Some Rambling Thoughts.

BY "NEMO."

(Copyrighted by Howe & Taber.)

To VOTERS, II:—I have no doubt that in a general way you agree with the statement that "the people" can be trusted; perhaps because the phrase sounds familiar, as nearly every one asserts it. But like our assent to a great many scraps of proverbial wisdom, we do not often agree to statements without thinking of all that they imply. Please look with me a little deeper; not that I would shake your faith in the people, but rather that you may have your faith in them increased.

The figures in a picture gain largely by the kind of background they have. National great-men gain by a similar condition, and for them the background is "the people." Without a people to lead and a people to voice, where would our great men be? The people are those ordinary, hard-working ones, who continue their duties steadily under this administration or under that; always findable at the post of honest labor. But these people differ largely from the people of almost any other nation, since our political institutions are based upon their wills—or whims. The necessity of their having right ideas is therefore permanent. The necessity also of showing them national dangers is also extreme, since by their voices and their votes, they are the arbiters of our national fate. As we agreed so far?

Then once more; who are "the people?" You and I, and others like us! But as I am writing to you and you are reading; for the time being you—alone, solitary, particularized—"are people." This say, sacrificing even grammar, in order to have a close talk with you. As "the people" can you be trusted; are your motives high; are your political actions pure? Come now, it is no use assenting to a general idea unless you are willing to make genuine application of it.

THE PEOPLE'S STRENGTH.

O, can it be this lordly fame,
The sacred guard of hollow bones
Was once but rough uneven stones,
Quarried by common hands for gain?
Yet rude and worthless though each be,
With them is raised this temple fair,
A fault, a weakness anywhere
May mar the perfect symmetry.

O, can it be, this mighty force,
That nations makes or rends apart,
Is nothing but the people's heart
Made up of units fine or coarse?
Yet, lowly as may be their state,
This lesson doth the building teach—
That nothing but true life from each
Can make a nation wholly great.

If you are so wrapped up in your own business,—which you are able to quietly pursue under the protection of a quiet government,—that you do not make even time to register and to vote, you are not to be trusted, since you take all you can of personal gain from our national conditions and do not repay anything. You are selfish, yet there is one worse than you—the difference between negative selfishness and positive—the one who holds office and administers it selfishly. Of him we will say something, because he is made possible by lazy voters.

If you delude yourself into the belief that every man has an equal voice in the destinies of the country, and then give actual denial to it by surrendering your independence of judgment to a boss who thinks for you, nominates for you—because you will not attend caucuses and primaries—and votes for you, then as a voter you are not to be trusted. You are the right, plastic material out of which he shapes his selfish ends. Assuming you to be a good man, he reckons a good man indolent, as of less weight than a fly on a chariot wheel; and so you a unit in our national life become a mere cipher.

The precious staff of life to our nation is that you and all like you should have a choice of candidates, but only a loaf of husks is given you when you are offered a choice between candidates, after you have by your absence from your primary left others to think for you.

If you get the idea of party so firmly ground in your heart,—perhaps because you were born a this or a that—that you will vote for a bad man in your party rather than for a good man in another, than as a voter you are not to be trusted. You have not in any sense risen to a comprehension of the fact that you are first, last, and all the time, a custodian of national rather than party health. In brief, the line of voting cleavage is well, if it be between man and man; and often liable to be wrong, if it be between party and party whose actual difference partisans would sometimes find it hard to explain. I would sooner trust an honest man who differs from me, than the sly and smug politician who agrees to anything to get office and then recks not though the country "go hang."

As a man you know that a building covered with ornaments is not rendered thereby one particle firmer in its foundations; you know that the color of a sail in stormy weather is of less importance than its qualities of strength. As a man therefore I look to you to believe that neither money nor miles are the things to make us as a nation endure forever. If you are replying on the mere outer circumstances of national life as your pride and your confidence, you are a voter who cannot be trusted, since your view is too narrow and your reliance too unreliable. The national cohesive force is the character of the individual. In the place of boastings of wealth, lean upon men, men of morals and men of mind, and be one of them yourself, on the principle that national charity begins at home.

SOME VOTERS' DON'TS.

Don't make loud declarations and neglect deeds.

Don't boast of freedom and independence unless you really possess it.

Don't divide on dead issues, whose carcasses ought long ago to have been buried.

Don't forget to think of your children's children, for whom by your watchfulness,—please God!—there shall still stand a government worthy of pride.

WEST BEAVER.

Election is over and all seem to be satisfied with the results. . . . Attorneys Ulrich and Culbertson were seen on our streets one day last week. . . . Our veteran teamster, Andy has been making three trips, with props, to McClure, in one day. . . . The wind-storm we had on last Saturday played havoc with the fences in West Beaver. . . . John I. Erb has been confined to his bed for the past week or two with rheumatism. . . . Chas. Weiland spent Sunday with his friend, Warrie McGlaughlin.

SELINGROVE.

Mrs. Camp (nee Shindel) of Philadelphia, is visiting her father, Judge Shindel. They had a family re-union Friday last. . . . The entertainment in the Opera House, given by the Misses Duakle, of Watson town and Hort of Phila. in the interests of the Athletic Association of Susq. University, on Thursday evening last was well patronized, the ladies doing credit to themselves. . . . Rev. G. W. Fortney and son, of Turbotville, came to town on their wheels on Friday last, to see Dr. Ziegler, who had been quite ill but we are glad to state at this writing he is greatly improved. . . . John Hosterman, one of our oldest citizens passed away on Friday and was buried on Sunday afternoon. He was aged about 86 years. . . . Miss Harriet Richter went to Wilkes Barre to visit friends. . . . W. F. Shay, Esq. and wife, of Watson town, spent Sunday with Charles Hower and wife. . . . There will be a series of five lectures on the "Social Problem" by Rev. Dr. J. W. Stuckenberg, of Cambridge, Mass. The lectures are gotten up by the students of the University and will be held in the College Chapel, beginning on Wednesday evening and closing on Monday evening, the 15th. This is a rare chance to hear good lectures by an eminent gentleman. Prices 25cts. single lecture or $1.00 for the course of five lectures. . . . The foot ball team of the University downed the Muncy Normal School team, on Saturday by a score of 96 to 0. . . . Quite a number of our people are going to Chattanooga on Thursday, 11th. . . .
