Most of the farmers and other persons of this vicinity have been hauling bark for R. S. Meiser the past week. They report good wages.

Nothing could have pleased the people in general more than did the recent rains. Crops look more favorable, and nearly every person wears a smile as it had been very dry.

A. E. Zerbe, employed at the Central Hotel, Selinsgrove, paid a visit to friends and relatives over Sunday. Mr. Zerbe is a first-class porter and understands how to entertain the guests.

Franklin Zerbe, our enterprising miller, who has been repairing and remodeling his mill is about ready to commence work again. All persons dealing with Mr. Zerbe will find him square in every respect.

E. C. Oberdorf of Harrisburg has opened a shop in this place and intends to do some buggy painting. He is on to his job, and all buggies or wagons entrusted to him will receive all requirements to make a fine appearance.

We are glad to note that the people take great pains in fixing the graves of the dead. It brings vividly back to one's mind that we too shall some day lie beneath the sod, and forms an impression upon the minds of the younger folks that they then may treat us likewise.

HUMMEL'S WHARF.

The few days' rain which we have had makes everything look thrifty.

A NEW PENNSYLVANIA STORY.

The Chronic Looper, by Nelson Lloyd. Reviewed in the May Number of The "Book Buyer."

"THE CHRONIC LOOPER is an excellent companion for busy men in their homes at leisure. The stories he and his associates tell at the village store in central Pennsylvania are all worth reading, while the arguments they have, the bits of philosophy expounded, many of them heirlooms handed down to the looper by his father, are shrewd, if conducive to chronic indolence. Mr. Lloyd is an excellent workman. He makes us see the quiet of the hills, the allurements of the trout-streams, and the terrors of a stormy night in the dimly lighted store, yet he remains as scrupulously as Mr. Howells himself from obtruding his own personality. His characters themselves apparently produce the effects due to the skill. The subject matter of all these tales is remarkably fresh, from the discussion on ambition between the chronic looper and the college man, to the ghost story wherewith the store-keeper ascribes to the spook of his father's predecessor the wetness of his sugar. The care-free tramp happens along occasionally in summer-time, after liberating the "Philadelphia" and gives of the riches of his experience. Pervading it all is a delightful humor, which, in the end, is the greatest attraction of the book."
