

HENHOUSE WINDOWS.

Plan That Works Well Under All Circumstances Where Winters Are Not Toe Cold.

The window here illustrated was ecently described as in use by a noted oultry fancier. The method of contruction is here pictured. The winlow is low, and has the sashes hinged. that one may step out into the yard from the henhouse through the winow. The upper sash is hinged at the top and swings out, being held up by an arm screwed to the casing. The lower sash is hinged at one side and wings out. This plan will work well ander many circumstances where the winters are not too cold, and where the fowls are kept in pens side by side. with adjacent vards outside. In such case it is often inconvenient to get into the yards unless one can go out nto them from the pens. With this method of swinging the sashes the necessity for having a door in each pen, as well as a window, is done away with. In cold climates such a plan can be used for spring, fall and summer, closing the windows in the winer and putting on outside sashes. This device calls for a low window, and this is desirable on other accounts, as only low windows let the sunshine suickly onto the floor on winter mornngs.-N. Y. Tribune.

LOCATING AN APIARY.

Where Basswood and Clover Abound Is the Place Where Bees Lay Up Honey and Thrive.

If it is the intention to make beekeeping a business, for the dollars and cents that are in it, it is certainly of great importance to consider well the ocation of the same. There are localiies, even in the radius of a few miles, that are much better than others. There are localities where white clover very abundant, and where a crop sure every season, whether it is long r short, while there are others that re not so, and occasional years only urnish a crop. Basswood is another to a distinguished nobleman, who durincipal honey resource, and where this and clover both abound is a desirable locality for an apiary. Basswood or linden is a good timber to cultivate. It is very hardy and makes a rapid growth, and might take the place of cottonwood, so extensively grown in the west. In a valley where fail flowers are plentiful is a good point to seek for, as a late flow of honey is very desirable to place bees in good wintering shape. Alfalfa is one of the best honey-producing plants we have at present, and it would be a afe place to locate, even if no other honey plants are in reach, but it would he exclaimed. "Mr. Depew belongs to be all the better if other honey plants are present. There is a long list of honey-bearing plants, but we will give but a few of the principal ones. Millet or sweet clover, crimson clover, alsike slover, mammoth or pea-vine clover, tulip tree or popular, black or sour rum, wild asters, golden-rod, willows. maple, buckwheat, cleome or spider ant, all kinds of berries and all kinds of fruit trees, whether wild or domestitated.-A. H. Duff, in Prairie Farmer.

The constitution requires an entreration of the people once in ten years. The census Growth of which is to be the Census. taken this year, beginning on the first day of June, will be the twelfth. When the first census was taken, in 1790, there were only 13 states, but the enumeration included the people in Vermont, Kentucky and Tennessee, not then admitted to the union. The whole population in that year fell short of 4,000,000. There are now four states which exceed that number of inhabitants; and there are almost 4,000,-000 people in the states of the Rocky mountains and the Pacific coast. In the early part of this century the census was a simple affair. It was merely a count of the persons living at the time. Additional inquiries Yetter, Milton, have been added from time to time, until, at the present day, the work of the census covers a vast field of inquiry and includes statistics upon an immense variety of subjects. The re-Name. sults require more than a score of bulky volumes to contain them; the facts are obtained and tabulated by an army of several thousand persons and the cost is many millions of dollars. The census is taken for the benefit of the people themselves, and the statistics are useful for deducing many conclusions important in science, industry and other great interests. It is therefore proper that every one should lend his aid in making the returns full and accurate. There is an old and too prevalent notion, says Youth's Companion, that the census is a curious prying into the affairs of private persons, and that one should, if possible, evade or mislead the census enumerator. In Miller, William, Farmer, mislead the census enumerator. In fact, the statements made are confi-dential, and the enumerator is sub-ject to a heavy fine if he reveals what he learns in the performance of his duty. He should be welcomed and helped instead of being avoided. The plans of the census this year are ex-pected to result in the most satisfacpected to result in the most satisfac-tory enumeration ever made, and a Weizel, Elmer E. Teaoner, Wendt, Robert, Laborer, pected to result in the most satisfacmore prompt ascertainment of the Zehman Emer E. Farmer, Zeher, John, main facts than in the past.

There is an average of four employes to each senator. The salary list of the senate amounts to nearly $500,000 a year, and as most of the employes are engaged less than six months on an annual salary, the positions are desirable. Even while the senate is in session, the clerks and messengers are not expected to overwork, although at times they are required to exert themselves. The average salary is about $1,000 a year, the lowest being $450. which is paid to firemen and laborers. and the highest $6,000, which is received by the sergeant-at-arms. The clerks in the secretary's office and the clerks of committees are paid from $1,800 to $2,500 a year, and each senator has a private secretary at the rate of $1,200 a year and a messenger at $720.

Few realize what a deep-scated, obstinate disease Catarrh is, regarding it as a simple inflammation of the nose and throat, little or no attention is given it. But, however insignificant it may seem at first, it is serious and far-reaching in its results.

The foul secretions entering the circulation poison the entire system. The stomach, kidneys - in fact all the organs - feel the effect of this catarrhal poison, and when the lungs are reached its progress is rapid and destructive, and finally ends in consumption.

It frequently happens that the senses of hearing and smell are in part or entirely lost, the soft bones of the nose eaten into and destroyed, causing intense suffering and greatly disfiguring the face. While sprays, washes and salves may give temporary relief, no permanent benefit can be expected from such treatment.

IS A CONSTITUTIONAL OR BLOOD DISEASE,

and far beyond the reach of mere local remedies. Those who rely upon them for a cure lose valuable time, meet with disappointment and allow the disease to take firmer hold. Only a real blood remedy can reach this troublesome and dangerous disease. S. S. S cures Catarrh because it first cleanses and builds up the blood, purifies it, makes it rich and healthy, stimulates and puts new life into the sluggish worn-out organs, and thus relieves the system of all poisonous accumulations.

Mrs. Josephine Polhill, of Due West, S. C., writes: "I had Catarrh, which became so deep-scated that I was entirely deaf in one car, and all inside of my nose, including part of the tone, sloughed off. When the disease had gone this far the physician gave me up as incurable. I determined to try S. S. S. as a last resort, and began to improve at once. It seemed to get at the scat of the disease, and after a few weeks treatment I was entirely cured, and for more than seven years have had no sign of the disease."

S. S. S. is made of roots, herbs and barks of wonderful tonical and purifying properties. It is the only vegetable blood purifier known, and a certain and safe cure for all blood troubles. Send for our book on Blood and Skin Diseases, and at the same time write our physicians about your case. They will cheerfully give you any information or advice wanted. We make no charge for this.

Keeping Well Water Pure.

It used to be an old-fashioned cus om in the country to put one or two rout in a well to insure the water cing pure and wholesome. If they did not keep it so it was supposed that they would give warning of its impurity by dying themselves. We re reminded of this by seeing in an English paper that Prof. Sobrero, of Turin, has lately advised the use of eels in the house cistern for the same purpose. He says two or three not large but lively eels would devour anything in the water in the shape of animalcules, infusoria, bird dropping from the roof or vegetable matter of iny kind. We think they would also take any animal matter like toads or Tats that might fall in and drown.

Fowls in Plum Orchards.

The difficulties of growing plums, wing to the attacks of the curculio, have almost driven this delicious fruit out of the market. Hens in a plum orchard do not seem to protect the ees, but in a few recent experiments which have been tried it has been monstrated that if the hens are alowed in a large orchard they will be kept too busy with other insects to actice the curculio, but if the hens are onfined, and each yard contains one (not over two) plum trees, under which the hens will congregate for shade, with but little grass in the yards, the rospects will be favorable to a large rop of plums.-P. H. Jacobe, in Amer-an Gardening.

occasion to inquire: "And to what station in your country, Mr. Choate, does your Mr. Chauncey M. Depew belong?" 'To the Grand Central station, my lord," readily replied the diplomat, without a quiver. The noble Englishman's face clouded for a moment with uncertainty. "I'm afraid you don't know what I mean," added Mr. Choate, about to go to his rescue. But milord quickly smiled a smile of glad intelligence. "Ah! I see, I see, Mr. Choate!" your grand, great middle class."

At a woman's eachre party the other day one of the fair players stopped the game with this query: "What do they call a black cat in England?" A number of the members had been in England, but they all had to give it up. The riddle-maker smiled sweetly as she trumped her partner's ace in true traditional style. "Can't guess? Why, 'kitty, kitty'-just the same as anywhere else."
