Something to Know.

It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tonic to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c. or $1.00 per bottle at Gravelly, Garman & Co.'s store, Richfield, Pa. and all druggists.

A Rich Mexican.
One of the richest men in Mexico is Maximilian Damm, a German by birth. He lives in an old monastery in Durango and enjoys an income of nearly $700,000 a year from his silver mine, El Promontorio. He began life in Mexico as a clerk. Finally he went into business for himself, and while he was visiting in Germany his manager took what was supposed to be a worthless mine for a bad debt. It is this mine from which he is now deriving his great income.

A Disinfecting Lamp.
Professor Franklin G. Robinson of Bowdoin college has invented a disinfecting lamp which is attracting attention. The value of formaldehyde has been known since 1894, but its production was too slow for practical use. The new lamp forces the fumes of methyl alcohol through a platinated asbestos disk, evolving the aldehyde so rapidly that a large room can be thoroughly fumigated in two or three hours and at small expense.

A feature of the population statistics of western Australia is the large proportion of males to females. The disparity is maintained in the arrivals by sea. At present there are 45 females to every 100 males.

Keeping Her Watch In Order.
They were sipping chocolate at a cafe and talking of watches.
"I have carried my watch for ten years," said the senior member of the party, "and it has never cost me a penny for repairs."
"Merely!" exclaimed another one.
"How did you manage it?"
"I took care of it. You know men are always making disagreeable remarks about women's watches, and when my husband gave me mine he said it would probably be out of order most of the time. And I just made up my mind to show him that there was one woman in the world who knew how to take care of a watch."
"But have you never lost it or had it stolen?"
"Never. I dropped it several times at first, but it didn't show any marks."
"But do the works never get out of order?"
"The works inside. Have you never broken the mainspring?"
"I never look inside."
"But how do you wind it?"
"I don't wind it. That's how I take care of it and keep it nice."
They all stared a moment. Then they said, "Oh, you clever thing!" and adjourned sine die.—Detroit Free Press.

Spiders' Eyesight.
How far away can a spider see a fly? After several years of ingenious experimenting Mr. and Mrs. Peckham, the naturalists, have concluded that the greatest average distance at which spiders are able to see objects distinctly is about one foot. Beyond that distance, then, we may assume that a fly caught in a spider's web would be safe from detection by its enemy if its movements and struggles to get away did not betray it. The same observers think that spiders have the senses of color and of smell, but feebly developed.—Youth's Companion.

Earl Fitzwilliam, in Wentworth, Woodhouse, near Rotherham, York, has the largest private home in England, but had he not an income of over $1,000,000 a year he would probably regard the place as a white elephant. There are 175 rooms in the building.

The red mullet is sealed immediately before its death to induce permanent contraction of its superficial pigment cells, which causes the fish to become the intense red color so beloved of the trade.

APPEARANCES.
As the twilight was creeping across the sky From the east to the west, where the crimson dye
Of a gorgeous sunset was growing wan In the shadows that rise when the sun is gone In a sumptuous hamper of dreamy ease And a wrapper replent with spots of grease,
On the little back porch of an upper flat The Imperial Ethel McPadden sat.

"How I long, how I long," she soliloquized In a voice a chorus girl would have prized, "To be able to do, to achieve some deed For the suffering victims of sordid greed!" "Are you going to wash up the dishes, my dear?"
"Come a voice from the kitchen, invitingly clear.
But a lofty fire in her soul was lit, And her red lips unclasped in a clear cut "Nisit!"
—W. G. Jackson in Chicago News.

FLOTATION OF SPIDERS.

An English Writer Discusses the Subject and Cites Some Instances.
In an interesting communication to Knowledge on "Spiders," the Rev. Samuel Barber discusses at some length the phenomenon of the flotation line, and its method of attachment, which is the foundation of the spider's web. Is it not evident, asks the reverend gentleman, that air—and probably at a high temperature—must be enclosed within the meshes of the substance forming the line when it passes from the spinnerets into the atmosphere? The creature with this substance lifts it into the air. It has been usual to explain the ascent by the kite principle—namely, the mechanical force of the contiguous atmosphere—but air movements, especially on a small scale, are so capricious and uncontrollable that without a directive force the phenomena seem quite inexplicable.

In support of this theory of a direct propelling force Mr. Barber gives some of his own observations. Writing one day with two sheets of quarto before him, he saw a small spider on the paper, and in order to test its power of passing through the air he held one of the sheets of paper about a foot from that on which the creature was running. It ascended to the edge and vanished, but in a moment it landed upon the other sheet through midair in a horizontal direction, and picked up the thread as it advanced. In this case there was no air movement to facilitate, nor any time to throw a line upward, which indeed would not have solved the difficulty. On another occasion, at a dinner party in Kent, four candles were lighted on the table, when a thread was seen to be strung from the tip of one of the lighted candles and attached to another about a yard off, and all the four lights were connected in this way, and that by a web drawn quite tight.

The only explanation which Mr. Barber can suggest for this remarkable occurrence is that the spinner was suspended at first by a vertical line from above and thus swayed itself to and fro from tip to tip of the candles. It was certain the spider could not have ascended from the table, and it was equally certain that aerial flotation of the line from a fixed point was impossible, as it involved floating in four opposite directions. The rapidity with which the initial movements in forming a web are made cannot be reconciled with any theory of a simple atmospheric convection, and propulsion appears the only explanation.
