BRYAN AND STEVENSON

Democracy's Choice For President and Vice President.

BRYAN UNANIMOUSLY NAMED

His the Only Name Presented to the Convention.

HILL PREVENTS A STAMPEDE.

Only the Earnest Plea of New York's Ex-Senator Prevented His Being Named as the Tail of the Ticket. Webster Davis, Formerly McKinley's Assistant Secretary of the Interior, Announces His Intention to Support the Democratic Nominees. Silver Republicans Also Nominate Bryan and Stevenson.

Kansas City, July 6.—For president, William Jennings Bryan, of Nebraska. For vice president, Adlai E. Stevenson, of Illinois. This is the ticket named by the Democratic national convention. Bryan was nominated last night with a rush and a grand hurrah; Stevenson was nominated this afternoon with an enthusiasm which gave evidence that his selection was in every way satisfactory to the head of the ticket—the master hand in the convention. The effort to stampede the convention for Hill, of New York, would have been successful had not Hill positively declined to accept a nomination.

The convention did not really get down to work till yesterday afternoon was nearly spent, because of the delay

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN.

In the report of the platform committee. The morning session was utilized to permit some of the party orators to let off the oratorical energy they have been storing up and, incidentally, to talk on the expediency of obeying Bryan and choking off the fight that threatened to convulse the convention. These included ex-Governor Hogg of Texas, Dockery of Missouri, candidate for governor; Mayor Rose of Milwaukee and Governor Beckham of Kentucky.

Webster Davis, who gave up his snug berth at Washington to espouse the Boer cause, was invited to address the convention, and he fairly electrified the audience with a brilliant speech, in which he told why he gave up the first assistant secretaryship of the interior, withdrew his allegiance from the Republican party and plunged headlong into the open arms of the Democracy.

Davis was given several times an ovation, and when he shouted: "As Christ died to make men holy, let us die to make men free!" the flags were brought into service, and a striking demonstration resulted. As he concluded by stating that he stood upon the platform and would support the Democratic ticket, his hands were warmly clasped by Chairman Jones, Chairman Richardson, Senator Tillman and a dozen of the national committee men grouped about him, and the crowd again shouted itself hoarse.

Nominations of candidates for President of the United States were then declared in order, and the roll of states was ordered to be called. Alabama yielded to Nebraska, and Deputy Attorney General W. D. Oldham, of Nebraska, took the floor and placed W. J. Bryan in nomination. He paid a brilliant tribute to his chief, and concluded as follows:

With the issues now clearly drawn no doubt remains as to the name of our candidate. On that question we are a reunited Democracy. Already worthy allies, differing from us rather in name than faith, have shouted for our gallant leader again, and every state and territory has instructed its delegates to this convention to vote for him here. So it only remains for Nebraska to pronounce the name that has been thundered forth from the slumbering flower scented savannahs of the south; and that name is the name of William Jennings Bryan, her best loved son. As Mr. Oldham closed there was an answering cheer that swept across the convention. It was a simultaneous roar from all parts of the hall. Up went the delegates upon their chairs, over their heads went the flags, and above them all soared and rang the cheers for Bryan. The band loyally performed its share, but the noise of its creation was but a drop in the torrent.

The men from the state of Nebraska flung up a large banner, bearing a likeness of Mr. Bryan upon one side, and upon the other the word "Nebraska" and a smaller portrait of Mr. Bryan, inclosed in a star of blue.

New York vied with Nebraska and Kansas in venting its enthusiasm. Richard Croker was on a chair, both arms aloft, a flag in his right hand, which he waved vigorously. Hill was not behind him in the show of loyalty to the nominee and, waving his arms, he let forth a series of cheers that equaled those uttered by any man on the floor.

Round and round the hall went the marching column between two walls of cheering men, who stood beneath a cloud of fluttering flags. It was a demonstration fully equal in fervor to anything that has preceded it. It was not until 27 minutes had elapsed from the moment Mr. Oldham had mentioned the word "Bryan" that the cheering had subsided and the convention was in order once more.
