Editorial Paragraphs.

It would seriously complicate matters if some one should organize a trust of anti-trust conferences.

The prosperous Kansas farmers are buying pianos, and the calamity party will have to dance to the music.

Trusts are undoubtedly a serious evil. Look at the large output of demagogic oratory they are responsible for.

The indignant people of other countries continue to throw large chunks of raw meat into the cages of the Paris editors.

Boss Hanna may not be in the best of health at present, but Boss McLean will be the Ohio sick man after the votes are counted.

It is scarcely accurate to say that the Tagalos are the only tribe in rebellion against the United States. There are the Atkinsonians.

Among the numerous reasons why there will be no war in the Transvaal may be mentioned the fact that nobody really wants to fight.

In challenging Esterhazy to fight a duel, Captain Phelan may have been inspired by a worthy purpose to head off that threatened lecture tour.

The announcement is made that Mark Twain has decided to settle in New Jersey. We were under the impression that Mark had paid off his debts some time ago.

The twentieth Kansas reaped a large harvest of glory in the Philippines, but there is enough left for every man in the Thirty-second to get a generous share.

Lentz, of Ohio, describes Aguinardo as "one of the world's heroes." Aguinardo is one of the world's heroes in the same sense that Lentz is one of the world's statesman.

The statement that the Filipinos are an intelligent people is flatly contradicted by the assurance that they are counting on a Democratic victory in the United States next year.

Kansas populists are playing in the hardest kind of luck. There was no drought this year, and the grasshoppers did not appear.

An Indian Territory man was arrested for expanding a $1 silver certificate to $10. Yet there are those who affect to see no wrong in making every dollar in the country worth only 45 cents.

It is understood that Mr. McLean, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, has temporarily rented his residence at Washington, D. C. He has no intention of permanently disposing of it as a home. Mr. McLean frequently goes out to Ohio.

The thousands of employees of the great Southern Railway System, who are to be advanced the ten per cent, which was cut off from their wages during the 1895 Cleveland calamity period, are not likely to give heed to the present frantic appeals of the Democratic party.

Business failures in the United States, according to Bradstreet's, continue remarkably small. For the week ending September 7 they were only 123, against 131 last year, and 308 in the corresponding week of 1896, which Mr. Bryan was telling people from rear platforms of the dire calamity in store for the country in case of the rejection of his free-silver proposition.

The money in circulation in the United States on September 1, was, according to the statements of the Treasury Department, $25.41 per capita, against $21.18 on July 1, 1896, just prior to the nomination of Mr. Bryan; yet Mr. Bryan and his associates, who are dictating the "principles" of the Democratic party, insist that free silver must remain the leading issue of the campaigns of 1899 and 1900.

The fact that the money in circulation in the United States has increased nearly $450,000,000 since Mr. Bryan's nomination, is likely to prove quite embarrassing to the Democratic orators whose leaders are everywhere insisting upon making free-silver the leading issue in the campaigns of 1899 and 1900. The money in circulation in the United States on July 1, 1896, just prior to the nomination of Mr. Bryan, was $1,506,434,966, and on September 1, 1899, $1,942,131,141.

Philadelphia the Birth-place of Zionism

It was in Philadelphia—"The City of Brotherly Love"—that the piece of work for modern Zionism was achieved. For here, in Baldwin's world-famous works, was turned "a Mogul Locomotive Engine, having three pairs of coupled wheels and a two-wheeled swing bolster truck, for the Jaffa and Jerusalem Railroad."

The whistle of that engine is the key-note of the new movement. Palestine is no longer the mystic dream-places of angels and prophets, the land whose very soil Jewish thought figured as animated with a holy abhorrence of murder, licentiousness, and idolatry. It is a country like other, only worse. The electric cars whizz past the mediaeval peace of Milan Cathedral, and Zion's Hill is no longer safe from the Funiculaire. The world's childhood is passing, with all its charming and fantastic visions of fairies and fiends, and even in Jerusalem, Whitman's "years of the modern, years of the unperformed" must have their tardy turn.

And, in harmony with this modern Weltanschauung, comes the prospectus of "Zion, Limited," the conception of "The Jewish Colonial Trust," with its capital of two million pounds in one pound shares, for the generation of Palestine and its ancient people.—I. Zougheil, in the "New Lippincott for October."

A Trick for Hallow'en Follies.

A game that is not entirely new and yet especially appropriate for Hallow'en is known as "clairvoyance." It is especially enjoyable for an evening of mystery, because it always proves mystifying to the uninitiated. Take some particular person who understands the game to play the role of medium, and send her from the room, an empty chair being reserved for her next to the person who is in collusion with her. When she leaves the room some word is determined upon by the rest of the party, for instance "horse," and when the medium returns her task is to tell what the word is without any questions. She is summoned, sits down next to her friend, and while all present are seated in a circle, with joined hands, the one who was in the room, and hence knows the word, spells it to the medium by tapping with a finger upon the palm of her hand, the number of taps being equal to the number of the letter in the alphabet. For instance, eight taps for H, then quite a pause; fifteen taps for O, etc. When the medium announces the word successfully, those not knowing the secret cannot understand it at all, and it is even more mystifying when it is explained that it is based upon some occult mental action.—PHERE WESTCOTT HUMPHREYS in the October Woman's Home Companion.

REPUBLICANS ARE NOT BEING FOOLED.

Guffey Talks State Issues to Them and National Politics to the Democracy.

PREPARING FOR NEXT YEAR.

An Address From the Democratic National Committee Which Is a Timely Warning to Republicans of Pennsylvania.

(Special Correspondence.)

Harrisburg, Sept. 26.—Leading Republicans of this section of the state who have been to Philadelphia during the last week in consultation with General Frank Reeder, the chairman of the Republican state committee, state that the outlook for large Republican majorities from early reports that have come from the counties is most encouraging. They certainly are pleased with the prospects in Dauphin and nearby counties, and Congressman Olmstead, Mead Detwiler, Lyman D. Gilbert, ex-Mayor Patterson and other prominent members of the party all feel that this is going to be a great year for Republicanism in the old Keystone state. These men come in contact with the more influential and prominent Democrats of the state in their business and professional relations.

TURN DOWN OF SANDERS.

They declare that there is an intense feeling among sound money Democrats over the treatment they are receiving at the hands of the present leadership of their party. The gold Democrats are disgusted at the exhibition in Philadelphia a few days ago when Dallas Sanders, who once held the responsible place of chairman of the Democratic state committee in Pennsylvania, under the conservative leadership of Samuel J. Randall, was turned down ignominiously in his aspirations to go as a delegate to a local Democratic convention, because it was charged that he did not vote for Bryan. Sanders was attacked in the most shameful fashion, they say, and notice was served upon all gold Democrats that they were not wanted in the party organization. This incident has created no end of adverse comment among Democrats throughout the state. It is declared that this, with other insults that have been heaped upon the sound money men, will make the Democratic vote in Pennsylvania cut a sorry figure at the coming election.

There has been a great deal of talk from State Chairman Kitting about national issues not being a factor in the present campaign in Pennsylvania, but every day seems to make more conspicuous the fact that Bryanism is here to stay, and that no Democrat who does not bend the knee to the silver knight of Nebraska need hope for recognition or standing in the Democratic organization. Business men who have heretofore been identified with the Democratic party are awakening to the fact that the Democratic organization of the counties and state is as much in sympathy and accord with the movement for the renomination of Bryan for the presidency as the most radical and wild eyed of the rampant silverites of the mining district of the Rockies. They are not unmindful of the declaration of the Harrisburg state convention which once more heralded William Jennings Bryan as "Our Matchless Leader," and they know that support of the Democratic state ticket in Pennsylvania this fall means an endorsement of the Bryanite program for the presidential election of next year.

GUFFEY'S DOUBLE ROLE.

Colonel James M. Guffey, member of the Democratic national committee from Pennsylvania, has been conferring with his lieutenants in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. He is fresh from the meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic national committee, which was held last week at Chicago. Colonel Guffey is co-operating heartily with the Bryanites, who are in absolute control of the Democratic national organization, and was present when the national committee adopted its address to the Democracy of the country, in which it said:

"The national committee of the Democratic party in session at Chicago to consider the work of party organization preparatory to the campaign of 1900, sends greeting to the Democracy of the nation, with the assurance that the prospect of Democratic success next year grows brighter every day, and we have every reason for confidence as to the outcome.

"The great need now is party unity and thorough organization. The committee therefore appeals to our party friends in all states, and especially in the states where elections are to be held this year, to put aside all local differences wherever they exist and support the regular party tickets earnestly and enthusiastically, keeping always in view the great struggle of next year, and remembering that in unity there is strength and in division weakness."

With this appeal to Democrats to stand by their party in the hope of success in next year's presidential election still upon his lips, Colonel Guffey returns to Pennsylvania to reiterate to Republicans, whose support he seeks for the silverite candidates on his state ticket, that "this is an off year campaign in Pennsylvania. National politics has nothing to do with this canvass. State issues alone are involved. Republicans who want good government should vote for the Democratic ticket."

But Republicans recognize the fact that the greater the Democratic vote in Pennsylvania this fall the more consolation and encouragement will be given Bryan to make another desperate dash for the presidency next year.

The greater the appeals of the Democratic national committee to Democrats of Pennsylvania to get together for next year's battle the less consideration should Republicans give to the sincerity of their campaign cry of this being a state issue contest in Pennsylvania.

Colonel Guffey is not running the Democratic campaign in this state this fall for nothing. No one better than himself knows that there is not the ghost of a show for the election of any man on the Democratic ticket in Pennsylvania this year. He fully realizes that Mr. Cressy, the nominee of his party for state treasurer, is practically unknown to the voters of the state. The latter has not during the few years he served as an officeholder at Harrisburg done anything to attract attention to himself beyond carrying out the plans outlined by the managers of the insurgent Republican organization. He has not been affiliated with the active Democracy of the state and has neither their sympathy nor hearty support in his present canvass.

WANTS TO BE SENATOR.

But Colonel Guffey has his own fish to fry. He would, of course, like to see a large Democratic vote polled this fall, but he is more eager to divide the Republicans wherever he sees it may be to his advantage in his aspirations for the United States senate. This is the meat in the political coconnet which Colonel Guffey is giving his attention to in this campaign. He wants to divide the Republicans as much as possible, in order to help his canvass for the United States senate. He has mapped out a great scheme for fusion tickets for the legislature next year, by which he hopes to defeat regular Republican nominees for the senate and the house. His address is particularly for the voters of Chester county, endorsing the fusion movement in that county this fall, was designed to further the cause of the combination of the Democratic and disgruntled Republicans, who have a fusion on the county officers. Owing to a similar combine in this county last fall, the Democrats succeeded in capturing two of the four members of the legislature from Chester, which ordinarily ought to be a stalwart Republican county. Guffey is pursuing the same tactics throughout the state, and whenever he sees a chance to divide the Republicans locally he gives the Democrats all the encouragement possible. There will be show of fighting for the state ticket, but with the Republicanism of the commonwealth aroused and a general determination to support the McKinley administration in its war policy the Democrats realize that they have no chance of electing any one on their state ticket. They will, however, in local struggles do all in their power to disrupt the Republican organization in the hope of helping Guffey in his senatorial canvass.

Habit.

"Isn't there something the matter with the feet in this poem?" asked the critical friend. "I don't believe some of the lines have enough."

"Very likely you're right," answered Miss Cayenne. "It was written by a young man in a store where they don't treat people right. He can't get over giving short measure to save his life."—Washington Star.

Sure Cure for Colds

When the children get their feet wet and take cold give them a hot foot bath, a bowl of hot drink, a dose of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and put them to bed. The chances are they will be all right in the morning. Continue the Cherry Pectoral a few days, until all cough has disappeared.

Old coughs are also cured; we mean the coughs of bronchitis, weak throats and irritable lungs. Even the hard coughs of consumption are always made easy and frequently cured by the continued use of

THE ills of women overshadow their whole lives.

Some women are constantly getting medical treatment and are never well. "A woman best understands women's ills," and the women who consult Mrs. Pinkham find in her counsel practical assistance. Mrs. Pinkham's address is Lynn, Mass.

PRACTICAL HELP FOR SUFFERING WOMEN

MRS. MABEL GOOD, Correctionville, Ia., tells how Mrs. Pinkham saved her life. She says: "I cannot thank you enough for what your medicine has done for me. I can recommend it as one of the best medicines on earth for all women's ills. I suffered for two years with female weakness and at last became bedfast. Three of our best doctors did me no good so I concluded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After taking a few bottles of your medicine, I was able to do all my household work. I know that your medicine raised me from a bed of sickness and perhaps death, and am very thankful for what it has done for me. I hope that every suffering woman may be persuaded to try your medicine."

Get Mrs. Pinkham's advice as soon as you begin to be puzzled. The sick headaches and dragging sensation come from a curable cause. Write for help as soon as they appear.

MRS. DOLE STANLEY, Cambridgeburg, Ind., writes: "DEAR MRS. PINKHAM—I was troubled with sick headache and was so weak and nervous, I could hardly go. A friend called upon me one evening and recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, saying that she knew that it would cure me. I then sent for your medicine and after taking five bottles of it, I was entirely cured. I cannot praise it enough."

KEEP UP THE VOTE.

Republicans of Pennsylvania Have a National Duty to Perform This Year.

"The candidates on the state ticket," says Colonel A. Nevil Pomeroy, of the Franklin Repository, "represent the Republican party of Pennsylvania, and no Republican who has given the matter serious thought will think of voting against that party this year. Even if the candidates were not what they are it should be remembered that they represent a party that has brought so much prosperity to us, and one which has exceedingly grave issues to dispose of. The people have placed the disposition of these matters in the hands of the Republican party, and they owe it to that party to uphold its hands until the affairs of so much importance are finally adjusted.

"If ever in the history of the country it was necessary for the Republican party to roll up a big majority it is this year. No one denies that President McKinley should be elected next year. His record of the past three years entitles him to a re-election; the future prosperity of the country demands it. A reduction in the Republican vote this year simply gives encouragement to the opposition for the battle of 1900. The Republican vote in Pennsylvania this fall should be larger than it has ever been in the past."

Barnett's Welcome.

"Colonel Barnett's welcome at the Academy of Music," says the Philadelphia Call, commenting on Barnett's Philippine speech at the Grand Army encampment, "was a tribute of the old soldier to the heroism of the new and a worthy recognition of Pennsylvania's part in the war history of the present day."
