ELEVEN KILLED, FIVE INJURED.

The Men, Jumping From One Track to Escape a Train, Leaped in Front of a Local Rushing Along at Forty Miles an Hour.

Jersey City, Nov. 19 .- In the gloom of smoke, storm and for that darkened the rails of the Pennsylvania railroad yesterday morning between Jersey City and Harrison a belated suburban train dashed into a gang of workmen, killing 11 and injuring four. Five others had remarkable escapes. All the victims lived in Jersey City.

The dead are: Frank Bodoski, aged 48; Gluseppe Colasurde, 31; Thomas Doherty, 47; Thomas Flannagan; Joseph Faggea, 48; Michael Lawless, 34; Nicola Lucci, 34; Frank Ludowski, 21; Angelo Puggo, 25; Frank Slumsky, 30; Glussppe Stinziano, 23. Bodoski and General Otis requested Aguinaldo, the Philippines insurgent leader, to release kowski is dying at St. Francis hospital. The accident happened about two and one-half miles west of Jersey City, just beyond the Hackensack river bridge. At that point there are four tracks, two devoted to passenger and two to freight traffic. At the north are the shops and the tracks of the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad, Foreman Quirk took out a gang of 19 men at 8 a.m. to repair track No. 4-the westbound freight track-at that place. Quirk saw that the fog might mean danger, so he sent ahead two men, Lawless and Doherty, to give warning of approaching trains. Lawless was to go west and Doherty east, and cover all the tracks. They were to shout warnings at the approach of trains. The passenger tracks wer: kept busy with incoming suburban trains, and the dense smoke and steam from these trains helped to make the atmosphere more dense.

Suddenly, about 8:20, there was s shout from Lawless, who was the advance guard of the gang. "Train on No. 3." he cried. It was an eastbound freight train that came along slowly, leaving behind it a heavy pall of smoke. The men, who were scattered along the track, jumped out of the way. Al-most all of them jumped over to track No. 1, the eastbound passenger track The heavy smoke enveloped them, and the men, many of them new hands on the road, shivered with fright, for they could not see and could scarcely hear the approaching trains that followed the freight.

Lawless, too, had jumped across to track No. 1, keeping all the time a sharp lookout. Suddenly there was a rumble of wheels and the shrick of a whistle. The Millstone local, delayed by fog, was coming along at the rate of to miles an hour. Lawless was struck and thrown 30 feet away, mangled and bleeding. On went the train. Engineer Van Nostrand had scarcely noticed the man's body flying through the air when the engine struck Doherty; then it ploughed into the mass of cowering men, who stood huddled together on the track.

"It was an awful sight." said the en-gineer later. "There was a mass of legs and arms flying through the air. I was drenched with blood. I knew that something terrible had happened. and put on the air brakes as hard as possible."

When the train came to a standstill elected general master workman of the Knights of Labor. ows and the track looked like a battle field covered with bodies. The shricks of the dying drowned the cries of the horrified passengers. Women fainted and men turned away in horror. the 19 men nine were dead and six wounded.
