"What Would Jesus Do?"

By CHARLES M. SHELDON.

(Copyrighted and published in book form by the Advance Publishing Co. of Chicago.)

"I am just back from a visit to Raymond." Dr. Bruce began. "and I want to tell you something of my impressions of the movement there."

He paused, and his look went over his people with yearning for them and at the same time with a great uncertainty at his heart. How many of his rich, fashionable, refined, luxury loving members would understand the nature of the appeal he was soon to make to them? He was altogether in the dark as to that. Nevertheless he had been through his desert and had come out of it ready to suffer. He went on now after that brief pause and told the story of his stay in Raymond. The people already knew something of that experiment in the First church. The whole country had watched the progress of the pledge as it had become history in window and stood there looking out at the people driving on the boulevard. His cigar had gone out, but he still fingered it nervously. Then he turned from the window and walked up and down the room. A servant stepped across the hall and announced dinner, and he told her to wait for Felicia. Rose came down stairs and went into the library, and still Mr. Sterling paced the drawing room restlessly.

He had finally wearied of the walking apparently and, throwing himself into a chair, was brooding over something deeply when Felicia came in.

He rose and faced her. Felicia was evidently very much moved by the meeting from which she had just come. At the same time she did not wish to talk too much about it. Just as she entered the drawing room Rose came in from the library.

"How many staid?" she asked. Rose was curious. At the same she was skeptical of the whole movement in Raymond.

"About a hundred," replied Felicia gravely. Mr. Sterling looked surprised. Felicia was going out of the room. He called to her.

"Do you really mean to keep the pledge?" he asked.

Felicia colored. Over her face and neck the warm blood flowed as she answered, "You would not ask such a question, father, if you had been present at the meeting." She lingered a moment in the room, then asked to be excused from dinner for awhile and went up to see her mother.

No one ever knew what that interview between Felicia and her mother was. It is certain that she must have told her mother something of the spiritual power that had awed every person present in the company of disciples from Nazareth Avenue church who faced Dr. Bruce in that meeting after the morning service. It is also certain that Felicia had never known such an experience and never would have thought of sharing it with her mother if it had not been for the prayer the evening before.

Another fact is also known of Felicia's experience at this time. When she finally joined her father and Rose at the table, she seemed unable to tell them much about the meeting. There was a reluctance to speak of it, as one might hesitate to attempt a description of a wonderful sunset to a person who never talked about anything but the weather. When that Sunday in the Sterling mansion was drawing to a close and the soft, warm lights through the dwelling were glowing through the great windows, in a corner of her room where the light was obscure Felicia knelt, and when she raised her face and turned it toward the light it was the face of a woman who had already defined for herself the greatest issues of earthly life.

That same evening, after the Sunday evening service, the Rev. Calvin Bruce, D. D., of Nazareth Avenue church, was talking over the events of the day with his wife. They were of one heart and mind in the matter and faced their new future with all the faith and courage of new disciples. Neither was deceived as to the probable results of the pledge to themselves or to the church.

They had been talking but a little while when the bell rang, and Dr. Bruce, going to the door, exclaimed as he opened it: "It is you, Edward! Come in!"

There came into the hall a commanding figure. The bishop was of extraordinary height and breadth of shoulder, but of such good proportions that there was no thought of ungainly or even of unusual size. The impression the bishop made on strangers was first that of great health and then of great affection.

He came into the parlor and greeted Mrs. Bruce, who after a few moments was called out of the room, leaving the two men together.

The bishop sat in a deep easy chair before the open fire. There was just enough dampness in the early spring of the year to make an open fire pleasant.

"Calvin, you have taken a very serious step today," he finally said, lifting his large dark eyes to his old colleague's face. "I heard of it this afternoon. I could not resist the desire to see you about it tonight."

"I'm glad you came," Dr. Bruce sat near the bishop and laid a hand on his shoulder. "You understand what this means, Edward?"

"I think I do—yes; I am sure." The bishop spoke very slowly and thoughtfully. He sat with his hands clasped together. Over his face, marked with lines of consecration and service and the glow of man, a shadow crept, a shadow not caused by the firelight, but by the light of his eyes toward his old

"Calvin, we have always understood each other. Ever since our paths led us in different ways in church life we have walked together in Christian fellowship."

"It is true," replied Dr. Bruce, with an emotion he made no attempt to conceal or subdue. "Thank God for it. I prize your fellowship more than any man's. I have always known what it meant, though it has always been more than I deserve."

The bishop looked affectionately at his friend, but the shadow still rested on his face. After a pause he spoke again.

"The new discipleship means a crisis for you in your work. If you keep this pledge to do all things as Jesus would do, as I know you will, it requires no prophet to predict some remarkable changes in your parish." The bishop looked wistfully at Bruce and then continued, "In fact, I do not see how a perfect upheaval of Christianity as we now know it can be prevented if the ministry and churches generally take the Raymond pledge and live it out." He paused as if he were waiting for his friend to say something, to ask some question, but Bruce did not know of the fire that was burning in the bishop's heart over the very question that Maxwell and himself had fought out.

"Now, in my church, for instance," so many lives. Henry Maxwell had at last decided that the time had come to seek the fellowship of other churches throughout the country. The new discipleship in Raymond had proved to be so valuable in its results that Henry Maxwell wished the church in general to share with the disciples in Raymond. Already there had begun a volunteer movement in many of the churches throughout the country, acting on their own desire to walk closer in the steps of Jesus. The Christian Endeavor societies had with enthusiasm in many churches taken the pledge to do as Jesus would do, and the result was already marked in a deeper spiritual life and a power in church influence that was like a new birth for the members.

All this Dr. Bruce told his people simply and with a personal interest that evidently led the way to his announcement, which now followed. Felicia had listened to every word with strained attention. She sat there by the side of Rose, in contrast like fire beside snow, although even Rose was as alert and excited as she could be.

"Dear friends," he said, and for the first time since his prayer the emotion of the occasion was revealed in his voice and gesture. "I am going to ask that Nazareth Avenue church take the same pledge that Raymond church has taken. I know what this will mean to you and me. It will mean the complete change of very many habits. It will mean possibly social loss. It will mean very probably in many cases loss of money. It will mean suffering. It will mean what following Jesus meant in the first century, and then it meant suffering, loss, hardship, separation from every thing un-Christian. But what does following Jesus mean? The test of discipleship is the same now as then. Those of you who volunteer in the Nazareth Avenue church to do as Jesus would do simply promise to walk in his steps, as he gave us commandment."

Again Rev. Calvin Bruce, pastor of Nazareth Avenue church, paused, and now the result of his announcement was plainly visible in the stir that went over the congregation. He added in a quiet voice that all who volunteered to make the pledge to do as Jesus would do were asked to remain after the morning service.

Instantly he proceeded with his sermon. His text was from Matthew viii, 19, "Master, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest."

It was a sermon that touched the deep springs of conduct. It was a revelation to the people of the definition their pastor had been learning. It took them back to the first century of Christianity. Above all, it stirred them below the conventional thought of years as to the meaning and purpose of church membership. It was such a sermon as a man can preach once in a lifetime and with enough in it for people to live on all through a lifetime.

The service closed in a hush that was slowly broken. People rose here and there a few at a time. There was a reluctance in the movements of the people that was very striking.

Rose, however, walked straight out the pew, and as she reached the aisle she turned her head and beckoned to Felicia. By that time the congregation was rising all over the church.

Felicia instantly answered her sister's look.

"I'm going to stay," she said, and Rose had heard her speak in the same manner on other occasions and knew that Felicia's resolve could not be changed. Nevertheless she went back into the pew two or three steps and faced her.

"Felicia," she whispered, and there was a flash of anger on her cheeks, "this is folly. What can you do? You will bring disgrace upon the family. What will father say? Come."

Felicia looked at her, but did not answer at once. Her lips were moving with a petition that came from a depth of feeling that measured a new life for her. She shook her head.

"No; I am going to stay. I shall take the pledge. I am ready to obey it. You do not know why I am doing this."

Rose gave her one look and then turned and went out of the pew and down the aisle. She did not even stop to talk with her acquaintances. Mrs. Delano was going out of the church just as Rose stepped into the vestibule.

"So you are not going to join the doctor's volunteer company?" Mrs. Delano asked in a queer tone that made Rose shudder.

"No. Are you? It is simply absurd. I have always regarded the Raymond movement as fanatical. You know Cousin Rachel keeps us posted about it.

"Yes; I understand it is resulting in a great deal of hardship in many cases. For my part, I believe Dr. Bruce has simply provoked a disturbance here. It will result in splitting Nazareth Avenue church. You see if that isn't so. There are scores of people in the church who are so situated that they can't take such a pledge and keep it. I am one of them," added Mrs. Delano as she went out with Rose.

When Rose reached home, her father was standing in his usual attitude before the open fireplace, smoking a cigar.

"Where is Felicia?" he asked as Rose came in alone.

"She staid to an after-meeting," replied Rose shortly. She threw off her wraps and was going up stairs when Mr. Sterling called after her.

"An after-meeting? What do you mean?"

"Dr. Bruce asked the church to take the Raymond pledge."

Mr. Sterling took his cigar out of his mouth and twirled it nervously between his fingers.

"I didn't expect that of Dr. Bruce. Did any of the members stay?"

"I don't know. I didn't," replied Rose, and she went up stairs, leaving her father standing in the drawing room.

After a few minutes he went to the continued the bishop, "it would be rather a difficult matter, I fear, to find very many people who would take a pledge like that and live up to it. Martyrdom is a lost art with us. Our Christianity loves its ease and comfort too well to take up anything so rough and heavy as a cross, and yet what does following Jesus mean? What is it to walk in his steps?"

The bishop was soliloquizing now, and it is doubtful if he thought for the moment of his friend's presence. For the first time there flashed into Bruce's mind a suspicion of the truth. What if the bishop should throw the weight of his great influence on the side of the Raymond movement! He had the following of the most aristocratic, wealthy, fashionable people not only in Chicago, but in several large cities. What if the bishop should join this new discipleship!

The thought was about to be followed by the word. Dr. Bruce had reached out his hand and, with the familiarity of lifelong friendship, had placed it on the bishop's shoulder and was about to ask him a very important question when they were both startled by the violent ringing of the bell. Mrs. Bruce had gone to the door and was talking with some one in the hall. There was a loud exclamation, and then, as the bishop rose and Dr. Bruce was stepping toward the curtain that hung before the entrance to the parlor, Mrs. Bruce pushed it aside. Her face was white, and she was trembling.

"Oh, Calvin! Such terrible news! Mr. Sterling—oh, I cannot tell it! What a fearful blow to those two girls!"

"What is it?" Dr. Bruce advanced with the bishop into the hall and confronted the messenger, a servant from the Sterlings. The man was without his hat and had evidently run over with the news, as the doctor lived nearest of any friends of the family.

"Mr. Sterling shot himself, sir, a few minutes ago! He killed himself in his bedroom! Mrs. Sterling—"

"I will go right over," Edward—Dr. Bruce turned to the bishop—"will you go with me? The Sterlings are old friends of yours."

The bishop was very pale, but calm, as always. He looked his friend in the face and answered: "Aye, Calvin. I will go with you, not only to this house of death, but also the whole way of human sin and sorrow, please God."

And even in that moment of horror at the unexpected news Calvin Bruce understood what the bishop had promised to do.

It will not be a surprise to any who are familiar with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, to know that people everywhere take pleasure in relating their experience in the use of that splendid medicine and in telling of the benefit they have received from it, of bad colds it has cured, of threatened attacks of pneumonia it has averted and of the children it has saved from attacks of croup and whooping cough. It is grand, good medicine. For sale by all druggists.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS.

Meeting of the National Executive Committee in Chicago.

LOGANS FOR NEXT CAMPAIGN.

Walter Free Silver is in the Platform to Stay. It is Proposed to Make a Strong Anti-Trust Fight—National Convention May Meet in April.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The Democratic national executive committee, with National Chairman J. K. Jones in the chair, spent most of yesterday in a room in the Sherman House discussing matters pertaining to organization, ways and means and the administrative affairs of the organization. The committee will meet again today, and it is expected will get through with the business on hand before night. Nothing was said about a meeting of the national committee, but it is believed the committee will be called to meet in Washington on Feb. 22.

The committeemen were extremely uncommunicative as to what was done at the meeting. Secretary Charles Walsh said the committee had transacted no business of interest or importance, but only considered administrative affairs. After the meeting had adjourned, however, some of the committeemen continued the discussion of the probable situation next year. They disclosed the fact that a considerable part of the committee's time had been devoted to discussing the probable effect of high prices on the campaign of 1900.

It is the purpose of some of the committeemen to organize a bureau of information and education, whose duty it shall be to gather accurate and definite information relating to trusts, cost of manufacturing, selling prices to jobbers and middlemen, selling prices to consumers, wages paid and cost of raw material. They believe they will be able to show that the present high prices are the result of trusts and combines, and that workmen have been given but a small proportion of the increase in selling values. This idea has assumed such tangible form that it is predicted that W. H. ("Cohn") Harvey will be placed at the head of the bureau, but none of the committeemen would admit this.

All the committeemen said free coinage was in the platform to stay, but none of them said it would be the dominant issue. Congressman William Sulzer, of New York, appeared before the committee. He said "trusts would be the issue in the east. James F. Minturn, of New Jersey, told the committee practically the same thing. Mr. Minturn said the New Jersey Democratic committee did not have the confidence of the Chicago platform Democrats and that some of the members had voted the Republican ticket.

He wanted W. J. Bryan to visit New Jersey and help straighten things out. Senator Pettigrew, of South Dakota, and Charles A. Towne, of Duluth, both of them silver Republicans, told the committee that free silver was still a live issue in their states.

There was a strong feeling among the committeemen present in favor of holding the national convention in April or May, preferably the latter month.

It was announced at the conclusion of the meeting that a gathering of free silver Republicans will be held in Chicago on or about Dec. 7.

Ex-Governor John P. Altgeld called on Senator Jones during the day, and met with a warm reception. Mayor Harrison did not call on Senator Jones.

Three Killed in a Fight Over Mortgage. Antlers, I. T., Nov. 21.—Near Doaksville, 30 miles east of Antlers, Deputy United States Marshals James Ennis and Dave Everidge and John Kelly, a Goodland merchant, were killed by two men named Bishop and Frey, whom the officers were trying to arrest for removing mortgaged property. Bishop some time since was sent to an insane asylum, and while confined there his wife mortgaged their cattle and other belongings to Kelly. Bishop was released recently and claimed he had been drugged and put in the asylum.

Used by British Soldiers in Africa. Capt. C. G. Dennison is well known all over Africa as commander of the forces that captured the famous rebel Gahshe. Under date of Nov. 4, 1897, from Vryburg, Bechuanaland, he writes: "Before starting on the last campaign I bought a quantity of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which I used myself when troubled with bowel complaint, and ha given to my men and I every case it proved most beneficial." The Kentucky Contest. Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 21.—The Democratic anti-campaign committee concedes that Taylor has a majority on the face of the returns, but bases a hope of the election of the Democratic ticket on throwing out the vote of Louisville on account of the interference of Governor Bradley's soldiers, and Johnson and Knox counties, where tissue ballots were used. The Kentucky election law plainly provides for a secret ballot, and the Republicans admit that they are not as well fortified in the defense of their interests in Johnson and Knox counties cases as might be, but they assert that should Louisville be thrown out they have assurances that Governor Bradley will back them up in resistance, which they say is already fully planned.

Calls Interstate Commerce Law a Farce

Chicago, Nov. 21.—The testimony of President Stickney, of the Great Western road, yesterday before the sub-committee of the national industrial commission, investigating rate discrimination, was given very frankly and some of his statements caused sensations. His first declaration was: "I tell you frankly these published freight rates are not maintained by the railroads, and they cannot be maintained. The interstate commerce law, as far as investigations and corrections are concerned, is a roaring farce." The statement contradicts the sworn testimony of more than a half dozen railroad presidents.

Deafness Cannot be Cured.

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constituting the system. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a ringing sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Schooner Captized, Six Probably Lost

Boston, Nov. 21.—The overturned British schooner E. Norris, which had been repeatedly sighted off Cape Ann, was towed into Salem harbor yesterday by a tug. It is believed that the Norris was captized off Cape Ann some day last week and that her entire crew of six men, including Captain W. E. Ray, of Bear River, N. S., have been lost.

Chamberlain's Pain Balm Cures Others, Why Not You?

My wife has been using Chamberlain's Pain Balm, with good results, for a lame shoulder that has pained her continually for nine years. We have tried all kinds of medicines and doctors without receiving benefit from any of them. One day we saw an advertisement of this medicine and thought of trying it, which we did with the best of satisfaction. She has used only one bottle and her shoulder is almost well.—ADOLPH L.
