

A Cure for Constipation.

I have been troubled with constipation for years. It was ruining my health, my com-fort and my complexion, and I am glad tosay that Celery King has restored all three, and this after trying many other medicines that were supposed to be good, but which were of no value whatever. I would like to tell every suffering woman what Celery King has done for me.-Neilie Gould, Medina, Ohio. Celery King cures Constipation and all dis-enses of the Nerves, Stomach, Liver and Kid-neys. Sold by druggists. 25c. and 50c. 3

International Sunday School Lesson for October 1, 1890-Text, Pas. 132-Memory Va. 6-9,

[Specially Arranged from Peloubet's Notes. GOLDEN TEXT.-I was giad when they said unto me, Let us go into the house of the Lord.-Psa. 1221 Read Psalm 84. LIGHT FROM OTHER SCRIPTURES.-

The House of God.-Psa. 84: 95:6: 2 Chron. 5:12, 14: Joel 2:15; Isa. 2:3; Mark 11:15-17. For the Church of God.-Psa. 2:8; 72:2-8: Isa. 44:3-5; 62:1; Zech. 8:20-22; Heb. 12:23, 24; Rev. 20:4-5; Chaps. 21, 22; Acts 2:1-4; John 4:23, 24 THE DATE of this Pealm is unknown. It fits best the times of David and Solo mon, except the plural "thrones" in V 6 But, whenever written, it belongs to a post exilic collection, just as our modern hymn books are continually obtaining new hymns from very ancient days and revising them for present use. The application was to the times after the return which we are the times after the return which we are now studying. EXPLANATORY. I. The Joyous Summons.—V. 1. "I was glad when they said:" It is always a joy to be summoned with others to something good. This Psalm is supposed to have been sung just as the pilgrim band climbed up the hill to the walls of Jerusalem for one of the great | weaned from his mother he has known feasts, the social joyous occasions of the year, to the Jews. It was so good to be at the Holy City, the center of life and religion of country and of nation, the focus of all that made the nation what it was; it was so good to be at the end of their exile, at the close of their long, hard journey-that they sang out their praises so loud that the other pilgrim bands could hear them and take cour age.

II. The Place .- Vs. 1-3. "Let us go into the house of the Lord:" The temple, the chief glory of the city, the central light, the source of religion, the symbol of God's presence, the gate of Heaven. V. 2. "Our feet shall stand:" R. V., are standing. "This is a lively expression of the satisfaction and delight of one who finds himself on this high day of festal joy within the sacred walls, mingling with the throng of worshipers who crowd the courts of the temple, and taking his part, with a full sense of his privileges as an Israelite, in the solemn services of the feast."-Perowne. "Jerusalem," the capital city, "the joy of the whole earth," the symbol of all that was highest and best in the nation, the type of the New Jerusalem. V. 3. "Builded as a city that is compact together:" Either in contrast with the scattered dwellings of the country villages, "a compact line of stately buildings which form so imposing a feature of the capital," or, more probably, in allusion to the fact that "there are no more waste places, no more gaps and heaps of ruin."--Perowne. III. The Company .-- V. 4. "Whither the tribes go up:" This expression is a strong proof that this is an early Psalm; for "it was a part of 'the Machiavellian policy' of Jeroboam to put a stop to this custom, lest such occasions should be made the means of restoring the national unity (1 Kings 12:26)." - Perowne. Jerusalem was the place to which it was commanded that the tribes go up; this act was part of the Divine system, and the custom was restored at a later day. "Unto the testimony of Israel." Better, as R. V., for a testimony unto Israel, proving their devotion to God and His cause.

Vs. 4, 5. First. They "give thanks unto not been rescued with ropes in the ination fils a family need. Twofarm the name of the Lord:" The very joy nick of time. Catch him trying that ex- from Vermont. As he was sending butof life is to praise God. Second. Rightcousness. V. 5. "For there:" in Jeru salem, "are set thrones of judgment:" It was the civil and religious metropolis. Justice, righteousness, the hatred of all oppression, all wrong of every kind, are the characteristics of the true city of God. "The thrones of the house of David:" David and his successors, especially "great David's Greater Son," who rules in the city of God, and his rule is righteousness evermore. All sin is treason to the great King. V. The Blessing. - Vs. 6-9. V. 6. "Pray:" Because God is the source of the blessings needed, and they can be given only to those who so put their trust in God, and so love and care for the city of God, as to pray for her. The best blessings cannot be received by a prayerless soul. They fall on it as rain on a desert. "Teh peace:" Rest from enemies, peace among its people, peace with God, peace in the soul. "Of Jerusalem:" Jerusalem means "Habitation of Peace." "They shall prosper that love thee:" Because that means the love of what Jerusalem stood for and was the means of imparting to the world, the knowledge of God, the character of God, all that was holy and loving and true. V. 7. "Peace be within thy walls:" To those who belong to the city and that which it represents,-true Jews, true people of God, within the fold. "Prosperity within thy palaces:" The inner dwellings, the homes of the people. V. 8. "For my brethren and companions' sakes:" He was not selfish in his hopes and prayers. His was no lonely Heaven. He "breathed a spirit of the noblest and most unselfish patriotism." V.9. "Because of the house of the Lord: He will seek the good of the city, for the sake of God's house within it.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN CANARIES.

Frank A. Heywood.

Strangers have to laugh when they first see a Rocky Mountain Canary. His small body, enormous ears and look of preternatural wisdom are as interesting as the antics of the clown in a circus. But, nevertheless, the family of burros divided the honors with the railroads in building up the southwestern part of our country, particular by New Mexico.

Where the railroad lays down its burden there the burro takes it up. Not much larger than a mastiff, he is yet almost as strong as a horse. As a saddle animal you would spurn him; not because he couldn't carry you, but for the reason that if you should fail for an instant to keep both your knees bunched up under your chin your feet would strike ground, and Mr. Burro would walk gently off, leaving you behind him on the road. It is as a pack animal that the burro excels. He is patient, strong and surefooted. His board is not expensive, for such costly delicacies as oats and hay are to him as strangers. From the time he was no other rations than such as he could procure by nibbling the grass by the wayside.

On his patient back the lonely prospector ties his worldly possessions, and, following behind with rifle and staff, threads the mountain trails in search of the new El Dorado. The delving miner, far up in cloudland, uses him to carry sacks of precious ore to the smelter, and bring back in return food, clothing and even water to drink.

When the mine has been established on a paving basis, so that a large number of men are required for its opera tion, then a settlement is formed around its mouth, and the iron rails are laid to connect it with civilization. The burro's work is finished here, and he pushes on to other fields of usefulness, far in advance. He is ever a pioneer.

The word burro is simply Spanish for donkey. Yet a burro is smaller than a donkey-just a pocket edition of one, as Lummis happily puts it. The difference in size probably comes from a difference in food and work continued through many generations. So far back as history extends the burro has been abused, overworked and left to hustle for himself. No wonder he is small.

But notwithstanding his scanty dinensions he is wonderfully strong, and enduring, and will grow fat on rations that wouldn't keep a horse from starvation. These qualities coupled with his sure footedness, are the reason for his being so valuable a pack animal.

His sure footedness comes from the instinct of self preservation, which is far better developed than in the horse. So far the instinct is profitable, but it sometimes leads to great annoyance. One day while a burro train was being guided down a mountain canyon the leader came to a place where the trail lead across the bed of a stream. A torrent rushed across it in the rainy season, but now it was simply dry sand, as hard almost as a pavement. The burro refused to cross, and finally had to be pulled from the front and pushed from the rear. Then, when half way over he deliberately laid down and commenced to groan. The cause was that the sand recalled his mind to a time long ago when he had stepped on just such an innocent looking place. It was smooth and dry and yellow and gave every evidence of plain sailing. His little feet had gone through, however, and he would have sunk out of IV. FOOLED THE TRICKSTERS.

How a Shrewd Chicago Lawyer Defeated a Neatly Planned Job to Loot a Hotel.

"That reminds me," said a Chicago man in a reminiscent group the other night, relates the inter Ocean, "of an old story that is good enough to repeat. Some years ago three bookmakers put up at a Chicago hotel and handed a large package of money to the chief clerk. They told him that they would leave it with him every night, and were particular in saying that it was to be delivered only in the presence of all three. It was evident, you see, that they didn't quite trust one another. Well, a week or so rolled around, and one morning one of the trio came down rather early and called for the cash. Without thinking of the conditions of delivery the clerk handed it over, and the bookmaker promptly skipped. His two partners were furious and brought suit against the hotel for $25,000, the amount in the bundle. A smart young lawyer volunteered to take the defense, which other attorneys regarded as hopeless. When the trial came off he waited until the bookmakers had submitted all their evidence, and then arose with a large bundle in his hand. "'We stund ready,' he said, 'to fulfill the letter of agreement you have just proved. This package contains $25,000 in cash. As soon as the three owners apply for it together we are prepared to turn it over."

"Of course the third man couldn't be produced, and the case immediately collapsed. The parcel really contained an d pair of pants."

periment again.

Another instance of utter despondency under slight provocation happened on the same trip. In passing through a very narrow part of the canyon, one of the burros caught his pack between two projecting ledges of rock and stuck fast. In vain he tried to push forward and then to back. Then he gave up utterly. Such groans and lamentations as issued from his little throat have rarely been heard from a beast, but when his pack was untied with the utmost haste, everyone thinking he had been internally injured, he quietly trotted off to join his comrades, with every indication of being in robust health and perfect spirits. But what discourages a burro quick-er than anything else is wetting his ears. He is very sensitive about these grotesque appendages under any cir cumstances, but wetting them simply breaks his heart. If while swimming a stream a few drops of water touch their inner membrane he will give up and drown.

Results of Unaccustomed Exertion.

Sudden emergencies sometimes neressitate severe labor or exertion, which brings into play certain muscles that have been comparatively inactive for a long time. A stiffness of the muscles generally results, which prevents them from performing their regular duties for several days. Exposure to draught, or the drenching of a rainstorm are frequently followed by rheumatism or neuralgic pains. The loss of time and money, as well as the suffering of pain can well be obviated by the proper and timely external use of the H. H. H. Medicine. See that the signature and portrait of the inventor. D. D. Tomlinson, 400 North Third street, Philadelphia, Pa., appears on the wrapper.

The Poultry Doctor.

If you are interested in Poultry, by all means send 25 cents in postage stamps to the Associated Fanciers, 400 North Third street, Philadelphia, Pa. for their new book, on the diseases of poultry. Although comparatively small it is so consise, terse and lucid as to be of great value to the fancier and the breeder of poultry. It shows how to manage and rear fowls, how to detect their different ailments, and how to treat them by either allopathic or homeopathic remedies. It is from the pen of Mr. John E. Diehl, the well known American Poultry Association Judge, one of the highest authorities on poultry.
