A Village Blacksmith Saved His Little Son's Life.

Mr. H. H. Black, the well-known village at Gratemsville, Sullivan Co., N. Y., says: "Our little son, five years old, has always been subject to croup, and so bad have the attacks been that we have feared many times that he would die. We have had the doctor and used many medicines, but Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is now our sole reliance. It seems to dissolve the tough mucus and by giving frequent doses when the croup symptoms appear we have found that the dreaded croup is cured before it gets settled." There is no danger in giving this remedy for it contains no opium or other injurious drug and may be given as confidently to a babe as to an adult. For sale by the Middleburgh Drug Co.

The organ contest will close Dec. 15, 1900, at five o'clock P. M.

COUPON
NO. 29. | Nov. 22.

This coupon entitles the holder to one vote for the handsome
WEAVER CHAPEL ORGAN

(Made by the Weaver Organ & Piano Co. of York, Pa., and sold by F. S. Riegel, Middleburgh, Pa.) to be given to some Church, Sunday School or Public School in Snyder County, by the Post, Middleburgh, Pa.

This vote is cast for:—

Samuel James Pawling Esq.

S. J. Pawling, Esq., who had gone to Denver to recover from an attack of Consumption, died in that city, Sunday evening, November 18, 1900. The report came only a few days before that his health was improving, and that their household goods were to be shipped to the Metropolis of the Rocky Mountain region. Hon. G. Alfred Schoch, his uncle, Monday received a letter from the deceased written last Wednesday. While it was not expected that he could live long, yet the sudden summons was a surprise to Attorney Pawling's many friends in this County.

He was born in Penn township, the second son of Lewis E. and Amanda Diana (Schoch) Pawling. Albert S. and Emanuel E. are the surviving brothers and Susan, Alice and Delilah Elizabeth are the surviving sisters. Deceased graduated from Missionary Institute (now Susquehanna University) June 1887, and from Lafayette College June 1890 and was admitted to practice at the bar of Snyder County September term 1893. He was married March 10, 1898 to Harriet Richter, of Selingsgrove. The remains started for the East Monday evening and are expected to arrive at Selingsgrove Thursday morning. This makes the second death in the Snyder County bar within a month.

AUGUST FLOWER.
"It is a surprising fact," says Prof. Houston, "that in my travels in all parts of the world, for the last ten years, I have met more people having used Green's 'August Flower' than any other remedy, for dyspepsia, deranged liver and stomach, and for constipation. I find for tourists and salesmen, or for persons filling office positions, where headaches and general bad feelings from irregular habits exist, that Green's 'August Flower' is a grand remedy. It does not injure the system by frequent use, and is excellent for sour stomachs and indigestion." Sample bottles free at the Middleburgh Drug Store.

THE LIVE STOCK TRADE.

Farmers Who Would Be Successful Must Note the Changing Wants of the Market.

The changing wants of the live stock market go on almost imperceptibly, but they are followed more closely in sharp competitive times like the present, than in the past when the volume of live stock was so large that dealers were not obliged to note closely trivial features of the market. For instance, a few years ago, hogs averaged heavier than they do now and the heavy or lard-making kind were more salable because the lard was in good demand at comparatively better money-making prices than at the present. The use of cotton seed oil with lard has helped to keep down lard prices. People used more clear pork years ago; now the general demand is for Yorkers and medium weight hogs. For some time there has been a scarcity of bacon and prices have held rather firm with a good demand. One reason for this is that bacon hogs are not so easy to get, as they must be long and fleshy, but not fat, and average 150 to 180 pounds. These conditions depend on the feed. In Canada the farmers feed peas and pea meal so generally in preference to corn, which is higher for them than for us, that they produce bacon hogs and they get a better price for them. The cured bacon brings a higher price in Canada by three to four cents than it does here.

The point to be remembered by the producer is to mark well the changing conditions of the trade and to follow them very closely by every means of information possible. You can't get too much information about a market. You may pride yourself on the fine quality of the hogs you feed and on your skill, otherwise on your farm, but if you fail, from lack of market knowledge, to get a fair price for your products, you are throwing away money that you might just as well save. A study of the conditions of the live stock trade shows that there are many changes, and, surprising as it may seem, that many shippers will persist in ignoring the facts after they are repeatedly instructed. Don't be backward about grasping the situation, loading yourself with facts in regard to markets to which you ship, and you will then discover why some of your bright friends get better prices sometimes than you do.—Sherwood, in Ohio Farmer.

SIMPLE WAGON JACK.
It is Easily Made at Home and Facilitates the Oiling and Cleaning of Vehicles.

The pieces, a, a, are of 2 by 4-inch stuff 22 inches long and sawed so that piece g, which is 2 by 4-inch, has room enough to go between them and is inserted in the end of c. The two pieces, b, b, are also of 2 by 4-inch size, 17 inches long and sawed in the shape illustrated. The pieces a, a, b and b are joined together with one-half-inch bolts, as shown by the dotted lines. The piece, c, is 4 by 4-inch and 5 1/2 feet, on which the wagon axle rests when the jack is in use. The spikes, c, c, prevent the axle from slipping. Chain is hooked to piece a and fastened to lever g to hold lever when in use. A one-half-inch bolt is used through a, a and g. Another bolt is placed through the joining ends of g and c.—Eugene Felsing, in Farm and Home.

HINTS FOR SHEPHERDS.

Feed the lambs. Feed them through the ewes, and then feed them from a well supplied feed trough. The condition of a flock is much like that of a garden. If the weeds are left to grow it is all weeds. It is a waste of time to feed and breed poor ewes, and to cull the flock is indispensable for the profit of it. The breeding time is near. And as the sheep is at this time, so will be the condition of the flock in the future. Selection of the best is the first care of the intelligent breeder of a flock. This is especially so in regard to the fleece.

We cannot think or act too seriously on the subject of how important it is that the shepherd should study the nature of wool and know its value.

We may take it as a rule that the lamb will pay for the food of its dam, and leave the fleece for the profit. The ewe always stands for its own value.

One part of cornmeal ground as finely as possible, one part of bran ground with the corn, and one part of cottonseed meal is an excellent mixture for the lambs.

Nature has no more to do with the shepherd's business than it has with the making of cloth from the sheep's fleeces. At least it is so if the wool grower knows his business.—American Sheep Breeder.

Destruction of Wild Horses.

Some two or three winters ago the legislature of Nevada passed a law legalizing the destruction of wild horses on the range. It is now estimated from available returns that since the passage of that measure over 6,000 horses have been shot as useless cumberbers of the ground, and now that the demand for range horses in that state far exceeds the supply, the destroyers are being the loss of over $250,000, which at present prices the horses would have brought if allowed to live and be rounded up.

Getting Thin

is all right, if you are too fat and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, healthy; a little more, or less, no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistent thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you.

It is the delightful fate of our own American humorist, Mark Twain, to have been taken seriously by the foreigners, by ingenious and confident foreigners, who, surfeited with the marvels of the great republic, are prepared to believe anything. The reader may remember the burlesque on the reckless mud-slinging that used to characterize our election contests that appears in the collection of Mr. Clemens' miscellaneous pieces under the title of "Running for Governor." A leading journal of Italy, the Corriere della Sera, so the New York Evening Post informs us, in perfect seriousness describes the surprising, not to say barbarous feature of a gubernatorial election in the great state of New York. The candidates were a certain Twain, "celebrated for his qualities of mind and heart," nominee of the independents, and two professional politicians of shady reputation, Smith and Blank. The time is indefinite, but, according to the Italian authority, only "a few years ago." It would be futile to recount the mud-slinging tactics of Smith and Blank. Suffice it to say that they accused Twain of banana-stealing in Cochinchina, a country which he had never visited; of kleptomania in Montana, a state that knew him not, and of habitual drunkenness at all times and places. Finally, Twain, attempting to address a meeting of his presumed electors, faced an audience of ragged children, all races, colors and previous conditions being represented, who unanimously hailed him as "papa." The disgusted candidate thereupon withdrew from the contest. The Italian writer, in commenting on this extraordinary case of vituperative politics, in which he suspects some slight exaggeration, congratulates himself that, with all the decadence of Latin politics, such things are still impossible in Italy.
