JUST BEFORE DEATE. the First Impressions of Life Are the bast to Fade from Momory.

In the account of Mr. Gladstone's death given in the London Telegraph it was stated that during the last two days, whenever he was delirious, his broken sentences, even his muttered prayers, were spoken in French. It is probable that during his earliest childhood his nurse was French, and that she had taught him to pray in her language.

It is a fact established by physicians that the mind, after a lingering illness, just before death, frequently goes back to its earliest experiences. The first impressions of life are the last to fade from the memory. Aged women who have long been grandmothers, when propped up on their death-beds to sign a will, have been known to write the maiden name, unused for half a century.

The vicious old roisterer, Falstaff, in his dying hour "babbled o' green fields;" and Napoleon went forth to meet the grim conqueror of all kings, not a poor prisoner surrounded by his jailers, but at the head of his armies-again young, dominant, victorious. Dr. Valmy, a surgeon in the confederate army during the civil war, once stated that it was not uncommon for men who died on the field from gunshot wounds to forget the battle raging near them and in their thoughts to go back home. No matter how furious the passion of the fight had been, the touch of death swept it away, and they muttered of "mother," or some prayer which they had long ago learned from her. None of us can pleree the awful mystery of death; yet it sometimes seems as If the soul, going out again into the darkness, passed into the unknown from which it came, and found at its exit the dear, familiar faces and thoughts which welcomed it here waiting to bid it Godspeed upon its joursay.

FREAKS OF THE MAUSER.

The Queer Courses Pollowed by the Cullets After They Struch Our Soldiors.

"Those Mauser bullets did some mighty queer things," said a wounded soldier the other day, according to the New York Commercial Advertiser. "As long as they were flying through the air they went straight enough, but when one struck a man's body there was no telling what it would do. Sometimes it would be straight through him, bones and all, and go zipping on to plug some poor fellow half a mile away, perhaps. And then again it might chase around inside him like a hen with her head cut off. "I saw a man who was hit in the right eye by a Mauser. The ball, instend of lodging in his brain, went through his temple and down the side of his face in front of his var, just under the shin. It kept on, leaving a red truch all the way, went down the side of the nucle, over his shoulder and down his back. Near his waist it

SPORTING TERMS IN FRENCE.

Some Odd and Amazing Adaptation of the English Expressions Relating to Wheeling.

It is well known that the French language is so deficient in all words dealing with sport that they have to be borrowed from Euglish, and they often undergo curious modifications in transit. A distinguished Frenchman named Saint-Maurice has lately published a book with the delightful title of "Le Recordsman"-an individual who is, no doubt, closely related to the "Yachtman," of whom Pierre Loti has written, and is possibly husband of the "Cyclewooman," who also figures from time to time in the Parisian sporting press. If the author of "Le Recordeman" is to be believed, cyclomania is a disease which has attacked the French nation in a far more acute form then that with which we are familiar, and in particular he has a good deal to say about the enthusiastic admiration excited by holders of distance records in the eyes of the fair sex.

Perhaps the most affecting story in the book is that which relates the death of a distinguished "pedaleur," who is followed to his grave by his heart-broken widow, mounted upon her steed of steel, and arrayed in a black silk blouse and "pantaloons de deutl." The idea of "mourning knickerbockers" suggests the nousense verse:

There was an old man of the cape Who always wore trousers of crope: When asked "Do they tear?"

He replied "Here and there. But they keep such a beautiful shape!"

LAND FORCE OF NO AVAIL.

kavad Fonce New the Defense of Great Nations-The Arrates of Different Nations.

The peace establishments of the French, German and Russian armies are at least 1,550,600 mon, and perhaps may be 2,080,000, all highly organized. Their war establishments might amount to totals from 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 men. On the other hand, the peace establishment of the British empire amounts to 1,000,000 men-a part of which is equally well, and another part not equally well organized with the European armies. The possible war establishment of the empire has never been seriously estimated. The peace establishment of the United States is under 30,000 men, doubtless well organized. Like the British people, the Americans have never reckoned their possible war establishment, but evidently they could, if so minded, raise it to a mighty strength. says the North American Review.

But neither British nor American leaders will, under the existing circumstances, consider land force as a dominant factor in any world-wide problem. Their thoughts will mainly be turned to sea force. They will anxiously inquire whether the sea force of an Anglo-American combination would or would not compare favorably with that of a European combination. It were needless to stop and show that all the European land forces would be of no avail against un Anglo-American combination, if that combination really possessed the mastery of the sea.

AN ACCUSED SENATOR Are You 36 Receiver The line Mr. Kenney, of Delaware, Again Before a Jury. Easily Tired? MR. BIOHARDSON ON THE STAND. The President of the Looted Bank

Testified That Teller Boggs, Kenney's Alleged Accomplice, Had Confeesed to Gambling.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 6.-United States Senator Richard R. Kenney, of Delaware, yesterday was placed on trial in the United States circuit court for the second time on charges growing out of the looting of the First National bank, of Dover, by its teller, William N. Boggs. Senator Kenney was last arraigned on the charge of alding and abetting Boggs in misapplying the bank's funds in July last, and after a trial lasting over one week the jury disagreed. Since then the charge of conspiracy has been jointed to the first charges. The discovery of a shortage in the bank came in May, 1897, when Cashier Boggs suddenly left Dover. The bank was found to have been looted in the sum of $107,000, or a little over its capital stock. President Richardson, of the bank, came to the rescue and saved the bank from failure.

Boggs subsequently gave himself up and admitted his defalcation, at the same time making statements which led to the arrest of Senator Kenney and several other citizens of Dover. The initer have been convicted and are now erving a sentence in the Trenton penitentlary. The evidence against Senator Kenney deals largely with numerous stock transactions, in which he and Boggs were interested. During his last trial Senator Kenney was represented by Senator Gray, his colleague in the senate, and Levi C. Bird. Senator Gray is now in Paris with the peace commission, and ex-Attorney General John Biggs is assisting Mr. Bird. District Attorney Vandegrift represents the government in the prosecution.

would be able to prove that Senator Kenney drew money from the bank to which he was not entitled, and used it to tide over difficulties brought on him by stock speculations. He said that by an arrangement with Boggs Senator Kenney drew money from the bank when he had no funds there, Bogg making the defendant's account bal ance by the use of other money in the bank or in some instances by withholding the sonator's checks until he had made good the deficit.

H. A. Richardson, president of the bank, testified to Boggs' connection with the institution, and said it came to the attention of the directors in Oc He confessed his fault, and was forgiven. Witness had no further ren son to suspect Boggs until after his

EMPRESS AND PLANIST.

Josef Hofizana Wouldn't Await Roysky's Leisure When the Shating Was Pine.

Josef Hofmann, the famous young planist, is fond of all sorts of sports, especially of skating, in which, as a boy, he excelled. "When visiting St. Petersburg a year or two ago," writes Mary B. Mullett, in Ladies' Home Journal, "Josef was summoned to play before the ex-empress, the hour named being from three to four in the afternoon. It was a perféct day. The Neva was frozen over, of course, and the skating was at its height. Immediately after luncheon Josef's father found his son dressing as if to go to the palsce.

." "Where are you going?" he demanded.

" 'To play for the empress.' "'But you were not to go until three e'clock. "Three o'clock! If I wait until then it will be too late to ge skating. I'm going now!'

"He went. And it is not a surprise to anyone who knows Hofmann to learn that he played for the ex-empress as soon as he reached the palace, and that he then went off and skated the rest of the afternoon."

To Remember Faces.

To remember a face, as a person is called, the rule is not difficult to fallow. Pick out some feature or pecalinrity by which you can distinguish that face or person from all other faces or persons and associate the name with that feature or peculiarliy. No two countenances or figures are alike, and it is by noting how they differ one from another that you will remember them.

A RETIRED BURGLAR.

About a Man That Cost Lity a Night's Work.

"When I looked into the dining-room of a house that I was in one night." said the retired burglar, "I saw a man sitting in a chair perched up on the dining-room table. That seemed a singular place for a man to git to set. drunk or sober, but I thought I'd have to give him a chance to get tired of settin' there and go to bed before I begun, for if I didn't he might wake up any minute and interrupt things. So took a seat in a big leather chair in the library, next room, and waited for him to wake up. When I'd waited what I thought was a reasonable time without hearing from him, I looked in again, and there he was, still sittin' there, just the same.

"But this time, even in that light, there was something peculiar about him, and I ventured to turn my own light on him now, and then I saw that it wasn't a man at all, but a suit of clothes, with a hat on top, set up there to dry after being wet in the rain. The man that had worn them had been abed and asleep for hours, but his clothes had served for a scarcecrow mighty well, for I'd set there waiting for 'em to go to bed so long that it was now too late for business.

Sufety on Fast Trains.

Thirty years ago, when the average speed of passenger trains was very much less than at the present day, accidents were of such frequent orcurrence that people declared that, to insure greater safety, it had become necessary to "hang a director." In 1895, eut of upward of 1,000,000,000 passengers capried on the lines of the United Kingdom, only five were killed -one in 200,000,000-whereas the number of persons run over and killed in the streets of London in a single year was 26, or about one in 1,000,000 of the population of the metropolis. Supposing that each individual of the 5,500. 000 of Londoners walked abroad each day in the year, that would give a total of 2,207,500,000 walkers against 1,000,000.000 travelers by railway, and produces the remarkable inference that, for every mortal risk incurred by a railway passenger, the walker in the stmets has to encounter 12 chances of violent death.
