

BENNY MITCHELL KILLED

And His Fireman, John Cawley, Seriously Injured.

By the Explosion of Their Engine Below Georgetown Early Monday Morning—None of the Passengers Injured.

Engineer Elisha Bennett Mitchell, known by all railroad men as "Benny" Mitchell, was killed about two and one-half miles east of Georgetown a few minutes before 1 o'clock Monday morning and his fireman, John Cawley, was seriously scalded. With engine 2106 they were pulling train No. 9, due here at 1:24 a. m., and were running about forty-five miles per hour as they rounded the curve along the hill and received the signal from watchman C. N. Orndorf to come ahead. Almost simultaneously with the answer to the signal came an explosion which completely stripped the boiler from its trucks, tore the boiler from its trucks and turning it completely around and for end dropped it over the river bank thirty feet from its trucks. The engineer and fireman were blown aside while a piece of something struck the watchman on the left leg, knocking him over the bank and crippling him. The entire train with the exception of the hind truck of the rear car was derailed but none of the passengers were injured.

The crew and passengers immediately began searching for the engineer and fireman. The former was found in a tree about fifty feet up the hill from the railroad and the latter between the railroad and the river. Mitchell was dead and Cawley frightfully scalded. As soon as a train could be sent down from here the dead engineer and the two injured men were brought to town. Mitchell's body was taken to Roberts' undertaking rooms and Cawley and Orndorf to the Mary M. Packard hospital. After having his knee dressed the latter went home on Seashore express. Cawley, who is a son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Sol. Urlick, of this place, is resting as comfortably as could be expected.

Benny Mitchell was promoted to engineer in 1867 and was the third oldest engineer in the employ of the company. He lived at Harrisburg where he has two daughters. A son was killed on the Philadelphia division a year or two ago and his wife died shortly afterward. He was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and of the Relief. His body was taken to Harrisburg on Day express.—Sumbury Item.

Woman and Reformers.

The National American Woman Suffrage Association present this fall the third year in the Course of Study in Political Science. In their announcement the Committee say: "The third year's work in Political Science consists of a study and discussion of Social Problems. The first year was devoted to the study and analysis of the Mechanism of the Government. The second year's work was a study of Political Economy and an analysis of those great principles which underlie commerce, trade and property; and an opportunity was given the student to become familiar with the claims, pro and con, of the much vexed tariff and money questions. The third year is devoted to Sociology and enters the realm of philanthropy and reform.

So long as humanity exists, the Law of Progress, which has developed our modern civilization from the barbarisms of the past, will not fail to operate; and unquestionably society will continue in its evolution until it reaches a degree of idealism beyond the comprehension of our generation. Social Progress is not wholly an unconscious and mechanical obedience to material force, but is as well the natural response of the human mind to the appeals of leaders of thought, who have possessed the intelligence to conceive, and the moral courage to espouse a new truth. The reformer who perceived that better conditions were possible and clearly foresaw the medium through which to accomplish the change has at all times been a power society could not withstand. It has ostracized and persecuted, scoffed and jeered to no purpose; sooner or later the intelligence and justice of the people have compelled them to accept his cause. He may have died scorned and hated, but a few years, a generation, a century, has seen the truth he advocated triumphant. Such have been the wonderful forces of evolution.

What, then, will the future bring forth? We discover grave faults in modern industrial, social and political institutions; not faults pointed out by the individual critic, but those which are universally conceded. What changes will the future compel to eradicate these flaws and bring society nearer an ideal? Thousands of thoughtful men and women, quick to feel the sense of duty of our generation to posterity and future civilization, have sought to answer this question and, in consequence, almost countless movements have been inaugurated which their founders believe will one day produce a better and higher order of things. The agitation, in its appeal to brain and conscience, constitutes the law of progress of our generation. The man and woman well grounded in the knowledge that there will come a time of better conditions and who feels a conscientious duty toward the future, will be slow to cast slurs upon any new idea which claims to offer a remedy for the present evil. Instead, he will give it careful examination, and only after it has failed to pass the test of reason will he condemn it. It is in this spirit that a study of all Social Problems and their proposed remedies should be appreciated. It should never be forgotten that the agitation of each and every one must, of necessary, be beneficial since the evils to be corrected are rarely imaginary, and public attention is at least called to their existence. Whether the particular remedy proposed is wise or foolish, the result of its discussion cannot fail to arouse the public conscience to a more active sense of its duty, and it is therefore entitled to respect. It must be remembered that the Association is itself non-partisan reform body representing only one proposed change. In no sense does it espouse any of the solutions proposed for the Social Problems to which it invites attention. The announcement giving the list of books required, twenty topics for discussion, with references, and a list of subjects for public meeting, can be had free by applying to Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, 107 World Building, New York City.

Send your name and address to the N. K. Fairbank Company, Chicago, St. Louis, New York, Boston Philadelphia or Pittsburg, and you will receive by return mail, free of charge, a beautiful booklet, entitled "Fairy Tale," handsomely illustrated in color." Mention the Post.

A NEW TRIUMPH. The Dreaded Consumption Can be Cured.

T. A. Slocum, the Great Chemist and Scientist, will send to Sufferers, Three Free Bottles of His Newly Discovered Remedies to Cure Consumption and All Lung Troubles. Nothing could be fairer, more philanthropic or carry more joy to the afflicted, than the generous offer of the honored and distinguished chemist, T. A. Slocum, M. C., of New York City. He has discovered a reliable and absolute cure for consumption, and all bronchial, throat, lung and chest diseases, catarrhal affections, general decline and weakness, loss of flesh and all conditions of wasting away, and to make its great merits known, will send three free bottles of his newly discovered remedies to any afflicted reader of the Post. Already his "new scientific system of medicine" has permanently cured thousands of apparently hopeless cases. The doctor considers it not only his professional, but his religious duty—a duty which he owes to suffering humanity—to donate his infallible cure. He has provided the "dreaded consumption" to be a curable disease beyond a doubt, in any climate, and has on file in his American and European laboratories thousands of "heartfelt testimonials of gratitude" from those benefited and cured, in all parts of the world. Careful and pulmonary troubles lead to consumption, and consumption, uninterrupted, means speedy and certain death. Don't delay until it is too late. Simply write T. A. Slocum, M. C., 56 Pine Street, New York, giving express and postage address, and the free medicine will be promptly sent. Please tell the Doctor you saw his offer in the Post.

"Saved From the Horrors of Nervous Prostration" by Dr. Miles' Nerve.

A COUGH does not always indicate consumption. Mr. W. H. Palmer, of Waterloo, Iowa, writes: "I was taken with a nervous stricture of the bronchial tubes, which developed into nervous prostration. I was so weak I could not sit up. I got no sleep for days except when under the influence of opiates. For four months I suffered agonies and prayed that I might die and be at rest. One physician said I had consumption, for I had a cough that gave me no rest. But a good old physician whose medicine had failed, advised me to use Dr. Miles' Restorative Nerve and I thank God that it has brightened my days, lengthened my life and saved me from the horrors of nervous prostration." Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on Heart and Nerve sent free to all applicants. DR. MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.
