It would seem that divorce may be enough to get away. But in Cleveland, O., they have formed a club, the object of which is to help parties in divorce cases. This new organization, which is to be officially known as "The Concatenated Order of Has-Beens and Will-Bes," is to be composed of men who have been divorced and those who have divorce suits pending, the latter being honorary members until they are legally freed from the ties that bind. The initiation fee will be two dollars and the dues one dollar per month. Seventy-five per cent. of the money so raised will be used to help the "Will-Bes" pay the attorneys' fees and costs in getting their divorces. The remaining 25 per cent. will be used to purchase a handsome diamond and gold medal, which will be presented to the common pleas judge who grants the most divorces in a year. One of the features of the proposed club rooms will be a scrap book in which the reports of divorce cases will be kept. Once a month there will be a lecture by some attorney well up in divorce laws. It is safe to say that the members of this queer club are men who have helped to make marriage a failure.

The American "young fellow" is a very agreeable subject to behold, startlingly announces the Boston Herald. He has the advantage over the French youth of his age of looking much fresher. The well-bred French child is a charming creation, but the French youth at the end of his teens has the air of having exhausted life instead of being about to begin it, and presents a sharp contrast to the alert and eager young American. The distinction may be noted with the more confidence since it has struck so observant a Frenchman as M. Paul Bourget, in his remarks upon the aspect of the undergraduates of Harvard. Innocence is no part of the French ideal of young manhood, and it is still an important part of the American ideal.

A teacher of an Indian school declares that the descendants of Lo are gifted with logical minds. "One of my Indian boys," says this teacher, "asked the meaning of 'misa.' 'To miss,' said I, 'is the same thing as to fail. You shoot at a bird or a mark and do not hit it; you miss it. You go to a tailor for a coat and your coat fits badly; it is a misfit. You hope to enter the middle class next year, but you cannot pass the examinations, and so you miss the promotion.' His face wore a puzzled air, and he shook his head. 'Then,' said I, 'there is another meaning of the word. We call a married lady misa, but an unmarried lady miss.' His face brightened; he smiled and nodded. 'Ah, I see,' he said, 'she has missed her man!'

A German surgeon recently cut off a patient's second toe and sewed it to the stump of a missing forefinger, and it is proving a very good substitute. The gentleman should be cautioned to avoid the wearing of too tight gloves, remarks a facetious contemporary, or he may be called upon to nurse a very painful corn on that toefinger.

It is said that the largest orchard in South Dakota is owned by a woman, Mrs. Laura A. Alderman, of Harley Turner county. She has 150 acres planted with 8,000 fruit trees of various kinds, two acres being of plums. There are also 1,000 gooseberry bushes, 1,000 currant bushes, 500 grape vines and three acres of strawberry plants.

The present area of the United States, including Alaska and our three new island colonies, is 3,846,140 square miles. So large a portion of the world's surface cannot be accurately conceived without the use of comparisons. The extent of our country is 19 times that of European France, or 32 times that of Great Britain.

Two little Quaker children were one day playing together, and some little differences arose. One grew quite angry and said, passionately: "If these doesn't take care, I'll swear at thee!" "Oh, oh!" cried the other, too much shocked to say more. "I will!" exclaimed the other. "Oh, thee little you, thee!"

A woman's club which has no higher purpose than promoting the cooking of good things to eat has recently been established in a Pennsylvania town. Each member agrees to experiment upon her husband with new dishes, and to report at the fortnightly meeting of the club the one he likes best.

Galveston is in the track of a certain abnormal but not infrequent West Indian hurricane which falls to be deflected from the Georgia and Florida coasts. It keeps to its northward course and strikes the Louisiana, Texas or Mexico coasts, according to its impulses.

Inventors who have been studying the problem of time-saving in newspaper offices are perfecting machinery which, it is expected, will develop three times the speed of present methods and reduce the number of operators. The first is an automatic telegraph typewriter, by which the message records itself by perforating tape without the assistance of a human receiver. By means of the second device the perforated tape is made to operate the typesetting machine, thus doing the work of the compositor. The third step is an invention for automatic stereotyping which performs in 15 seconds the work which now occupies three men one minute. The reporter's typewriter, like that of the telegraph operator, will produce both the perforated tape and the printed copy, so that matter written in the offices as well as that received by wire can be put in type by the new method. The changes are significant both of the value of time in newspaper offices, and of the tendency of the age to shorten the way to industrial results.

The Indianapolis Sun, of recent date, contains this very honest apology: "Appearances were against us last week, owing to a blunder of our compositor. We wrote an article as follows: 'James Wilson called at our office yesterday and renewed his subscription. Mr. Wilson, it will be remembered, raised this year's prize cabbage head. Little Johnny, who accompanied his father, is a fine little man.' The above is the way we wrote it. In setting it up, however, our compositor omitted a period, which made part of it read as follows: 'Mr. Wilson, it will be remembered, raised this year's prize cabbage head, little Johnny, who accompanied his father.' We trust that Mr. Wilson and our army of readers will have faith in our veracity when we assert that no harm was intended."

Some feather-headed genius has found one way to attain a certain sort of notoriety that is possibly satisfactory to himself, says the New York Times. His initials are "J. H. W." What his name is local history has not as yet revealed. This individual, with jackknife in his possession, has carved his initials on every bench in Riverside park from Seventy-second street to Grant's tomb. One cannot find a seat without those initials staring him in the face. How one man ever found enough idle time to do the job, and without detection, is the profound mystery of the beautiful breathing place.

Charles Rosenberger, a young molder, while accompanying a fire company's excursion, stepped out on the platform of a train which was traveling close to a mile a minute. His hat blew off and Rosenberger jumped after it. The train was backed up and the foolhardy young man was carried on board in an unconscious condition. In half an hour he recovered and it was found that he had sustained only a few trifling scratches. Rosenberger says that he did not want to mar the appearance of the fire company by marching in any other than the regulation hat.

Mrs. Henrietta Chase, of Danbury, Conn., died recently leaving quite a little property to various persons. To Alanson Chase, who was supposed to be her favorite nephew, she bequeathed "my set of false upper teeth, which will be found in the upper right-hand drawer of my bureau." The young man at once concluded that his aunt must have concealed some diamonds or other precious stones in the set of teeth. Accordingly he smashed up his bequest, but found no jewels. He will now contest the will.

By way of a joke some one recently sent to a New York society belle a full-grown camel. The young woman promptly accepted the gift, which every evening after the theater crowds have dispersed, led by a colored servant up and down Broadway for exercise. For the first night or two not a few revelers were startled into temporary sobriety at sight of the ungainly animal swinging along the roadway.

At a gathering of old folks in the town of Charlemon, Mass., the other day, the chairman called for all present over 70 years of age to rise, and 72 responded. He then asked all those who were over 80 to rise, and there were 12 who had passed that limit. A similar call for all over 90 brought four members of the gathering to their feet.

The health department in Boston has completed a bacteriological test of public telephones and advises care to avoid actual contact of the lips with the transmitter. Cleansing with a five per cent. carbolic acid solution after each use is recommended. Public phonograph tubes, which enter the ear, may also convey disease.

Cheboygan, Mich., claims to have the youngest grandmother in America. She married at 12, and gave birth to a daughter a year later. The child, following her mother's example, married young and lately when 16 years old gave birth to a child, whose grandmother is now a little over 29 years old.

Nerves Wear Out

And grow weak and exhausted when not properly nourished, just as an engine loses its power when the fuel runs low. The loss of nervous power is seen in the failing health and the wasting form. It is felt in the aching head, the throbbing heart, the irritability, indigestion, restlessness and loss of sleep. Rebuild the worn-out nerves, rest the tired brain and add new fuel to the vital fires with the best of all tonics, Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"I never had anything do me so much good as Dr. Miles' Nervine. I had been suffering from blind plies for some time and had lost so much blood that my nerves were in a very bad condition. I bought a bottle of the Nervine on trial and it did me so much good that I have since taken 'tw more. The result is my health has been wonderfully improved and I am very thankful that I gave it a trial."

J. E. HENSLER, Kingfold, Ga.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

Is food for the worn-out nerves and the weary brain. It is a food for the over-taxed and weak digestive. It nourishes, fortifies and refreshes the whole system.
