the cars they read them much more than was formerly the case. On my daily ride into town from a suburban village I notice that the women who chance to be on the train are almost without exception reading a morning paper as eagerly as the men. At a summer resort where I spent a few weeks I noticed the newsstand was much patronized by the women of the place. If, as they say, magazines have got to yield to the growing demand and the better supply of newspapers, women are going to help in the revolution quite as much as men."—New York Times.

The Women of Norway.

Professor William James of Harvard says that in Norway the life of the women has been entirely revolutionized by the use of the ski, or snowshoe, as a sport for both sexes. As a result, they are "not only saying goodby to the traditional feminine pallor and delicacy of constitution, but are actually taking the lead in every educational and social reform." He believes that tennis, skating and even the bicycle craze among our own girls will lead to a sounder and heartier moral tone in American society.—Congregationalist.

Closets and Storerooms.

In the fall cleaning of closets and storerooms the best thing to wash the walls and shelves with is a strong, hot solution of alum water. A brush should be used for the purpose, as that will reach every crack and crevice. Hot alum water is a good eradicator for all sorts of pests and will also kill the eggs, while hot water and soap seem to aid in hatching them.

A Plucky Woman.

Recently, at Andes, N. Y., Miss Alice York followed on her bicycle a tramp who had stolen a watch and pocketbook from her house. She chased him for nearly a mile and compelled him at the point of a revolver to give up the booty. The watch was valued at $150, and the pocketbook contained $50.

A Handsome Hat.

A handsome leghorn hat has black and green tulle draped around the crown, with rich pink and red roses on the brim as well as hidden underneath the tulle, this diaphanous fabric reappearing on either side in aigret form, with on the left a spray of pink and red roses.

WAGE WORKERS in cities and farm laborers should bear in mind this condensed and free silver argument of Senator Gray, of Delaware: "An increase of prices is equivalent to a decrease in wages."

THE Boy Orator of the Platte is so named because of his stammering to that river, which, though very long, is only six inches deep, but very wide at the mouth. The only point of difference is that the river sometimes dries up.

UNDECIDED VOTES: In answer to your question, the Maine election means that the east won't have free silver and that the old flag of protection and honest dollars will float and will float over our land.—Irwin Republican.

FOUR years ago the working man was appealed to to vote the prices down of things he consumed. This year he is appealed to by the same party to vote up the price of things he consumes. What kind of a party is that which changes its principles with every passing breeze and catches hold to every new craze that comes along. The American people voted for a change four years ago, and got hard times and the free soup house, with less work and less wages, and often no work and no wages for a laboring man. Going to try the experiment of free silver now, are you? Haven't you had enough of experiments? If you want the good times of the back again vote for the principles that made those good times, sound money, protection and reciprocity.

MR. BRYAN makes the mistake of supposing that thousands who never expect to be candidates for high honors do not understand him as well as or even better than he understands himself. To the thoughtful persons the purposes set forth in the Chicago platform, if carried into effect, would be the extinction of honor and honesty, and inaugurate an era of sense beyond anything on record. If the opening of Bryanism is not to be derived from the language of its founder and exponent, it has no significance beyond sounding phrase. But it has a meaning, and its appeals to whatever is crooked in human nature reveals that meaning. To say that Mr. Bryan is sincere only makes it a more formidable menace. The worst crimes have been committed in the name of sincerity.

The question now is, what are the people of the United States going to do about the only thing offered to them by Mr. Bryan is a depreciated currency, a repeal of the doctrine of paramount state rights and packing of the supreme court last resort with men who will study to carve a body of revolutionists with particular reference to the constitution. In offering cheap money they appeal to the cupidity and lack of scruple of the vicious class, which watched opportunity during the civil war to trouble in the rear of the Union ships. In their attack upon the supreme court they appeal to all foes of government law, those who would rob by law as well as those who rob in defiance of law. Bryanism, therefore, seems to cover the eyes for whom law is made, and whose stance in the absence of restrictive legislation would introduce anarchy and its terrible disorders.

SENATOR SHERMAN, 1868: "No single measure will tend in this direction more than the adoption of a standard international standard of value, which all products may be measured, and in conformity with which the coin of a country may go with its into every sea and buy the products of every nation without being counted by the money changers."

A WORD TO LABOR.

It is Only One Certain Way to Advance the Wages of Labor. Men who vote to bring their work competition with the work of foreign laborers must expect to bring their wages level with the labor of that foreign nation. They must not expect that American manufacturers can pay higher wages than are paid by foreign manufacturers. If the American product is sold for the same price as the foreign product is, they must get up a strike for higher wages, and then go to the polls and vote admitting the products of foreign labor as a species of lunacy which is equal. We say to the men who so stoutly oppose the use of the army to show riots: "Put them down your vote to reserve American markets for American products, and there will be no cause for strikes to raise wages. We will advance as the prices of manufactured goods advance, and not any more."—Meadville Tribune.

SENATOR SHERMAN, 1868: "No single measure will tend in this direction more than the adoption of a standard international standard of value, which all products may be measured, and in conformity with which the coin of a country may go with its into every sea and buy the products of every nation without being counted by the money changers."

A Muddler.

Senator Bryan says he is willing to be called an agitator. The inconsistencies of recent speeches are likely to win him the sobriquet of the muddler. Brought No Credentials. Mr. Bryan went down into Kentucky claimed to be a Democrat, but he takes anything to prove his claim. (N. Y. News.)
