The business of the Alaska-Klondyke Gold Mining Company will be to run a line of steamers on the Yukon River, and between Seattle and the different parts of Alaska, open supply stores at the different camps, do a general transportation, commercial and banking business, and, in addition, deal in Mining Claims, and work the mines already owned and that may hereafter be acquired by the Company.

The Company controls the following properties:

Eight Gold Placer Claims aggregating 160 Acres in extent, located on Forty Mile Creek under United States mining laws. Development has proved the pay streak to be five feet thick and has yielded placer dirt that pans from $10 to $15 to the pan. Five Gold Placer Claims, aggregating 100 Acres in extent, on Porcupine River, that pans from 25 cents to $18 to a pan.

Ten Gold Placer Claims, aggregating 200 acres on the Tanana River, panning from $10 to $50 a yard.

A fine gold quartz lode in Alaska, which as yet has not been worked. The lode shows an enormous outcrop of free milling ore, vein at surface being 12 feet thick; on this property have made 12 locations of 100 feet by 100 feet, each, in the 120 acres. We don't claim that it is the mother lode, but we do know it is without an equal for prospective values.

The estimates and statement above are of necessity based upon information obtained from our Superintendent, and are believed and accepted by the company.

This company having acquired extensive holdings of rich placer and gold quartz properties, capable of earning large dividends on its stock, offers to investors advantages that insure large and profitable returns.

Mr. George W. Morgan, our Superintendent, has been on the Yukon for the past year working in the interest of this company. ENTICING SINS.

The many fascinating temptations which may prove a man's ruin are compared by Dr. Talmadge to the sweetness of the golden honey.

Samuel xiv, 48, "I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and lo, I must die."

The honeybee is a most ingenious architect, a Christopher Wren among insects, geometer drawing hexagons and pentagons, a freebooter robbing the fields of pollen and aroma, wondrous creature of God whose biography, written by Huber and Swammerdam, is an enchantment for any lover of nature. Virgil celebrated the bee in his fable of Aristaeus, and Moses and Samuel and David and Solomon and Jeremiah and Ezekiel and St. John used the delicacies of bee manufacture as a Bible symbol. A miracle of formation is the bee. Five eyes, two tongues, the outer having a sheath of protection, hairs on all sides of its tiny body to brush up the particles of flowers, its flight so straight that all the world knows of the bee line. The honeycomb is a palace such as no one but God could plan and the honeybee construct; its cells sometimes a dormitory and sometimes a storehouse and sometimes a cemetery. These winged toilers first make eight strips of wax and by their antennae, which are to them hammer and chisel and square and plumb line, fashion them for use. Two and two these workers shape the wall. If an accident happens, they put up buttresses of extra beams to remedy the damage.

Do you know that the swarming of the bees is divinely directed? The mother bee starts for a new home, and because of this the other bees of the hive get into an excitement which raises the heat of the hive some four degrees, and they must die unless they leave their heated apartments, and they follow the mother bee and alight on the branch of a tree, and cling to each other and hold on until a committee of two or three bees has explored the region and found the hollow of a tree or rock not far off from a stream of water, and they bare set up a new colony and ply their arduous industries and give themselves to the manufacture of the saccharine edible. But who can tell the chemistry of that mixture of sweetness, part of it the very life of the bee and part of it the life of the fields?

Plenty of this luscious product was hanging in the woods of Bethaven during the time of Saul and Jonathan. Their army was in pursuit of an enemy that by God's command must be exterminated. The soldiers were positively forbidden to stop to eat anything until the work was done. If they disobeyed they were accursed. Coming through the woods they found a place where the bees had been busy—a great honey manufactory. Honey gathered in the hollow of the trees until it had overflowed upon the ground in great profusion of sweetness. All the army obeyed orders and touched it not save Jonathan, and he, not knowing the military order about abstinence, dipped the end of a stick he had in his hand into the candied liquid, and as yellow and tempting it glistened on the end of the stick he put it to his mouth and ate the honey. Judgment fell upon him and but for special intervention he would have been slain. In my text Jonathan announces his awful mistake, "I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and lo, I must die." Alas, what multitudes of people in all ages have been damaged by forbidden honey, by which I mean temptation, delicious and attractive, but damaging and destructive!

Corrupt literature, fascinating but deathful, comes in this category. Where one good honest, healthful book is read now there is a hundred made up of rhetorical trash consumed with avidity. When the boys on the cars come through with a pile of publications, look over the titles and notice that nine out of ten of the books are injurious. All the way from here to Chicago or New Orleans notice that objectionable books dominate. Taste for pure literature is poisoned by this scum of the publishing house. Every book in which sin triumphs over virtue, or in which a glamor is thrown over dissipation, or which leaves you at its last line with less respect for the marriage institution and less abhorrence for the paramour is a depression of your own moral character. The bookbinder may be attractive, and the plot dramatic and startling, and the style of writing sweet as the honey that Jonathan took up with his rod, but your best interests forbid it your moral safety forbids it, your God forbids it, and one taste of it may lead to such bad results that you may have to say at the close of the experiment or at the close of a mispropelled lifetime, "I did but taste a little honey with the rod that was in my hand, and lo, I must die."

Life is so short and your time for improvement so abbreviated that you cannot afford to fill up with husks and cinders and debris. In the intricacies of business that young man is reading that which will prepare him to be a merchant prince, and that young woman is filling her mind with an intelligence that will yet either make her the chief attraction of a good man's home or give her an independence of character that will qualify her to build her own home and maintain it in a happiness that requires no suggestion from any of our rougher sex. That young man or young woman can, by the right literary and moral improvement of the spare ten minutes here or there every day, rise head and shoulders in prosperity and character and influence above the loungers who read nothing, or read that which bedwards. See all the forests of good American literature dripping with honey. Why pick up the honeycombs that have in them the fiery bees which will sting you with an eternal poison while you taste it? One book may for you or me decide everything for this world and the next. It was a turning point with me when in a bookstore in Syracuse one day I picked up a book called "The Beauties of Ruskin." It was only a book of extracts, but it was all pure honey, and I was not satisfied until I purchased all his works, at that time expensive beyond an easy capacity to own them, and with what delight I went through reading his "Seven Lamps of Architecture" and his "Stones of Venice" it is impossible for me to describe except by saying that it gave me a rapture for good books and an everlasting disgust for cheap or immoral books that will last me while my life lasts. All around the church and the world to-day there are busy hives of intelligence occupied by authors and authoresses from whose pens drip a distillation which is the very nectar of heaven, and why will you thrust your rod of inquisitiveness into the deathful saccharine of perdition.

Stimulating liquids also come into the category of temptation delicious, but deathful. You say, "I cannot bear the taste of intoxicating liquor, and how any man can like it is to me an amazement." Well, then, it is no credit to you that you do not take it. Do not brag about your total abstinence, because it is not from any principle that you reject alcoholism, but for the reason that you reject certain styles of food—you simply don't like the taste of them. But multitudes of people have a natural fondness for all kinds of intoxicants. They like it so much that it makes them smack their lips to look at it. They are dyspeptic, and they like to aid digestion; or they are annoyed by insomnia, and they take it to produce sleep; or they are troubled, and they take it to make them oblivious; or they feel happy, and they must celebrate their hilarity. They begin with mint julep sucked through two straws on the Long Branch piazza and end in the ditch, taking from a jug a liquid half kerosene and half whisky. They not only like it, but it is an all-consuming passion of the body, mind and soul, and after awhile have it they will, though one wingless of it should cost the temporal and eternal destruction of themselves and all their families and the whole human race. This infatuation of strong drink is so mighty in many a man that, though his fortunes are crashing, and his health is crashing, and his domestic interests are crashing, and we hand him a long scroll containing the names of perils that await him, he goes straight on to physical and mental and moral assassination. In proportion as any style of alcoholism is pleasant to your taste and stimulating to your nerves and for a time delightful to all your physical and mental constitution is the peril awful. Remember Jonathan and the forbidden honey in the woods at Bethaven.

Furthermore, the gamester's indulgence must be put in the list of temptations delicious but destructive. You who have crossed the ocean many times have noticed that always one of the best rooms has, from morning until late at night, been given up to gambling practices. I heard of men who went on board with enough money for a European excursion who landed without money to get their baggage up to the hotel or railroad station. To many there is a complete fascination in games of hazard or the risking of money on possibilities. It seems as natural for them to bet as to eat. Indeed the hunger for food is often overpowered by the hunger for wagers. It is absurd for those of us who have never felt the fascination of the wager to speak slightly of the temptation. It has slain a multitude of intellectual and moral giants, men and women stronger than you or I. Down under its power went glorious Oliver Goldsmith, and Gibbon, the famous historian, and Charles Fox, the renowned statesman, and in olden times Senators of the United States, who used to be as regularly at the gambling house all night as they were in the halls of legislation by day. Oh, the tragedies of the faro table! I know persons who began with a slight stake in a ladies' parlor and ended with the suicide's pistol at Monte Carlo. They played with the square pieces of bone with black marks on them, not knowing that Satan was playing for their bones at the same time, and was sure to sweep all the stakes off on his side of the table. State legislatures have again and again sanctioned the mighty evil by passing laws in defense of race tracks, and many young men have lost all their wages at such so-called "meetings." Every man who voted for such infamous bills has on his hands and forehead the blood of these souls. But in this connection some young converts say to me: "Is it right to play cards? Is there any harm in a game of whist or euchre?" Well, I know good men who play whist and euchre and other styles of games without any wagers. I had a friend who played cards with his wife and children and then at the close said, "Come, now, let us have prayers." I will not judge other men's consciences, but I tell you that cards are in my mind so associated with the temporal and spiritual ruin of splendid young men that I would as soon say to my family, "Come, let us have a game of cards," as I would go into a menagerie and say, "Come, let us have a game of rattlesnakes," or into a cemetery and sitting down by a marble slab say to the gravediggers, "Come, let us have a game at skulls."

Stock gambling comes into the same catalogue. It must be very exhilarating to go to the stock market and depositing a small sum of money run the chance of taking out a fortune. Many men are doing an honest and safe business in the stock market and you are an ignoramus if you do not know that it is just as legitimate to deal in stocks as it is to deal in coffee or sugar or flour. But nearly all the outsiders who go there on a financial excursion lose all. The old spiders eat up the unsuspecting flies. I had a friend who put his hand on his hip pocket and said in substance, "I have here the value of $250,000." His home is today penniless. What was the matter? Stock gambling. Of the vast majority who are victimized you hear not a word. One great stock firm goes down and whole columns of newspapers discuss their fraud or their disaster, and we are presented with their features and their biography. But where one such famous firm sinks 500 unknown men sink with them. The great steamer goes down and all the little boats are swallowed in the same engulfment.

Gambling is gambling, whether in stocks or breadstuffs or dice or race horse betting. Exhilaration at the start, but a raving brain and a shattered nervous system and a sacrificed property and a destroyed soul at the last. Young men, buy no lottery tickets, purchase no prize packages, bet on no baseball games or yacht racing, have no faith in luck, answer no mysterious circulars proposing great income for small investment, drive away the buzzards that hover around our hotels trying to entrap strangers. Go out and make an honest living. Have God on your side and be a candidate for heaven. Remember all the paths of sin are banked with flowers at the start, and there are plenty of helpful hands to fetch the gay charger to your door and hold the stirrup while you mount. But farther on the horses plunge to the bit in a slough inextricable.

The best honey is not like that which Jonathan took on the end of the rod and brought to his lips, but that which God puts on the banquet table of mercy, at which we are all invited to sit. I was reading of a boy among the mountains of Switzerland ascending a dangerous place with his father and the guides. The boy stopped on the edge of the cliff and said, "There is a flower I mean to get." "Come away from there," said the father. "You will fall off." "No," said he. "I must get that beautiful flower." And the guides rushed toward him to pull him back when, just as they heard him say, "I almost have it," he fell 2,000 feet. Birds of prey were seen a few days after circling through the air and lowering gradually to the place where the corpse lay. Why seek flowers off the edge of a precipice when you can walk knee deep amid the full blooms of the paradise of God? When a man may sit at the king's banquet, why will he go down the steps and contend for the refuse and bones of a hound's kennel? "Sweeter than honey and the honeycomb," says David, is the truth of God. "With honey out of the rock would I have satisfied thee," says God to the recreant. Here is honey gathered from the blossoms of trees of life, and with a rod made out of the wood of the cross I dip it up for all your souls.

The poet Hesiod tells of an ambrosia and a nectar the drinking of which would make men live forever, and one sip of the honey from the eternal rock will give you eternal life with God. Come off the malarial levels of a sinful life. Come and live on the uplands of grace, where the vineyards sun themselves. "Oh, taste and see that the Lord is gracious!" Be happy now and happy forever. For those who take a different course the honey will turn to gall. For many things I have admired Percy Shelly, the great English poet, but I deplore the fact that it seemed a great sweetness to him to dishonor God. The poem "Queen Mab" has in it the maligning of the diety. Shelley was impious enough to ask for Rowland Hill's Surrey chapel that he might denounce the Christian religion. He was in great glee against God and the truth. But he visited Italy, and one day on the Mediterranean with two friends in a boat which was 24 feet long he was leaning toward shore when an hour's squall struck the water. A gentleman standing on shore through a glass saw many boats tossed in this squall, but all outside the storm except one, in which Shelley and his two friends were sailing. That never came ashore, but the bodies of two of the occupants were washed up on the beach, one of them the poet. A funeral pyre was built on the seashore by some classic friends, and the two bodies were consumed. Poor Shelley! He would have no God while he lived, and I fear had no God when he died. "The Lord knoweth the way of the righteous, but the way of the ungodly shall perish." Beware of the forbidden honey!

When we cannot do as we would! It will smooth the joints to be willing to do as we should.

A Triumph in Surgery.

One of the most wonderful surgical operations known to science has been performed upon a San Francisco man. It consists in the coiling of 15 yards of silver wire about the size of a hypodermic needle within the aorta, the great artery leading direct from the heart. Three or four months ago, from the result of an injury, there arose very grave danger of a rupture of the aorta, which, of course, meant death. The physicians therefore coiled this wire within a distended portion of the great artery, in order to partly fill it and form a clot that would, it was hoped, contract the channel to its normal size. Having been in place for this length of time, the physicians entertain strong hopes that the desired result will be secured. When the peculiar construction and functions of the aorta are taken into consideration, it will be seen that this experiment was one of the boldest strokes in medical history. If it proves a complete success a most signal triumph in the treatment of arterial troubles has been achieved.

William Beatty, a farmer near Selotville, O., while splitting up a tree which he had felled on his farm, found in the heart of the trunk a buckskin bag containing a letter, discolored by age. The writing had practically faded away, only a word here and there being intelligible. The tree was evidently 150 years old, and it was thought that the letter had been placed there a hundred years ago, when the "Little Scioto" trail from the Ohio River to Chillicothe was used by the traders, and passed close to where the old tree stood. The hole in which the letter had been hidden had been completely covered by the new growth of the tree. It was undoubtedly one of the "post offices" of the pioneers.

An English prophet announces for 1898 the discovery of the north pole, the opening of communication with Mars, war in Europe, a revolution in South America, riots in London and the kidnapping of the young king of Spain. That South American event is reasonably certain to happen, there are a few men out after the north pole, war in Europe seems to be an assured event and as for catching on to Mars—well, our old globe has trouble enough of its own and doesn't need to tack on any war bonnet.

Senator Marum, of Oklahoma, recently proposed to his sweetheart by mail. Her answer was handed to him while he was engaged in an important lawsuit as one of the attorneys. For three days he carried the letter unopened in his pocket for fear that it contained an answer that would unnerve him and thus prevent him from properly continuing the case. Finally, when the last speech had been made and the case went to the jury, he tore open the envelope and found that it said: "Yes."

The Worcester Gazette takes exception to the remark of Mrs. Fields that Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe was beautiful. In Hartford, according to the Gazette, Prof. Stowe once engaged a green hackman to meet his wife at the station. The driver came back, reporting that no elderly lady was on the train, nor any woman except "an old, ugly Irish washerwoman." "Well, you go back," said Prof. Stowe, "and bring that ugly woman—that's my wife."

A Maine humorist announces his intention of appealing to the next legislature for the amendment of the game laws limiting the number of guides or fellow sportsmen who may be shot by deer hunters to not exceeding three in any one season by any one hunter. He says this is an amendment greatly needed for the preservation of guides, who are now threatened with extinction.

The mid-winter arid of the Alaskan gold seekers would appear to be not entirely assuaged by the news of hardship and famine there, as the steamer Topeka has just sailed from Tacoma with 200 passengers, bound for that country, who will probably arrive just in time to avail themselves of the relief supplies which the government is now hurrying forward.

The house of Thomas Mansfield, six miles southwest of Washington, Ind., caught fire one morning recently. The roof was burning briskly when an Evansville & Indianapolis passenger train happened along. The engineer stopped the train, and the passengers and trainmen carried water from the tender and extinguished the flames.

A recent report from Kentucky says that two brothers living near Harrodsburg look so much alike that they can't be told apart. One of them joined the Baptist church, and when about to be immersed found that he had no clothes suitable, and gave his brother ten cents to be baptized in his place.

The supreme court of California has decided that under certain circumstances a wife may be compelled to support her husband. This decision was rendered in the case of an aged and infirm spouse who was deserted by his wife. The wife was ordered to pay the husband $24 a month.

It is reported that George Ford, of Louisville, Ky., 77 years old, has been married seven times, and the age of his latest bride is 17 years. The figure 7 seems to cut quite a figure in Mr. Ford's career.

Blood Poison.

Contagious Blood Poison has been appropriately called the curse of mankind. It is the one disease that physicians cannot cure; their mercurial and potash remedies only bottle up the poison in the system, to surely break forth in a more virulent form, resulting in a total wreck of the system.

Mr. Frank B. Martin, a prominent jeweler at 926 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., says:

I was for a long time under treatment of two of the best physicians of this city, for a severe case of blood poison, but my condition grew worse all the while, notwithstanding the fact that they charged me three hundred dollars. My mouth was filled with eating sores; my tongue was almost eaten away, so that for three months I was unable to taste any solid food. My hair was coming out rapidly, and I was in a horrible fix. I had tried various treatments, and was nearly discouraged, when a friend recommended S.S.S. After I had taken four bottles, I began to get better, and when I had finished eighteen bottles, I was cured sound and well, my skin was without a blemish, and I have had no return of the disease. S.S.S. saved me from a life of misery. S.S.S. (guaranteed purely vegetable) will cure any case of blood poison. How to be Handsome.

It is a mistake to suppose that the only way to be good looking is to be born so. Good health has more to do with good looks than anything else. Such diseases as constipation, dyspepsia, liver complaints, rheumatism, nervous disorders, etc., not only shorten life, but spoil temper and "looks." Bacon's Celery King for the nerves cures these troubles. W. H. Herman, Trenton, N. J.; Middleworth & Uihlen, McClure, sell it and will give you a sample package free. Large sizes 25c and 50c.
