An Important Decision.

Chief Justice Sterrett, of the Supreme Court, Wednesday handed down an opinion in the Gearhart township election contest which will be of interest not only to the voters of Northumberland county, but of the entire State. Judge Savidge decided some time ago, that a voter making a cross in the circle at the head of the column on the ticket, not containing the names of the candidates for all the offices to be voted for, could not vote for another person who is a candidate for an office for which no nominee was contained in said column, by marking a cross in the square opposite the name of such person in another column.

C. B. Witmer, Esq., who represented M. F. Gulick in the contest referred to, took exceptions to the decision of Judge Savidge and appealed the case to the Supreme Court. That court reversed Judge Savidge and sustained the election board of said township and directed the contestants to pay the costs.

By the decision of the Supreme Court a voter may vote for all the candidates contained in the column by placing a cross in the circle at the top of the column and he may also vote for a candidate for an office for which no nominee appears in said column, by marking a cross in the square opposite the name of such in another column.

LAWLESS CAPTURED.

He Escaped from the Court House May 2nd, While Waiting Trial for Burglary—Caught Saturday Night at Shamokin.

"Pluck" or John Lawless, the notorious criminal and jail bird, of Shamokin, who had been a fugitive from justice since May 2nd, was captured near Shamokin Saturday night by Coal and Iron Policeman Leiser. Shamokin officers were aware that Lawless had been seen in the neighborhood of his old haunts the last few days, and a strict watch was kept for him. Saturday night their vigilance was rewarded and he was made a prisoner by Officer Leiser. The capture was made in the Reading railroad yard near the round house while Lawless was in the act of boarding a freight train. He had evidently learned that officers were on his tracks and was about to leave for a healthier climate. The prisoner was handcuffed and brought to jail here Sunday morning.

It will be remembered that Lawless is the fellow who walked out of the prisoners' dock at the court house during the May term of criminal court, Tuesday, May 2nd, while court was being transferred from the main room to court room No. 2. Lawless mingled with the crowd and walked out of the court house unobserved. He was not missed until the time arrived for taking the prisoners back to jail when the deputies discovered that they were one man short. He was awaiting trial for the burglary of Shapiro Bros.' clothing store at Shamokin and his case had not been reached at the time of his escape.

He will now have another charge to answer in addition to his indictment for burglary and will no doubt stay behind the bars for several years to come.—Sunbury Item.

Hastings on Top.

BELLEFONTE, July 24th.—Although there are still a number of precincts to be heard from, these returns cannot affect the previously announced result of the Republican primary election held in Centre county on Saturday, which was carried by the candidates supported by former Governor Hastings, by a large majority. The Hastings faction will control the county convention which meets here Tuesday and will elect S. H. Williams, of Bellefonte, and George Gowland, of Phillipsburg, delegates to the Republican State convention. The opposing forces who are followers of Judge Love, favored S. B. Miller of Bellefonte, and J. W. Dunwiddie, of Phillipsburg. Returns so far received give the Hastings people 67 delegates and the Love side 17. Calculations on the complete returns place the final result at 70 1/2 for Hastings to 21 1/2 for his opponents. The indications on the county ticket favor the nomination of Jacob S. Herman for sheriff, J. K. Thompson for treasurer, Nelson E. Robb for recorder, James B. Strohm for register and M. F. Riddle and George Scholl for county commissioners.
