POTATO LEAF BLIGHT.

This Disease May Be Held in Cheek by the Application of Bordenus Mixture.

This disease is widespread and destructive. It is confined to the leaves and green stems, and appears about the time the tubers begin to form, but may be noticed earlier if the growth of the plants has been checked in any way. The first indication of its presence is the appearance on the leaves of grayish brown spots, which soon become hard and brittle. The disease progresses rather slowly, the spots gradually becoming larger, especially along the edges of the leaflets. At the end of ten days to two weeks, half of the leaf surface may be brown, withered and brittle, while the rest is of a yellowish green color. Three weeks or a month may elapse before all the leaves succumb. The tubers stop growing almost as soon as the leaves are attacked, and as a result the crop is practically worthless. This blight may be held in check by the application of Bordeaux mixture. This is prepared and applied as follows: Pour into a 50-gallon barrel 25 gallons of clear water, then weigh out six pounds of crushed bluestone or copper sulphate, and after tying it in a piece of coarse sacking suspend the package just beneath the surface of the water by means of a string tied to a stick laid across the top of the barrel. In another suitable vessel, such as a tub or half barrel, slack four pounds of fresh lime. Slack the lime carefully by pouring on small quantities of water at a time, the object being to obtain a smooth, creamy liquid, free from grit. When the lime is slacked add sufficient mixture to make 25 gallons. As soon as the bluestone is dissolved, which will require an hour or more, pour the lime murk and bluestone solution together, using a separate barrel for the purpose, and stirring constantly to effect a thorough mixture. It sometimes happens result the foliage may be injured. To be certain that the mixture is safe hold utes, and if the polished surface of the blade shows a copper-colored tinge add more lime, but if it stays bright the mixture is fit to use .- Farmers' Review.

THE FREAK PUMPKIN.

Shrewd Yankee Farmers Have Turned It Into an Ever-Increasing Source of Income.

The modern farmer is learning to take advantage of the weaknesses of nature, says the New York Mail and Express. One of these weaknesses is found in the lordly pumpkin. Bruise a growing pumpkin and the scar will never be cleared away, but will show in the ripe pumpkin in the shape of delicate little yellow warts. Starting with this principle, some shrewd Yankees have made their pumpkin farms valuable.

After the melons get good-sized and prove that they will be fine ones the farmers go into the patch and with a sharp stick scar them so that when they are ready for market their happy faces bear, in words of warts, legends like these: "Eat me at Smith's:" Smith will make ples of me soon;" "Brown's pies are the best;" "Jones' pies are delicious!" "You can eat me inside."

The wily farmer hauls these warty fellows to market, and, calling Smith, Jones and Brown from their respective restaurants, shows the strange freak of nature. Of course a sale is made on sight, and the pumpkin lies at the front of the restaurant for a few days to astonish passers-by until it must be made into ples to save it. Then the farmer discovers another freak pumpkin, suitably marked, to replace it. Fancy prices are to be paid for these pumpkins, and stony patches that would never pay taxes in any other crop produce wealth in pumpkins.

Careful Picking of Applea. The fruit should be loosened by raising upward and not pulled off, as is usually done, and with varieties that cling tenaciously, raise the apple and give it a half turn at the same time. Lay carefully in the basket or receptacle used, and when placing in a barrel or box handle with care, in fact just as tenderly as you would eggs, thereby preventing bruising or puncturing of the skin by the stems.

Apples for home use should not be placed in the cellar, but in a dark, well-ventilated building, until freezing weather approaches, and those intended for market should be put upon the ground under the trees, to remain a week or more, and then berreled. All bruised ones are then readily discern-ible and may be thrown out for ever-MIDDLEBURGH DR UG CO. orating or other usa, Farmers'

The Seat of Life

Is in the nervous system, the most delicate and important part of the whole body. When the nerves become weakened or diseased, the head aches, the circulation is retarded and the digestion is deranged. Little things irritate the temper and worry the mind, which only aggravates the disease until the whole system breaks down, and nervous prostration is followed by insanity or death. Strengthen and build up the nerves and stop this downward course before it is too late.

'Dr. Miles' Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills are my 'stand by.' Some years ago they brought me out of a severe attack of nervous prostration after everything else had failed. Later I fell and broke my hip, and since then have endured great pain. I could not sleep or eat; but with the help of Dr. Miles' Nervine the nervousness is overcome and I am enabled to eat and sleep with comparative comfort."
