GOOD TIMES COMING.

Price of Wheat Up, and Will Keep Going Up.

$1.00 A BUSHEL EXPECTED.

Corn, Flour, Oats and Cereals Generally Are Advancing.

THE DULL TIMES NEARLY OVER.

After McKinley is Elected There Will be Such a Boom in All Kinds of Business that the People Will Hardly Know Where They're At.—Some Facts and Figures to Prove That This is Not Mere Guess Work.

The wheat market continues to make forward strides. This makes a rise of 21 cents per bushel since the beginning of the crop year, which dated from July 1, and a total rise since June of this year, following the nomination of McKinley, of 28 cents per bushel, with every indication that values will be still higher. Speculators and shippers of grain were astonished as well as delighted at the favorable outlook, and it was the general prediction that wheat would soon go to $1 a bushel. With the exception of a brief period of speculative inflation in the early summer of 1895, prices are now higher than they have been since the months preceding the panic of 1893.

The improvement has been chiefly made since the first of September, and is the result of the enormous export demand caused by the damage to the crop through drought in northwestern and central India and in upper Burma, where a famine now seems inevitable, and the shortage in Argentina and Russia, the crop of the latter country being estimated fully 100,000,000 bushels less than a year ago. Australia, owing to crop failure, has this season also been an importer instead of an exporter of wheat. On Tuesday six cargoes of California wheat were bought in San Francisco for shipment to Australia, and five cargoes were taken for India. As the new crops of the countries in the southern hemisphere will not be harvested until January or February, and those in India and Australia not before April, it is quite certain that the United States will command the grain markets of the world for several months to come, and the fact that all the available freight room on regular lines of steamers from both the Atlantic and Pacific ports have been engaged to the end of January, and that tonnage for full cargo grain shipments has been chartered to load as far ahead as next May, shows the dependence of Europe upon this country as a source of supply during the present crop year.

Exports from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts during the last week (including flour) aggregated 4,155,817 bushels, as against 4,000,772 bushels the week previous; 2,409,446 bushels for the corresponding week last year, and 3,192,093 bushels the same week in 1894, making a total export of wheat (including flour) from July 1 to date of 47,000,000, or 16,000,000 bushels more than for the corresponding period last year. The enhanced cost of wheat has also caused an upward turn in flour, prices of which have risen 75 cents to $1 a barrel over those realized a month ago. The advance in wheat has had a good influence on corn and other cereals, and there has been an active demand for export of both corn and oats, a big business having been done in future shipments from both the Atlantic and Gulf ports. The exports of corn in three months have been 29,335,529 bushels, compared with 9,210,887 bushels for the same time last year, and the exports for nine months have been 88,000,390 bushels, or almost three times the quantity exported in the corresponding nine months of 1895. Corn has gained about 3 1/2 cents per bushel the past week, and the demand for shipment abroad still continues large. Pork and provisions have shown marked improvement, owing to the rise in grain values, large exports and increased speculation. The increased demand for our cereals from European countries has had more or less influence in other lines of trade and given an impetus to business. With the election of McKinley and a sound money administration, it is confidently believed by business men that this country will emerge from this, one of the worst panics we have ever experienced, to such a restoration of confidence and renewed prosperity that will furnish work and business for thousand upon thousands of idle workmen.

2 1/2 McKinley's Luck.
The wheat famine in India is as much a stroke of political luck for McKinley as an European war would be. The effect upon the election cannot be doubted.—Springfield Republican.

GRASS cloth in these times is hardly worn so much as the McKinley lawn.

The man who neglects to vote falls in one of the highest duties of American citizenship.

The Republican party stands for honest finance, protection to honest labor, just government, law and order, the upholding of fundamental American principles, and the promotion of prosperity amongst all classes of the people. Its position on the economic issue should be clearly defined upon every possible occasion during the remaining days of the presidential and congressional canvass.

It is said that brother Bryan tried for the position of press agent of a show before he went into the business of making himself president. After November he will be out of a job and can apply again, and he should have no trouble in finding a theatrical company in want of a right smart advance agent with infinite capacity for talk. Only, if he couldn't advertise the company's show more effectively than he has his own, it would draw more dead-heads than paying patrons.

A NUMBER of the leading physicians of New York have joined in a circular letter to members of their profession throughout the country urging them fearlessly to use their influence with friends and patients to oppose the candidacy of Bryan and the policy it represents, which would reduce the purchasing power of all incomes, and worse than all, it would turn the American people from the path of honesty to that of repudiation of honest obligations.

That the response to this circular will be very general is not to be doubted, for the physicians of the country are both intelligent and public spirited, and they are certain by a large majority to range themselves with those of the other learned professions on the side of honesty and patriotism.

MR. BRYAN IS NOW before the country advocating the adoption of a dollar whose value, as measured by gold, is only a fraction over forty-nine cents. When the Bryan campaign was started the intrinsic value of the silver dollar was fifty-three cents. But during the intervening three months the price of silver has fallen steadily, until now the dollar with which Mr. Bryan would have all debts discharged is worth only forty-nine cents; and as there is no immediate prospect of an advance in the price of silver, this dollar may be expected to fall still lower in value. This decline in the value of silver is one of the significant facts of the campaign. The white metal has received a tremendous boost by the campaign which has been waged to saddle the free coinage policy upon the nation. Three national political organizations have taken up the cry of free silver, and from all over the land has resounded the cry of "16 to 1." Yet silver has steadily fallen in value, and will continue to fall, we have no doubt, come what may. The plain inference from these facts is that there has been no real faith in the success of the cause of repudiation, else the price of silver would have risen sympathetically. But it is generally understood in all thinking quarters that the cause of Bryan is a losing one, hence the condition of the silver market today.—North American.

Don't forget to go to the polls and cast your vote for McKinley and Hobart on Tuesday, November the Third.

Bryan an Absolute Free Trader.

Let every Republican or Democrat who believes in protection to American labor and industry remember that William Jennings Bryan is an outspoken free trader. This does not mean a believer in a tariff for revenue only, but a believer in absolute free trade, and the raising of all the revenue for the expenses of the government by internal taxes on real and personal property. The free silver men take great care to keep this fact in the background because they know that the great majority of the people, both Democrats and Republicans, agree that at the very least there should be tariff duties levied on foreign goods sufficient to defray the expenses of the government and avoid internal taxes for national expenses.—Bedford Inquirer.

Billy's Waste of Time.

For a man who has such great confidence in his election Mr. Bryan is wasting considerable time telling what will happen in case he is defeated.—Washington Post.

The Epistles of St. Paul.

After reading Archbishop Ireland's letter from Minneapolis Bryan will prefer the epistles of St. Paul.—Cleveland World.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has over and over again proved by its cures, when all other preparations failed, that it is the One True BLOOD Purifier.

ALINE

Henry Bower wears a smile because it is a brand new boy. The Popocrats had a meeting at Menerville last Wednesday evening, Jay G. Weiser and John H. Gundy made addresses. I don't think they gained very much by the meeting, because most of our people do not believe in Free Silver and 53 cent dollars. J. G. Martin has returned from Cumberland county where he was engaged in cutting and husking corn. He intends staying at home long enough to vote for McKinley and sound money. Professor F. C. Bowersox was around visiting some of our schools last week. Mrs. Perry Meiser of Michigan, formerly of this place, is visiting friends and relatives in this locality.

Purchasing and Paying Power.

The contention of the silver orators is that the existing dollars under the gold standard have too great purchasing power and too little debt-paying power.

What does this mean to the class most deeply interested—the wage earners and the possessors of small savings?

It means that gold dollars, or dollars as good as gold because exchangeable for gold, buy too much food, clothing, warmth and shelter.

It is for these things mainly that the wage earners' dollars are expended. Does he really wish the market basket to be lighter, the rent and fuel to be dearer? This is what "reducing the purchasing power of the dollar" means. A cheap dollar makes almost everything dear except wages; they rise last and slowest of all.

To increase the debt paying power of the dollar means simply scaling down the debt-paying it in 31 cent dollars or in dollars worth less than par value. This might be convenient for dishonest or hard up debtors, but will anybody outside a lunatic asylum knowingly vote to reduce by one-half the value of his savings, his insurance, his loan association securities? This is the silver question for workmen in a nutshell.—N. Y. World.
