TROXELVILLE.

[Too late for last week.]

One day last week a quiet marriage took place in which Isaac Lepley and Miss Edda Manbeck were united in holy matrimony. The evening following the nuptials the Troxelville band serenaded them. We wish them a happy journey over the waves of ease and a delightful trip through life. The cool nights are still impending the growth of corn; but the wheat has attained its height amidst all and is now promising a very fair crop. The huckleberries will ripen in about two weeks which is unusually late. Mrs. Ervin Fetterolf and Jacob Kreps attended the Lord's Supper last Sunday in the Dunkard church in Bannerville. Our citizens would welcome a good Dr. in our town. The scope which a doctor would have in his grasp is extensive and the patronage no less wanting.

The farmers are now busy making hay and cultivating corn. The huckleberries are ripening very fast, but the crop cannot yet be predicted with any certainty.

Our boys have now all returned home from school, viz.: R. F. Smith from C. P. C. and C. Goss, W. I. Zechman and J. A. Herman Susquehanna University.

"Saved From the Horrors of Nervous Prostration" by Dr. Miles' Nerve.

A COUGH does not always indicate consumption. Mr. W. H. Palmer, of Waterloo, Iowa, writes: "I was taken with a nervous stricture of the bronchial tubes, which developed into nervous prostration. I was so weak I could not sit up. I got no sleep for days except when under the influence of opiates. For four months I suffered agonies and prayed that I might die and be at rest. One physician said I had consumption, for I had a cough that gave me no rest. But a good old physician whose medicine had failed, advised me to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and I thank God that it has brightened my days, lengthened my life and saved me from the horrors of nervous prostration." Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerves sent free to all applicants. DR. The Tariff Bills and Foreign Countries.

When Congress deliberately discriminates among the nations trading with the United States, and seeks to impose penalty duties upon the products of some nations and to admit the products of others under lighter duties, the effects upon trade are mischievous. It is not possible to escape such duties and foreign merchant, seeing his trade placed under disadvantage, naturally appeals to his government for protection. If a formal protest is of any avail, retaliatory measures are taken, and laws placing American products under restrictions and even prohibition are enforced. As Congress, in legislating against the foreign article, acted under pressure of some interest, and not in behalf of the general public, the commercial interests of the country suffer, and the innocent producer is made to bear the cost. By imposing discriminating duties on sugar from Europe, we invite the exclusion of our provisions and flour from Europe. By taxing wool, we open opportunity for higher duties on our products brought into Argentina. How general these measures of retaliation may become is shown by the fact that only two great commercial powers have not protested formally against the pending tariff bills—England and Russia.

Extreme protection only aggravates this tendency to antagonize foreign countries, and to close foreign markets to our products. With every step towards higher duties the protests have been more general and emphatic. For high duties mean restriction on trade, and restriction based upon a reason that will not bear examination—the wish to favor some private enterprise at public expense.—Harper's Weekly.
